Find Starr's Second Love Diary

Take New Trail in Hunt for Slayers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—A second and more complete diary chronicling the life and love adventures of Starr Faithfull, Greenwich Village beauty, who died mysteriously in the Long Beach surf, was found today when detectives raided the Faithfull apartment in the absence of the family.

The discovery was declared by Inspector Harold R. King of the Nassau county police to be of "overwhelming" importance. The inspector and two detectives immediately chartered an airplane and flew to Riverhead, L. I., where District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards had gone for the week end at the adjournment of the Nassau county grand jury investigation until Tuesday.

In the jury room at Mineola nineteen witnesses had told almost every detail known of the life and last hours of Starr Faithfull to the jurors, who were asked to return indictments against two men identified only as "John and Richard Doe."

Diary Gives New Impetus.

Nothing in the day's testimony had developed to strengthen the murder case and the investigators were struggling with a mass of circumstantial evidence when the new and more conclusive information of Starrs' affairs with wealthy and influential men came to light in the second diary.

Little information was permitted to be given out concerning the new book. It was revealed, however, that it was up to date and contained specific names and accounts of meetings with persons only vaguely mentioned in the original diary. The find was not made public until just before mid night.

Upon his return from a conference with Mr. Edwards Inspector King declared the new information tended to strengthen the theory that Miss Faithfull had been murdered. He added, however, that he did not expect an immediate arrest.

Stepfather Is Excited.

Stanley E. Faithfull, the dead girl's stepfather, who tried to keep detectives from removing the first diary from Starr's bedroom, was asked to night to explain the secreting of the second diary, the existence of which has been strongly suspected for several days.

Faithfull refused to discuss the diary, but talked mysteriously of dread surprises to come.

"Something important," he said. "something tremendously important, and something I've been hoping could be avoided is going to take place at Mineola in the morning. I can't tell you any more about it now."

While the Faithfull family was in Mineola courthouse awaiting a call before the jurors detectives entered their Manhattan flat to conduct a further search for the supplemental diary. The detectives were unable to obtain entrance and left, apparently to await the return of the family.

Later Hunt Successful.

Later two of them returned and entered the apartment, although it has not been made clear just how they got inside. Soon afterwards things began to happen and the Faithfull murder mystery took on new life.

During the day an assorted lot of witnesses, including all members of the Faithfull family, the divorced father of Starr, taxi drivers, pier attendants, persons from a midtown office building, a Boston society man, and two Manhattan artists who knew the slain girl well passed in and out of the grand jury room.

Four of them believe they saw Starr shortly before her death, either last Thursday or Friday afternoon. Three witnesses were drawn from the first diary.

Sylvia Elizabeth "Tucker" Faithfull, the little sister who liked parties, too, and whose stories have been strangely conflicting, spent an hour before the jury.

Policeman Thomas Meagher, in charge of long distance calls at the detective bureau, put a telephone received to his ear yesterday afternoon in response to the operator's report that a call had come in from Fond du Lac, Wis.

"This is Chief of Police Silgen of Fond du Lac," said an excited voice on the wire. "We have a tip for you on which you can arrest Albert Jennings, escaped from the Boise, Idaho, state penitentiary, and wanted for forgery and other crimes in Idaho, Wisconsin and Illinois."

"Yes, yes," said Policeman Meagher.

Calls Wife from Chicago.

"He called his wife in this town from a telephone in Chicago," went on the voice. "Our force is alert and we had ordered the telephone company to trace any calls to the woman. They obeyed us and found that the number was Triangle 6699."

But the policeman found there were difficulties in tracing the number. The telephone company reported that it was an unpublished number concerning which no information could be given out.

Detectives Await Word.

Policeman Meagher pleaded with the company officials to no avail. He conferred with Chief of Detectives John Norton. Chief Norton began to put pressure on the officials and Policeman Meagher ordered a squad of detectives posted at 79th street and Cottage Grove avenue, beside the substation of the Triangle exchange.

The men in the squad car waited tensely. They had been notified that Jennings was a desperate character and they made ready with machine guns and tear bombs. Meanwhile, Chief Norton succeeded in obtaining the desired information from the telephone company.

Over the radio came the measured accents of the police announcer.

"Go to 830 East 75th street for Triangle 6699," the voice said.

It was the Grand Crossing police station.

Inside the detectives found Jennings in a cell. He had been captured three days before and had telephoned his wife in Fond Du Lac from the pay telephone in the station.

U. S. JURY HITS $200,000,000 BEER COMBINE

Gang Chief Named with 68 Aids.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

The federal government yesterday delivered another smashing blow at the Capone gang with the indictment of Al Capone himself and 68 of his followers in a $20,000,000 a year beer combine.

The evidence of dry law violation piled up against Capone and his men constitutes the greatest prohibition conspiracy case on record, according to federal agents. The indictment tells the story of the rise of a gigantic industry with total receipts of $200,000,000 for the ten years beginning in 1921 and with hundreds of trucks convoyed by gunmen ready to shoot it out with dry agents as they moved through the loop.

5,000 Offenses Charged.

The true bill alleges 5,000 separate offenses, 4,000 of which consisted in the transportation of beer trucks with their loads of 32 barrels each.

During the ten year period covered by the alleged conspiracy the gang had an average of ten breweries in operation all the time, according to federal investigators. Each brewery had a capacity of 100 barrels of beer a day and the standard Capone price is $55 a barrel, so that the daily gross receipts would be $55,000.

Back of the indictment is the story of an intensive investigation, led by Eliot Ness of the special prohibition agents, of telephone wire tapping, wild night rides in pursuit of beer convoys, near gun battles, threats of death, and offers of bribes as high as $50,000.

Second Indictment.

The indictment, returned by the grand jury before Federal Judge John P. Barnes, follows another one returned last Friday charging Capone with income tax evasion. The new charge adds the possibility of two years in the penitentiary and a $10,000 fine to the possible maximum of 32 years' imprisonment and an $80,000 fine which Capone faces if he is convicted under the income tax indictment.

Capone already is under sentence of six months in jail for contempt of federal court and is awaiting the outcome of an appeal in this case. He is to be arraigned at 2 p. m. Tuesday before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on the income tax indictment, and the federal prosecutors will ask an early trial.

Gang in Financial Straits.

Yesterday's indictment, say the federal men, not only represents the first time the "big shots" of a gang have ever been hit by liquor law charges in Chicago but virtually assures the undoing of Capone.

His gang is said to be almost insolvent, due to the wrecking of his huge breweries by raiders, the large amounts paid for protection, the high bonds required of his gangsters in the federal courts, and the business depression.

Rhea Munroe Weds Today by Judge's Help

Greenwich, Conn., June 12.—[Special.]—Because Charles Arthur Moore Jr. was forgetful during the first part of this week, it appeared for some hours today that his marriage to Miss Rhea Logan Munroe, daughter of Charles Andrews Munroe, Chicago and New York utilities magnate, would not take place tomorrow.

The Connecticut law provides that application for a marriage license must be made five days before the ceremony is read. It was not until Thursday that Mr. Moore went for his license and was informed firmly but politely that he and Miss Munroe might be married next Tuesday and no earlier.

Judge Comes to Rescue.

But the Moore-Munroe wedding bells will ring out tomorrow in Christ Episcopal church. Probate Judge William G. Rungee, after a long conference this evening with the prospective bride and bridegroom, their parents, friends, relatives, and counsel, decided that, in view of the fact that 3,500 invitations had been sent out and that numerous social functions had been planned, it would be in line with public policy to waive the five day clause.

It was so ordered and the much needed license was issued by Town Clerk Henry P. Crawford, who went to the Probate court chambers to accommodate the anxious couple with the precious paper.

Judge Rungee had been appealed to much earlier, but was reluctant to grant the waiver. He said that he disliked to stretch the provisions of the law to fit this case and appealed to the attorney general of the state for advice. The state's attorney's office informed him that it was proper to waive the law under the circumstances.

Point to Many Tangles.

Meanwhile Ralph E. Brush, counsel for Mr. Moore, had pointed out to the jurist the lack of public policy involved if 3,500 socially prominent persons had to be informed that the wedding would be held on Tuesday instead of Saturday or to be told that the post-wedding parties would have to be pre-wedding parties.

With the obstacles all removed it is authoritatively stated tonight that Mr. Moore and Miss Munroe will be married by the Rt. Rev. E. C. Acheson, bishop of Connecticut, at 4 p. m. tomorrow. The bride's sister, Mrs. Herbert Lloyd, will be the matron of honor. Miss Edith Behr, daughter of the Benjamin Leslie Behrs of Chicago, will be the maid of honor. Henry S. Moore is to be the best man.

A reception will be held following the ceremony at Inverness, the summer home of the bride's parents.

GEN. ASHBURN RIDES BOAT BEARING NAME; OPENS BARGE SERVICE

St. Louis, Mo., June 12.—(AP)—Two oil burning towboats pushing five well laden barges left St. Louis late today for Peoria, Ill., to inaugurate the new barge service in the long planned lakes to the gulf waterway.

One of the towboats, the Gen. Ashburn, carried its namesake, Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn. Secretary of War Hurley was expected to board the boat somewhere up the river. The other towboat was the Wynoka.

The tows will reach Peoria Monday noon, landing at the new barge terminal, which will be dedicated by the secretary of war, Maj. Gen. Ashburn, Congressman Hull, and others.

The cargo of the boats on the initial trip was composed of nearly all water borne goods, pineapples that came through the Panama canal from Hawaii, coffee that was shipped from South America, and sugar refined in Louisiana, besides a number of carloads of merchandise from St. Louis merchants.

BANDITS KIDNAP SPANIEL AFTER ROBBING COUPLE

Charcoal, a coal black spaniel, was taken for a bandit ride early this morning. The dog was in the automobile of R. C. Garlick, a sales manager, and his daughter, Mary Anne, when four robbers held them up in front of the Garlick home at 5480 Hyde Park boulevard.

The robbers boarded the car and forced Garlick to drive to 47th street and Wabash avenue. There they took $30, a $600 ring, and a $45 watch from him and $50 in jewelry from his daughter and drove away in the car. Charcoal was taken along.

"Charcoal's a fighter," said Miss Garlick later. "Maybe those robbers will be sorry they kidnaped him."

Monkey Bites Small Child; Is Placed in Dog Pound

Jim, a performing monkey, belonging to Nick Capo, 2808 Normal avenue, was in the dog pound last night after it had bitten a 3 year old boy. The boy, Robert Schroeder, 1506 East 55th street, had attempted to play with the monkey as it danced to the tunes from Capo's organ. The monkey is to be examined for possible rabies infection.

Robbers Bind 2 in Radio Store; Escape with $145

Two bandits last night tied M. B. Robinson, 4355 Drake avenue, manager, and Sol Bloom, 423 East 62d street, his assistant, with shoe laces and tape in the radio store at 3322 West 26th street. They then took $145 from the till and two radios and fled.

Auto Traffic in Loop Gains 4% in 2 Years

More Chicagoans are driving their automobiles to work at present than did so during the boom times two years ago, it was shown by the preliminary figures from a recent traffic survey of the downtown area, released yesterday by Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer.

The traffic survey, made by the police on May 26, showed, however, that the number of taxicabs entering the downtown district has fallen off 21 per cent from the volume of 1929, and that the number of service vehicles and trucks has fallen off 7 per cent.

Count Shows 4 Per Cent Increase.

The survey was made on all streets entering the area bounded by the river on the north and west and Harrison street on the south. The police counted 145,939 vehicles from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., an increase of 4 per cent over the 139,891 counted on a similar occasion in 1929.

Passenger vehicular traffic increased 15 per cent, the figures being 101,831 this year and 88,489 in 1929.

[lower level]	4,803	6,494
La Salle st. bridge	11,579	5,466
Washington st. bridge	9,723	9,254
Jackson blvd. bridge	7,238	7,445

Await Wabash Ave. Figures.

The decrease in traffic over the link bridge, Mr. Sorenson pointed out, is explained by the completion of the Wabash avenue bridge, figures for which have not yet been totaled, and the widening of North La Salle street, with the consequent increase of traffic over that artery.

The traffic count, when completed, will include all persons entering the downtown district. Figures on pedestrians, collected by the police, are still being arranged, and the surface lines, elevated company and railroads are preparing statistics on their traffic on the day of the count, which will be furnished to the city.

Baby Swallows a Safety Pin; Dies After Operation

St. Louis, Mo., June 12.—(AP)—Swallowing a safety pin while his mother was dressing him after a bath proved fatal today to Donald Lee Moore, 2 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Moore of Evansville, Ind. The child died at Barnes hospital here this afternoon after operation the preceding day failed to remove the pin. An autopsy revealed the pin had punctured the esophagus and penetrated into the right pleural cavity. A verdict of accident was returned by a coroner's jury.

VOTE TO FORBID FIREWORKS SALE ON COUNTY ROADS

The public service committee of the board of county commissioners yesterday approved a resolution to prohibit the sale of fireworks in Cook county outside of Chicago. The action was taken at the request of the city council.

The sale of fireworks in Chicago has been prohibited for a number of years, but because they have been sold outside the city limits, the city act has been virtually nullified. Since the county board has no jurisdiction in the country towns and villages the ban will apply only to the sale of fireworks along the highways.

000 bond on Capone's income tax indictment to cover the conspiracy charge as well.

No Sympathy in Move.

When the question was raised as to whether this action of the district attorney's office did not show sympathy for the greatest gang leader it was explained by friends of District Attorney Johnson that the purpose of a bond is to insure the appearance of the accused in court.

Bonds, it was stated, cannot be used under the law to punish. The district attorney's office would probably have difficulty showing in court that the bonds on which Capone is now at liberty are not sufficient to insure his court appearance, it was said.

Three Other Chiefs Named.

The conspiracy indictment, which named three other leaders besides Capone, leaves only Ted Newberry and Dennis [The Duke] Cooney of public enemy rank in the gang who have not been indicted or convicted on federal charges. Both Newberry and Cooney are reported in trouble over income taxes.

One of the three major figures indicted with Capone is Joe Fusco, business manager of the syndicate's beer department, who is said to have assumed greater importance in the gang since the convictions of Jack Guzik, Frank Nitti, and Ralph Capone on tax fraud charges. The other two leaders indicted are Bert Delaney, superintendent of manufactories for the syndicate, and Steve Swoboda, veteran Capone brewmaster.

Nearly Engage in Gun Battle.

It was Delaney and his crew of gunmen who almost engaged the federal agents in a gun battle and later attempted to hijack the equipment in a $50,000 brewery after it was raided.

Early in April the special agents were watching the brewery, at 2135 South Wabash avenue, from their automobile. A truckload of empty beer barrels, convoyed by a car with two men, drove up. The convoy stopped, and four other automobiles, bearing two men each, including Delaney, appeared on the scene.

The agents' car was surrounded and the federal men were prepared for battle, but Delaney ordered his men to put up their guns. He then tried to bribe the agents, offering $600, $2,000, and finally saying: "Set your own price." The agents spurned the offers but let the gangsters go.

A few days later, on April 11, the brewery was raided, 50,000 gallons of beer were destroyed and four prisoners seized, including Swoboda, who had been arrested a week before in a huge brewery at 1624 South Cicero avenue.

Try to Hijack Equipment.

Agent Ness ordered his men to keep the place under surveillance, and the next day, a Sunday, a truck with two men drove up. A sedan followed, and a richly dressed man got out and opened the brewery door with a key from his pocket. This man was Delaney. He and four others were arrested by the agents while loading a 25,000 gallon steel vat on the truck.

The agents ran across Delaney and his convoy gunmen several other times during the investigation. At one time, while the federal men were trailing a beer truck from 22d street to the loop in Wabash avenue, their car was forced to the curb and almost turned over by the escort machine.

Three of the special agents reported their automobiles stolen during this period and Ness awoke one morning to find the front wheels of his car missing.

U. S. Starts After Capone.

The development of the beer case against Capone grew out of District Attorney Johnson's successful campaign against gangsters with the income tax weapon. Washington authorities, including President Hoover, acclaimed the campaign, and it became the government's prime objective to wreck Capone.

Attorney General Mitchell sent William J. Froelich, one of his special assistants, to Chicago to assist Mr. Johnson in the coördination of federal forces for an assault on gangsters. The special prohibition agents, formerly headed by Alexander Jamie and now under W. E. Bennett, worked under the direction of Mr. Froelich and District Attorney Johnson in gathering the evidence for a booze case against Capone.

First Assistant United States Attorney Victor E. La Rue, who recently won convictions against thirty-six out of the forty-three defendants in the Rockford liquor conspiracy case, presented the evidence to the grand jury and will handle the prosecution of Capone and his gang at the trial.

Nineteen Overt Acts Charged.

The evidence includes nineteen overt acts, only one of which is necessary for the proving of a conspiracy case. Although the conspiracy is alleged to have been in continuous existence since 1921, the first overt act occurred on Dec. 29, 1922, when Capone, shortly after his advent in Chicago under the sponsorship of Johnny Torrio and the alias of Al Brown, went to Hammond and engaged in the lowly commerce of buying a used truck.

The purchase was made from the Reiz Motor Truck company, and on June 5, 1923, Capone bought another truck from the same company. This second truck bore the motor number 102079-A.

On July 29, 1923, it was seized loaded with beer at 121st and Halsted streets. This was the first link in the ten year chain of evidence. The indictment specifies other overt acts of a similar nature.

Transmission of Money Cited.

Then, beginning with March 14, 1928, it sets forth another type of evidence.

This was the telegraphic transmission of $5,000 to Capone, alias Albert Costa, at Miami, Fla., by George Howlett, one of the defendants. Again, on June 22, 1928, the transmission of $2,000, this time by Joe Fusco, is shown by telegraphic records.

This evidence was obtained by the income tax investigators, and its use in the prohibition case is an example of the coördination of federal activities. Much of the evidence to be employed against Capone in his income tax trial will be used in the conspiracy case, according to the federal prosecutors.

Bare Parley of Gang Chiefs.

Another overt act alleged is a meeting on June 12, 1928, of Capone, Fusco, Howlett, Delaney, and Jack Heinan, another defendant, at the Lexington hotel, at which plans for carrying on their beer business were discussed. Evidence of this meeting was obtained by tapping telephone wires, and in this manner the agents also learned the name applied to Capone in his inner council when referring to him over the telephone.

This name is "Snorky"—never the "Big Fellow," "No. 1," nor any of the other names that have gained currency with the public, according to the agents. Ralph Capone, who is not named in this indictment but is awaiting trial on a minor liquor conspiracy charge, is called "Rusky" by his associates, the phone conversations disclosed.

The agents sat with their ears pressed to receivers for as long as twelve hours at a stretch to listen in on the Capone gangsters. Among those whose conversations were carefully recorded are Machine Gun Jack McGurn, awaiting a decision on a Mann act charge, and Frank Rio, Capone's bodyguard and his fellow prisoner in a Philadelphia cell two years ago.

Standard Equipment Used.

In addition to the tracing of truck numbers and the tapping of telephone wires, the agents observed that a standard type of equipment was used in all Capone breweries—the 15,000 gallon steel vat plant unit, and motors, compression tanks and racking machines all bought from the same manufacturer.

The raiders even found equipment in use that had once been confiscated, which meant that some innocent appearing representative of the gang had bought it back at the United States marshal's auction sale. Time and again brewery workmen arrested in one brewery would turn up in another, as was the case of Swoboda.

All of these circumstances will be linked together in the government's effort to prove a conspiracy "to transport and manufacture beer for beverage purposes in the city of Chicago on a large scale," as the indictment states.

Other Breweries Raided.

Besides the huge breweries at 2136 South Wabash avenue and 1624 South Cicero avenue the breweries raided in the investigation included one at 2108 South Wabash avenue, where the agents found 50,000 gallons of beer and equipment, valued at $50,000. This raid was made by Jamie on June 12, 1930.

Another large brewery was raided at 1470 Larrabee street on May 19, 1924, and as a result of the raid 42 prisoners were taken. Known as the Selben brewery, this plant yielded five truck loads (160 barrels) of beer and 4,500 gallons in vats.

Other principal breweries raided were at 217 East 30th street, 56-70 East 31st street, 337 West 21st street, and 3540 South Morgan street. More than a score of smaller plants were wrecked and many truck loads of beer were seized en route to the rear entrances of loop speakeasies.

Bonds Are Fixed by Judge.

Many of the defendants are already under bond, having been arrested in raids on breweries. Bonds for those not yet apprehended were fixed by Judge Barnes at $2,500 to $10,000 on motion of the prosecutors.

District Attorney Johnson said he had not determined when Capone would be brought to trial on the booze conspiracy charge, wishing, he said, to dispose of the income tax case first. The government hopes this will be within a month, and by that time Capone's appeal from his contempt of court sentence may be settled.

The federal government's record of achievements in the prosecution of gangsters since United States Attorney Johnson launched his income tax campaign in 1929 follows:

Al Capone, public enemy No. 1, under sentence of six months for contempt of court under indictments for income tax fraud and conspiracy to violate the dry laws.

Ralph Capone, brother of Al Capone, under sentence of three years in the penitentiary for income tax fraud. Case on appeal.

Frank Nitti, Capone gang treasurer, serving an eighteen month term at Leavenworth on a plea of guilty to tax evasion.

Sam Guzik, brother of Jack Guzik and slot machine czar of the gang, serving a year and a day sentence at Leavenworth on a plea of guilty to tax fraud.

Terry Druggan, public enemy, former beer baron, sentence on plea of guilty to tax evasion awaiting outcome of Ralph Capone's appeal.

Frankie Lake, former partner of Druggan, plea of guilty to tax evasion, also awaiting sentence.

The income tax campaign also has been successful in the prosecution of politicians. County Assessor Gene Oliver and State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien are under sentence of eighteen months each. Both have appealed. Christian P. Paschen, former city building commissioner, and William E. Nichols, alleged fixer for both Paschen and Oliver, are under indictment. A half dozen contractors also are under indictment on tax fraud charges.

BIG EARL RAGES AGAINST WIDOW OF HIS VICTIM

The advisability of placing a guard about the home of Mrs. Mary Bonner at 7324 Yale avenue was discussed by assistant prosecutors yesterday after Big Earl Herbert, gangster and convicted slayer of the woman's husband, Thomas Bonner, made a wild demonstration in a Criminal court bullpen, crying that he had been "framed" by Mrs. Bonner. Prosecutors said they feared that Herbert's friends may attempt to injure Mrs. Bonner. Herbert had been brought into court on his motion for a new trial, and his outbreak caused the proceedings to be continued.

Assistant State's Attorney Harry P. Gabel expressed the opinion that Herbert was feigning madness in an effort to escape a life sentence under the murder verdict.

Jailkeepers reported that during the last week Herbert has been drinking large quantities of hot water, smoking cigarets continuously, and otherwise acting queerly.

Youth Gets Job Scraping Sides of Boat; Is Drowned

Edward K. Simmons, 19 years old, 2953 North Albany avenue, was drowned yesterday morning in the Chicago Yacht club harbor when he fell from a boat as he was helping scrape the sides of the cruiser Spindrift, owned by George Spies, head of the Spies Jewelry company, 27 East Monroe street. The boy had asked Mr. Spies for employment early in the morning. Several men on other yachts near by dived into the water, but were unable to save the youth.

TWO ROBBERS GET $975.

$50,000,000 from Booze, Remainder from Beer.

The estimated gross receipts of $20,000,000 a year ascribed to the Capone syndicate by federal investigators yesterday in connection with the indictment of Al Capone and sixty-eight of his henchmen, represents beer alone, and does not take into consideration the gang's enormous income from the sale of alcohol and whisky. The federal agents declared that the Capone gang's gross receipts from hard liquor and alky would easily reach $50,000,000 a year, making a total from the three sources of $70,000,000 a year.

This figure assumes credibility when it is recalled that an average of at least one recooking alcohol still, with a daily capacity of 1,000 gallons, is seized by the federal raiders each week. A recooker with that capacity would turn out 365,000 gallons during a year, and at the regular wholesale price of $5 a gallon the gross receipts from a single plant would be $1,825,000 a year.

Fifty Going at a Time.

The agents declare that the Capone syndicate, covering Cook county and extending westward to Aurora, often has as many as fifty of these recookers in operation at one time. As soon as one is raided another is set up. Some of the recookers are larger—one seized last week had a capacity of 3,500 gallons a day. On the basis of fifty in operation at a time, the gross receipts from alky could run as high as $100,000,000 a year, the federal men pointed out.

An indictment returned last year against 25 Capone henchmen charged the manufacture of 400,000 gallons of whisky over a four year period. At the regular wholesale price of $20 a gallon this would yield $2,000,000 a year, and the defendants in that case represented only a fraction of the syndicate engaged in the making of whisky, according to the federal agents.

Overhead Heavy, Agents Say.

The agents have no means of estimating the net income of the gang from prohibition law violations. There is a considerable overhead in the illicit manufacture of beer and alky, they say, and in the case of the former, which must be transported on trucks, large amounts must be paid out for protection.

It costs about $25,000 to set up a big still or brewery, and hundreds of them are raided during a year. During 1930 more than 100 stills—though not all big recookers—were raided in Cicero alone.

Legion Post Presents Flag to Judge Walter Stanton

Members of the Logan Square post of the American Legion yesterday presented an American flag to Judge Walter T. Stanton in the Superior court. The presentation speech was made by Lawrence J. Fenlon, commander of the Cook county council of the Legion, and the ceremony was arranged by Frank H. Fleming, vice commander of the Logan Square post and personal bailiff to Judge Stanton. Judge Joseph B. David, Cal. A. A. Sprague, and Clerk Frank V. Zintak of the Superior court visited the courtroom for the presentation.

Boy Bystander Wounded in Street Gun Battle

Stanley Kostrzew, 19 years old, was shot in the left leg last night when he was caught in a cross-fire between the occupants of two automobiles who were engaged in a running gunfight. The shooting occurred at Fry street and Ashland avenue. Both cars sped on. Kostrzew was taken to the West North avenue hospital and later to his home at 5730 North Major avenue.

M'ERLANE PAYS $225; IS FREE TO PEDDLE HIS BEER

Fined for His Wild Shotgun Debauch.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Gerald Bowers, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Raymond Johnson, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Joseph Babath.

Frank McErlane, known as one of the most ruthless of gangland leaders, was free to return to his south side beer interests after a brief hearing yesterday morning before Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court, in which two of the four charges growing out of his recent drinking spree were stricken from the books.

FRANK McERLANE.

He settled the remaining charges by paying fines and costs totaling $225 and walked from the courtroom arm in arm with Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, his fellow gangster, whom he had brought along to witness the proceedings.

Battles Imaginary Foes.

McErlane was picked up by police ten days ago as he stood at the corner of 78th street and Crandon avenue firing two automatic shotguns in a battle with imaginary enemies. The following charges were made against him:

1. Shooting inside the city limits.
2. Displaying fictitious license plates on his car.
3. Drunkenness and disorderly conduct.
4. Carrying concealed weapons.

As the charges were read McErlane's attorney, Joseph Roiach, objected to half of them. The charges of shooting within the city limits and of carrying concealed weapons were not pressed by agreement with Assistant State's Attorney Frank Mast, who wasn't able to find a witness to the shooting and who agreed that McErlane did not attempt to conceal his shotguns but was waving them in the air.

Fifth Charge Delayed.

A further charge of mayhem brought by the gangster's sister, Mrs. Margaret Marvis, who accused McErlane of forcing his way into her home and biting her on the cheek, was continued to July 7 to give the prosecutors an opportunity to find the complainant, who was reported out of town.

Gerhardt Meyne, vice president of the Chicago crime commission, last night recalled that Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court had expressed the opinion in newspaper reports that McErlane might be insane and suggested a sanity test. Mr. Meyne urged that the suggestion be carried out by proper authorities.

"It is regrettable," said Mr. Meyne, "that all of the charges brought against McErlane were of a misdemeanor nature and that no punishment by incarceration could be carried out."

IOWA 'BEER BOSS' GIVES UP TO U. S. ON RUM CHARGE

Michael Blumberg, known as the beer boss of Clinton, Ia., surrendered yesterday at the federal building on a warrant charging him and more than 20 others with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. According to undercover prohibition agents, Blumberg boasted that he had "greased" the highways between Clinton, Ia., and Aurora so that he would not be molested by police in the operation of a booze syndicate through Illinois, Iowa, and South Dakota. He is said to have Capone affiliations. Blumberg was released on bonds of $5,000.

SENTENCES TWO ROBBERS.

Two Negro robbers, identified in the felony court by their victims, were sentenced to a year in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan. They are James McNeil, 27 years old, and William Johnson, 23 years old, both of 4015 South Parkway.

GRAND JURY WILL HUNT CAUSE OF THREE BOMBINGS

Racket Bureau and Police Join in Inquiry.

The state's attorney's office, the grand jury and the Oak Park police yesterday launched a joint investigation into the three bombings which have wrecked property and endangered lives in Oak Park and on the west side in the last three days.

The determination to make an exhaustive inquiry into the sudden epidemic of bombings was prompted by the latest blast which wrecked part of the building occupied by the Thomas L. Harrigan auto sales agency at 438 Madison street, Oak Park, damaged neighboring buildings and terrified residents in the vicinity.

Grand Jury Will Act.

Undercover men from the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office started a secret investigation last night following an earlier conference between Frank O'Dowd, foreman of the grand jury, and Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Lounsbury and Charles J. Mueller. Mr. O'Dowd, who was roused from his sleep by the Oak Park bombing, stated that the grand jury will devote its entire attention to the bombing inquiry when it convenes again Monday morning.

None of the investigators was able yesterday to discover a motive for the bombings, although the prosecutors were determined to make the victims tell, if they know, why they took place. So far all have professed ignorance of any motive. Prosecutors, however, indicated that the victims and the witnesses would all be brought before the grand jury for thorough questioning.

Rumor Liquor Vengeance.

There were rumors yesterday that the bombings were the result of the vengeance of a liquor ring, but there was no evidence to varify these reports. Lieut. H. D. Wilson, chief of Oak Park detectives, said last night that he planned to investigate reports that Harrigan recently owned a building on Madison street which had been raided by federal men who found an alcohol still.

Oak Park police found witnesses who saw two automobiles drive away from the Harrigan salesroom a short time before the explosion. The two buildings previously bombed are the home of Mrs. Martha E. Dean at 122 South Menard avenue, where Edward Kelly Jr., secretary to a parole board member, resides, and the auto accessories shop owned by Warshawsky & Co. at 5655 West Madison street.

Woman Seriously Burned While Cleaning Clothing

Miss Ada Medrum, 38 years old, was seriously burned late yesterday when her clothing caught fire while she was cleaning a dress with inflammable cleanser in her home at 5439 Broadway. She was taken to the Edgewater hospital by Frank Lenarder, 1430 Argyle street.

RONDOUT BANDIT SLAIN TRYING TO ROB RAIL DEPOT

Kill Herbert Holiday in Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., June 12.—[Special.]—Herbert S. Holliday, who served six years in federal prison for the two million dollar train robbery at Rondout, Ill., was shot to death today while trying to rob a country railroad depot of five automobile tires. A companion was wounded and Holliday's wife was captured.

The robbery and killing occurred early today at Stillwell, Kas., twenty-seven miles south of Kansas City in Johnson county. The robber wounded was J. I. Harmon, a graduate of two prisons—Leavenworth and the Texas state prison. His wounds are slight.

Agents Await Robbers.

At 2 o'clock this morning Holliday and Harmon attempted to break in the Missouri Pacific station at Stillwell. The railway officials had been tipped off that the station was to be robbed of the tires and two special agents of the American Railway Express company were hiding in the telegraph operator's room.

Harmon was trying to force an entrance while Holliday stood guard on the platform. When the agents fired on Harmon, Holliday rushed to his aid, carrying a shotgun. One of the agents had his sawed off shotgun trained on Holliday, and when he started toward the station door the agent fired. Holliday ran about fifty yards and dropped dead.

Wife Seized in Auto.

Mrs. Holliday, who until a year ago last March was Miss Margaret Norris, was taken from the bandit car after the shooting. She and Harmon are held at Olathe. Harmon made a statement to officials at Olathe today, detailing the preparations for the robbery and the subsequent events.

The Hollidays lived with Holliday's parents at 415 East 30th street, Kansas City.

Holliday was paroled about a year ago after serving six years of his 25 years' sentence for the Rondout robbery. His assistance in recovery of $100,000 of the Rondout loot won him a commutation of sentence to 12 years and subsequent parole.

CANADIAN JURY PUTS O. K. ON RUM FOR 'THIRSTY U. S.'

LIVERPOOL, N. S., June 12.—(AP)—After hearing counsel for the defense assert that it was no serious offense "to feed a little rum to the Americans," a jury acquitted Capt. George Downey of bribing a public official today and disagreed on charges of smuggling liquor.

Harry Low of Windsor, Ont., and J. Ross Byrne, a local lawyer, were also accused. Byrne was exonerated by a grand jury. Low was acquitted tonight.

"You are asked to convict a man who had something to do with satisfying the thirst of the great United States public," said A. W. Jones, counsel for the defense, in his summation. "You cannot feel it a serious offense to feed a little rum to the Americans. Their mouths are always open. All the whisky we could produce would not satisfy them."

New York, June 12.—(Special)—A coast guard cruiser and a rum running speed boat fought a short, sharp engagement off the coast of Long Island early today. Thousands heard the shattering report of the cruiser's forward gun and the rattle of its machine gun fire, and also the scattered response in pistol shots from the rum runner.

The naval battle ended, as such battles invariably terminate, with the constitution triumphing over the hootch. The cruiser almost sank the rum runner, then captured her and brought her into port along with her cargo of rye in bags and bottles, cargo conservatively valued at $100,000. The Bubble, which was the name of the luckless rum runner, lay tonight off the barge office at the battery, her windows smashed in and her woodwork splintered by the heavy fire from the cruiser.

Bubble Sighted in Haze.

Boatswain Mitchell, in command of a coast guard patrol 2294, sighted the rum runner in the haze of West Bank light, which is on the north side of Ambrose channel, midway between Coney Island and Sandy Hook.

The lookout on the Bubble must have been sleeping it off because the cruiser was able to sneak up within gun range of the much faster smuggler. At a distance of 100 yards Mitchell inserted his face into one end of a megaphone and bellowed to the commander of the Bubble to stop and surrender. A derisive yell and a shot was his reply.

"Well," said Mitchell, "if that's the way they feel about it, all right. Give 'em hell, Mike!"

Shot Strikes Vital Spot.

With which a young sharpshooting coast guard named Mike Mallarkey sighted briefly along the glistening cylinder of the cruiser's rifle, found his mark and let her fly. The shot ripped a chunk of mahogany out of the bow of the Bubble.

Simultaneous a blast from the machine guns of the cruiser mashed every one of her windows. How it was that her crew of three managed to escape that hail of bullets and shell splinters will remain one of the minor mysteries. But there wasn't a scratch on any of them when Boatswain Mitchell and his men boarded their prize.

About the time this little exchange of pleasantries was taking place in the lower harbor, the coast guard destroyer Davis rammed and sank the British vessel Shuben Acadia with a cargo of liquor aboard some fifty miles south of Montauk point, L. I.

NEW RIOTS GRIP GERMANY; REDS GO ON RAMPAGE

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 12.—Sections of riot-swept Germany again rose today to register violent protest against Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's emergency finance decrees, which provide for tax boosts on luxuries, incomes, slashing of salaries of all government employés, and a substantial cut in the jobless dole and other social relief payments. The worst fight occurred at Cologne, where three communists were reported killed in a clash with police, who sent a volley of gunfire into the mob.

Renewed disorders flared in Hamburg this afternoon, where police and communists exchanged shots for half an hour. Three casualties, including a woman hit by a stray bullet, were admitted.

Sporadic rioting was reported in other cities, including Kiel and Dresden, with the communists the chief offenders. Communist papers were suppressed in Cologne and Coblenz and red mass meetings and open air demonstrations were banned in Bremen.

Political Foes Squelched.

The dissolution of the reichstag was the final threat which Chancellor Bruening hurled at his political enemies before leaving for Neudeck in East Prussia to report to President Paul von Hindenburg the results of his conversations with the British statesmen at Chequers over war reparations and on the general political crisis of the republic.

Willingness expressed the firm belief today that fear of a dissolution of parliament and new elections will induce the German People's party, the Nazists and Communists to refrain from forcing an extra session.

The fighting chancellor warned leaders of the various parties that he would consider the convocation of the reichstag as a vote of lack of confidence and that he would resign immediately.

His statement left the People's party bewildered over their disavowal of Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, a party member. This party believed that the Bruening cabinet would resign if it joined in the hue and cry for a special parliamentary session, but their leaders at once saw a disaster in Bruening's threat to quit the chancellorship just at a time when he is struggling to save the republic from financial ruin.

General Run on Dollars.

Alongside the general run on dollars and other currencies in exchange for marks, which might turn into panic, continued in Berlin all day.

Yesterday the reichsbank advanced 35,000,000 in foreign currency. Today 50,000,000 was advanced. This sum was sold out immediately, after which the board of directors of the bank issued special regulations permitting bourse officials to substitute checks for dollars, since "technical difficulties have arisen in the delivery of American bank notes."

The directorate therefore decided that checks on New York banks, at its official quotation, can be placed at the disposal of the buyers, and these checks will, upon request, be redeemed in dollar notes within the briefest possible time, or within a two weeks' limit.

Dollar bills, for the first time since the hectic days of the inflation, could be sold for 4 marks and 20 pfennigs, instead of the usual 4 marks and 20 pfennigs.

Stock Market Drops Again.

The stock exchange continued to drop. Shares in all companies could be purchased for a fraction of the original values. The $40,000,000 capital in the North German Lloyd shipping line is now worth $16,000,000—roughly the cost of one of the company's new giant liners. The $190,000,000 capital of the German steel trust dropped $34,000,000 in one week.

Because of this financial crisis the central committee of the reichsbank has called a meeting for tomorrow afternoon to decide as to whether it should raise its discount rate by 1 per cent to 6 per cent.

One of the busiest men in Berlin today was former Chancellor Hans Luther, president of the reichsbank. He was feverishly conferring with the bankers, beseeching them to obey Chancellor Bruening's wishes not to force an extra session of the reichstag. He warned them that a political crisis at the present moment would not only complicate the government's efforts to obtain a revision of the reparations payments but would also make it difficult for the government to raise the capital it needs to tide it over the end of the month. Negotiations are now pending for a loan of 400,000,000, which the government hopes will be sufficient until the new money pours in.

Inter-Allied Debt Plea.

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 12.—(AP) The Havas News Agency said today it had learned that while Andrew W. Mellon, American secretary of the treasury, is in Europe he will be approached on the possibility of cancellation of the inter-allied debts now being paid by Germany through the Bank for International Settlements.

According to Havas, a plan was discussed at Chequers by the British and certain statesmen by which advantage could be taken of better interest rates that had been developed in the United States for years. While leaving the inter-allied debt totals intact, it was said the plan would make a saving of from three billions to four billions, which Germany could use to aid her present financial situation.

Actresses Burned in Gasoline Explosion

LE GALLIENNE IS BADLY BURNED; 2 OTHERS HURT

Famed Theater Founder Will Recover.

Weston, Conn., June 12.—[Special.]—Eva Le Gallienne, founder and leading player in the Civic Repertory theater in New York; Josephine Hutchinson, one of the most accomplished supporters in the repertory company, and Marie Cou, a maid, were painfully burned tonight by the explosion of a water heater in the cellar of the Le Gallienne summer cottage here. All three are in Norwalk hospital.

Miss Le Gallienne was reported burned on the face, legs, arms and hands and her hair was badly singed, but she was resting comfortably in her cot in the hospital after Dr. William W. Tracey administered a sleeping potion. Miss Hutchinson's injuries and the maid's were reported less serious than those of Miss Le Gallienne, but both were in extreme pain. They, too, were burned on the legs, face, and arms.

Will Continue Career.

"Miss Le Gallienne's condition is serious," said Dr. Tracey, "but we regard all cases of this kind as serious. I may say, however, that unless complications set in she will recover."

Mary Benson, personal representative and general manager for Miss Le Gallienne, was positive, after a visit to Miss Le Gallienne in the hospital, that the accident would not interfere with the actress' career.

Miss Le Gallienne's cottage sits back from Cobb Mill road in Weston, is in an exclusive residential section in the woods. Miss Le Gallienne was in the house with Miss Hutchinson, when she suddenly decided to go into the cellar to light the heater. She went down alone.

Blast Shakes House.

A few minutes later the cottage was shaken by a loud explosion and Miss Hutchinson, racing down the steps, followed by the maid, saw Miss Le Gallienne staggering about, her dress aflame. The gasoline heater, torn by the explosion, had sprayed burning oil over the cellar.

First aid of a sort was administered by Mrs. Gerace, while her husband ran out to get the car started. Miss Le Gallienne was helped into it, followed by Miss Hutchinson and Miss Cou and the trip to Norwalk hospital, ten miles away, was begun at high speed.

N. Y. BROKERS TO GIVE DECISION MONDAY ON BUYING TAX WARRANTS

Representatives of two New York banking houses called on City Controller Szymczak yesterday and told him that they will give him a final decision Monday on the purchase of $3,500,000 of 1930 tax anticipation warrants drawn against the levy for bond retirement and interest payments.

The representatives were Frank Morse of Lehman Brothers and H. A. Ascher of Pressprich & Co. The proceeds of the sale will be used to retire $2,831,438 in city bonds and $468,375 in board of education bonds which mature on July 1. If the tax warrants are not sold to the New York houses it will be possible to sell them to other city funds to prevent default on the bonds, Mr. Szymczak said.

TRUSTEES REACH FOR $81,000,000 IN SCHOOL DEALS

High Total Shown Under Building Bond Plan.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school board's formal request to the legislature for authority to issue bonds for the construction of new schools and the purchase of added sites blossomed out yesterday much larger than the $50,000,000 plan which its father, School Trustee Joseph P. Savage, had represented it to be on Thursday.

Instead of merely spending the sum of $50,000,000 in 18 months as announced, it appears that the board desires authority to spend $81,000,000 in the next two years. In addition the property owners will be called upon to pay a total interest bill of $21,000,000 during the twenty years that the bonds are being paid off.

A Record Building Program.

Nothing so ambitious has ever been attempted before by the Chicago board of education. The full significance of the Savage scheme was disclosed when the legislative bills, which the board by a vote of eight to two ordered drafted by School Attorney Thomas V. Sullivan, were made public yesterday.

The board now has authority to levy a 58 cent tax for new buildings, added sites, and permanent improvements. The board reckons, in its appropriation ordinance, that this tax will produce $19,159,598 after loss and costs of collections have been deducted. The bills provide that the board shall retain the power to levy 47 cents of this 58 cent tax. On the basis of the board's estimate this 47 cent tax would produce $15,526,920 a year for new buildings and sites—a total of $31,053,840 for the next two years.

How Total Is Reached.

The bills also give the board authority to issue $50,000,000 in bonds for new schools and sites, which the board in its resolution says it intends to spend in 18 months. This makes a total of $81,000,000 within two years. The resolution to spend this amount was adopted in the face of Trustee Robert Carr's protest that past expenditures on buildings and sites should be investigated by the grand jury.

City hall officials attached significance yesterday to the promise that the $50,000,000 bond issue would be spent in 18 months. Mayor Cermak at present has only two of his appointees on the board, Mrs. W. S. Hefferan and Mr. Carr. Next year the terms of Trustees Walter H. Brandenberg and Oscar Durante expire. Two more appointees at that time would give the mayor four members of the 11 on the board.

If he waits for terms to expire, Mayor Cermak will not be able to get a majority of his appointees on the board until April, 1933, which is 21 months away. In the meantime the appointees of the old city hall administration promise to spend the $50,000,000 and also retain authority to collect and spend $31,000,000 more.

In addition to the $21,000,000 interest which will have to be paid on the loan, it was pointed out yesterday, it has been the practice of the board to increase the number of its employés with the erection of every added school or addition to an old school. Therefore, the opponents of the bond issue say, it must result in an increase of taxes not only for interest, but for plant operation and other expenses.

Trustee Savage's plea in urging the bonds was based supposedly on a report by Superintendent Bogan that there are 62,000 children in half-day sessions, or in portable or rented buildings who require new schools.

School board records perused yesterday show the facts on this statement to be as follows:

At a recent committee meeting Trustee Savage asked Supt. Bogan for the number of pupils in rented and portable buildings and in half-day sessions. The superintendent turned to D. C. Rogers, director of building survey and repeated the question and Mr. Rogers replied 62,000. The superintendent's position on the spending of $50,000,000 in bonds in 18 months was not found in the board's proceedings.

No Referendum Provided.

There is to be no public referendum on the proposed $50,000,000 bond issue, such as is required of city, county, park and sanitary bond issues. One of the bills provides that "the board of education may provide that the resolution or resolutions authorizing the issuance of such bonds shall be operative, effective and valid without submission thereof to the voters of such school district for approval."

Privately the trustees admit they have little hope that the legislature will pass the bills before its scheduled adjournment, June 20; but publicly they continued yesterday to advocate the plan as a means of giving work for the unemployed, profits for the contractors, and contributory relief to the business depression.

Unions Expected to Act.

The building trades council is scheduled to hold a meeting this morning at Electricians' hall, Ogden avenue and Washington boulevard, when it is expected that an indorsement will be given and a committee of the union men selected to go to the state capitol. Patrick Sullivan, head of the building trades unions, has already expressed himself vigorously in favor of the scheme.

Trustee Savage made a speech to the school board contractors assembled in morning and afternoon sessions in the school board rooms. They decided to send a committee to Springfield, when Trustee Savage goes down with the bills on Monday, to urge the passage of the enabling legislation.

For a time yesterday the contractors were hopeful that the proceeds of the proposed $50,000,000 bonds would be used to pay them about $2,500,000 now due them. Trustee Savage, when asked about this at the afternoon session, said that the money could not be used for that purpose.

The $2,500,000 due the contractors is in addition to $34,427,000 in tax anticipation warrants and $2,035,502 in interest which the board owed when its annual appropriation was adopted, for new building and sites. These tax anticipation warrants have been reduced by City Controller S. M. Szymczak to $25,967,000 from the 1929 taxes collected.

Want to Pay in Scrip.

For the $2,500,000 now owing the contractors, and other debts accruing for buildings under way, the school board has requested the contractors to accept participation certificates in a trust composed of tax anticipation warrants, which the board has been unable to sell to any one so far. The contractors decided to appoint a committee to study the matter further.

"What we want to know is whether the banks will accept these participation certificates as collateral for a loan," said Oscar Rosenthal, president of the contractors' association, "will the banks cash them? If so, will they want to discount them? If they are to be discounted, how much will be taken off?

"What the board is offering us is something in place of money. What are the certificates worth?"

COUNTY SEES HOPE OF RAISING MONEY FOR NEXT PAY ROLL

Members of the county board yesterday were hopeful of raising sufficient funds to meet the next bi-monthly pay roll amounting to about $550,000, which is due June 23. The commissioners were informed that a check for $337,329, part of the state's contribution to the county blind pension fund, will be mailed to the county treasurer within a few days. Since the county has paid its blind pensions up to date and the next payments are not due until September, this money can be diverted for pay roll purposes.

Additional money will be forthcoming from the fee offices of the county, Michael J. O'Connor, assistant deputy controller, said. He presented a statement from the county auditor which showed that some $400,000 was owed to the county treasurer by the clerks of the Circuit and Superior courts, the sheriff, county clerk, county recorder and other fee offices.

Part of this $400,000, according to the statement, has accumulated over a period of several months, although the fee officers are expected to turn over their fees to the treasurer at the end of each month. Three of the principal fee officers denied that they are withholding any funds.

Wills Estate to Woman; Son Files Notice of Contest

A legal battle was precipitated yesterday when the will of George Hastings White, suburban rental agent for the Chicago Title and Trust company, was admitted to probate by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. Mr. White died June 2 at the age of 60 years.

His will disposes of an estate valued at between $15,000 and $50,000, disinherits two sons, Stanley and Leslie White, and leaves everything to Miss Elfrieda Prestel, 1309 Newport avenue, said to have been his fiance.

Miss Prestel, who is 40 years old, has been personal secretary to District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson for thirteen years.

The petition for probate was filed by Attorney Luther D. Swanstrom, law partner of Mr. Johnson. Immediately afterward, Harry J. Berman, attorney for Stanley White, instituted a notice of contest, alleging Mr. White was of unsound mind and subjected to duress when the will was drawn in 1928.

Stanley White is a bank employé and lives with his wife and his mother, Mrs. Ida Seymour, at 1925 Patterson avenue. His mother divorced Mr. White 30 years ago and remarried. According to the son, his father resided for the last three or four years at 1309 Newport avenue.

Miss Prestel told the story of her friendship with Mr. White last night. She met him ten years ago, she said, subsequently they became engaged. They planned to marry in 1928, but the stock market collapse interfered, she asserted.

Senator Borah a Chicago Visitor En Route to Idaho

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho stopped between trains in Chicago yesterday en route from Washington to his home. Senator Borah declined to discuss politics further than to say the economic situation would probably have some bearing on the next presidential campaign.

SCHOOL WORKERS HAVE NO MONEY TO EAT; GET AID

Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgeway, purchasing agent for the board of education, yesterday said that payless pay days have so affected the civil service employés in his office that many of them are not able to buy their own lunches. To remedy this condition, Ridgeway said that he and several of the men in the department are contributing to a fund to supply a quantity of foodstuffs and coffee so that lunch may be prepared in the office each day over a small stove to be installed.

The board of education will meet Monday to consider a plan to pay employés of the board in "participation certificates" to be issued against a fund of tax warrants which, according to the plan, will be deposited in trust. A total of $5,200,000 is owed.

HOOVER GREAT AS LINCOLN, CRY OF YOUNG G. O. P.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—With three lusty cheers, and fired by the go-getting oratory of cabinet members and administration leaders, the Young Republicans at today's session of their conference launched the good ship Hoover campaign and headed it toward 1932 with their enthusiastic blessing.

"This conference," the 300 delegates resolved, in answer to a proposal by Chester J. Hinton of Allen county, Ind., "representing the young Republicans of the United States, extends its thanks to the men of all parties who have cooperated with President Hoover in maintaining industry and high wages, avoiding labor disturbances, expanding public works, effecting economies, and relieving unemployment. As President Hoover labors for the welfare of all, without distinction of parties, sections, or classes, we bespeak for him the loyal support of all citizens."

Hoover and Lincoln.

"We cherish with grateful remembrance the fidelity of the Republican party to its first President, Abraham Lincoln, which sustained him and the Union in the darkest days of our national history. We pledge equal fidelity to President Hoover and the Union in these trying times of world depression. With Lincoln's patience and fortitude, the captain of our ship of state maintains his unwearied vigil on the bridge.

"We call upon all citizens to give him their loyal support in order that the passage through troubled waters may be speedy and safe. We have faith in our pilot. We have faith in our ship. We have faith in our destiny."

For reward there was a change in the program that originally had decreed no meeting with President Hoover because it might place too much emphasis at this time upon the political significance of the conference. The delegates were given a surprise visit to the White House, shook hands with the President and received his thanks.

With Up with a Dance.

At the concluding dinner and dance tonight they heard Secretary of War Hurley do his bit toward painting the Hoover portrait at which the voters are to look.

"The question is," said the secretary of war, "has Hoover's leadership as President been equal to his splendid achievements in the exalted positions which he filled before becoming President?"

Mr. Hurley contended that it had. He credited the President with settling the French debt and achieving naval parity with Great Britain. He lauded Mr. Hoover's method of meeting the depression. He blamed the treasury deficit on congress for overriding the President's vetoes, presumably on such measures as the veterans' bonus.

Earlier in the day Secretary of Agriculture Hyde departed from his announced theme concerning the federal farm board and drew applause when he counseled his hearers to smite any Republican who joined the chorus of "the President is all right, but——"

TRANSFER DRY LAWS TO STATES, ABOLISH BUREAUS, SAYS LEWIS

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—A short platform that will attract the attention of the voters of the nation should be adopted by the Democratic party for next year's election, James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic senator from Illinois stated today at the White House, following a call on President Hoover. Senator Lewis would include only tax reduction, the improvement of American international relations and the transfer of prohibition to the state in the platform he would have his party leaders accept.

J. H. LEWIS.

Senator Lewis outlined his ideas on politics after informing President Hoover that owing to previous engagements it would be impossible for him to be at Springfield when the presidential party reaches there next week. The Illinois senator said he would be delivering a commencement address at a college he did not name when the President arrives at Springfield to dedicate the Lincoln memorial June 17.

"I hope," Senator Lewis told White House reporters, "that the Democratic party will not include the ten commandments and the Sermon on the Mount in its 1932 platform. If we want to win we must go to the people with a platform that is short and to the point.

"In the first place it should include a plank which would call for action which would bring about a revival of friendship with other nations and thus stimulate our foreign trade and decrease unemployment.

"The platform also should call for a reduction of taxes and the abolishing of all unnecessary bureaus which constitute a constant drain on the treasury.

"Another plank should provide for the transfer of prohibition back to the states, where it belongs."

Hear Brookhart Assail Big Business.

BY PARKE BROWN.

About 100 persons answered the call yesterday to a two day "Illinois Progressive Republican conference" at the Auditorium hotel. Nevertheless the sponsors considered it a fair start toward the launching of a complete slate of national, state, and county candidates in the Republican primary next spring.

NEWTON JENKINS.

According to the keynote of Newton Jenkins, who initiated the movement and presided at the morning and afternoon sessions, the object now in view is only a primary battle within the ranks of the party. There was no open discussion of a third party movement.

Service Men Interested.

The well known faces in the group sessions were chiefly adherents of the old Bull Moose or the La Follette cause, but there was also a strong element of service men interested in the demand for full payment of the federal bonus immediately, a cause championed by Congressman Wright Patman of Texas, author of the 50 per cent loan bill.

Congressman Patman, who is a Democrat, spoke at both the afternoon and evening meetings and between times aided in the formation of a "national bonus committee," headed by Col. James E. White, which will keep the bonus fires burning.

United States Senator Brookhart of Iowa, one of the radicals, was the principal speaker of the first day. He had been scheduled for this morning, but reported that he would have to leave the city last night to keep other engagements and was put on at once.

The senator's speech was largely the same one that he has been delivering before Chautauquas and other gatherings, chiefly a demand that cooperative banking with a second reserve bank be established under the farm board.

Brookhart Makes Charges.

As usual, the Iowan charged that the present depression is due to mistreatment of the farmer, that big business deliberately inflated the farming industry in 1919 and just as deliberately effected its sudden and disastrous deflation in 1920. He contended that the farm board should have $2,000,000,000 at its disposal to handle the surplus of all cereals and cotton.

He closed by predicting that "a Progressive" can be nominated in the Republican primary next year.

In his keynote speech, Chairman Jenkins, who was a candidate for the United States senate in 1924 and 1928, said he was opposed to the renomination of President Hoover and statement was met with applause.

Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, Prof. A. R. Hatton of Northwestern university, Thomas K. Lavey, service man, and George C. Jewett, Chicago banker, spoke during the afternoon meeting.

OUSTER UPHELD

IRENE CASTLE McLAUGHLIN.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

William Schroeder, a farmer near North Wheeling, was acquitted yesterday by a jury before Justice A. J. Sengstacke of Morton Grove of a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, north shore society woman. Mrs. McLaughlin went to the farm to investigate reports of cruelty to animals. Schroeder admitted he "lost his temper" in ejecting Mrs. McLaughlin. The defense argued Schroeder's farm is his castle and accused Mrs. McLaughlin of trespass.

CHICAGO RISES TO NEW HEIGHTS AS BANK POWER

City Has Six of 100 Largest in U. S.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Chicago moved another step forward this week as one of the leading cities of the world in banking power and prestige. The absorption by the First National and First Union Trust and Savings banks, allied institutions, of the Foreman-State National and Foreman-State Trust and Savings banks resulted in a banking group with resources of around $900,000,000. And the merger of the Central Trust Company of Illinois and the National Bank of the Republic created an institution with resources around $340,000,000.

Chicago already has a bank in the billion dollar class, it being the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, with resources exceeding $1,122,000,000. And the city also has, all told, six of the 100 largest banks in the United States. However, this quota hardly interprets Chicago's financial power, as four of the six banks are among the first 34 largest institutions.

Fifth and Sixth Largest.

At the end of 1930, based on deposits, the Continental Illinois bank was ranked as the fifth largest bank in the United States in a compilation by the American Banker. Considering the First National and First Union Trust and Savings as an entity and giving effect to their absorption of the Foreman-State banks, this institution would rank as the sixth largest bank. The new Central Republic Bank and Trust company, combining the Central Trust and National of the Republic, would rank eighteenth. The other Chicago banks in the first hundred are the Harris Trust and Savings bank and the Northern Trust company, which rank fifty-fourth and ninetieth, respectively.

There are only four larger banks in the country than the two biggest Chicago institutions. They are, in order of ranking, the Chase National bank, the National City bank, and the Guaranty Trust company, all of New York, and the Bank of America, N. T. & S. A., of San Francisco. But comparison of these banks with Chicago institutions is hardly fair because the New York and California banks have the advantage of branch banking, whereas branch banking is prohibited by law in Illinois.

New York Financial Capital.

New York, the financial capital of the United States, has 21 of the 100 largest banks in the country. It also has the greatest bank in the world, which is the Chase National bank, with resources of nearly $3,700,000,000. The nearest rival to this American institution is one of the great English chain banks, the Midland Bank, Ltd., with resources around $2,530,000,000.

Among the 100 largest American banks, Philadelphia has nine, San Francisco eight, Pittsburgh five, and Los Angeles, Boston, and Detroit four each. Of course, Los Angeles, like San Francisco, is favored by branch banking. The remaining big banks are scattered among the principal cities of the country. The vast financial power of these 100 banks is evidenced by the fact that their total deposits at the end of 1930 exceeded $22,158,000,000, while their combined capitalization was above $3,632,000,000.

Total Deposits Are Listed.

Naturally the New York banks hold the largest deposits for any city. Their total on March 25 this year was around $9,250,000,000, including deposits of the big trust companies. On the same date the Chicago banks held aggregate deposits of more than $2,731,000,000. Thus the banks of New York and Chicago hold about one-fourth of the nation's total deposits, which are estimated to be around $10,000,000,000.

Vast concentrations of capital had an earlier growth in England than in this country and the early system of branch banking made England the great banking power of the world. However, the vast growth of commerce and industry in the United States in the last quarter century developed a banking power that outstripped that of England and the concentration of this power in great institutions has resulted both from natural growth and vast consolidations.

The United States now has five banks in the billion dollar class and England also has five such institutions. But the English banks are far greater proportionately in size, as for share—of the country's deposits, whereas their American rivals have only a fraction of the nation's deposits.

Banking Strength Told in Figures

HOUSE VOTES STATE PAY FOR COUNTY JUDGES

Springfield, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—Protests from Cook county members failed to stop the house today from passing the Gilmore bill, providing for state instead of county payment of county judges. The Cook members regard the bill as just another burden for the metropolitan district, which pays more than 50 per cent of the state taxes.

D. Logan Griffin [Rep., Kankakee] pushed the bill and encountered bitter opposition from Chicagoans. Thomas P. Roderick [Rep., Chicago] spoke against it, saying that it was manifestly unfair that Chicago should be required to pay more than half the salaries of all county judges and other representatives were just in proportionement, but the bill passed by a large majority.

At the Bridewell hospital the youth, whose injuries were not serious, admitted the theft.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, now serving as American ambassador to England, will be honorary chairman of the new bank, thus retaining the title he now holds with the Central Trust Company of Illinois. John A. Lynch will be chairman of the executive committee, retaining the same post he has held with the National Bank of the Republic.

Joseph R. Otis, now chairman of the Central Trust, and David R. Forgan, now the chairman of the executive committee of the National of the Republic, will be co-chairmen of the board of directors.

Other Officials Named.

R. R. Otis and John W. O'Leary, respectively chairman and president of the National of the Republic, and H. S. Grosscup, vice chairman of the Central Trust, will be vice chairmen of the board. E. V. R. Thayer, now chairman of the Central Trust executive committee, will be vice chairman of the executive committee.

Philip R. Clarke will be president of the new bank, retaining the title he now holds with the Central Trust. The other vice presidents will include T. E. Dewes, Ward C. Castle, J. E. Donaldson, A. B. Florsen, J. E. Jaquith and Aaron Colnon. Lucius Teter will remain chairman of the Chase Trust company, which will retain its corporate existence as it did when the merger when it was a subsidiary of the National Bank of the Republic.

Orrin Woodruff, who has been chairman of the National Bank of the Republic, will not join in the administration of the new bank, owing to the condition of his health. He has been in ill health for several months and only recently has returned to put in a limited time each day at his desk. Now he will take a vacation. Charles S. Castle, who has been a vice chairman of the National Bank of the Republic executive committee, also will retire.

The new Central Republic Bank and Trust company will have combined capital and surplus of $28,000,000 and its investment affiliate will have combined capital and surplus of $5,000,000. Stockholders of the Central Trust company will receive two shares of $100 par value in the new bank for every three shares of Central Trust now held.

Stockholders of the National Bank of the Republic will receive one share of the new bank for every 9 1-6 shares of National of the Republic, $20 par value, now held. This exchange of stock works out on the basis of the Central Trust contributing eight-fourteenths of the capitalization of the new bank, while the National of the Republic contributes six-fourteenths.

Certain assets of both banks will be segregated, including $600,000 common shares, $5 par value, of the Central Illinois Securities corporation. From the proceeds of its excess assets, the National of the Republic stockholders will purchase at $5 a share a six-fourteenths interest in Central Illinois Securities. Then this interest together with that held by the Central Trust stockholders, will be turned over to a new investment affiliate, whose stock will be trusteed for the benefit of all stockholders of the new bank. There will be no assessment of National of the Republic stockholders, as the stock to be purchased will be bought from the proceeds of excess assets.

Situation Improves.

The general banking situation in Chicago improved yesterday. Both officials of the big downtown banks and of the outlying banks reported further subsidence of "runs" in different neighborhoods.

Only one bank, a comparatively small institution, was closed yesterday by the state auditor. It was the Illinois State bank of Evanston, 319 Howard street. The bank on March 25 had $600,000 deposits. Its capital was $100,000 and surplus $15,000. The directors explained that closing the bank was designed to protect equitably the interests of all the depositors. They expressed confidence that with orderly liquidation the depositors would be paid in full.

The bank was not a member of the Evanston Clearing House association.

Plans for Reorganization.

Edwin L. Read, chairman of the board of the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, 4752 Broadway, which closed last Monday, said yesterday that he was confident that the bank can be successfully reorganized. Prompt closing of the bank saved a considerable proportion of the $250,000 cash on hand, it was said.

Two committees, one representing the stockholders and one representing the business men of the community, were appointed to reorganize the Inland-Irving National bank, 4717 Irving Park boulevard.

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

Hint It Holds Key to Girl's Murder.

gether, concerned a young woman resembling Starr in a state of reeling intoxication in the lobby of the Chanin building in 42d street last Friday afternoon.

Her dress was torn, her hair dishevled, and she appeared quite drunk, the witnesses agreed. The men who believe they were the last to see Starr before her fateful Long Island trip are Patrolmen Peter Billocid, 81 Brokman, taxi driver; Richard F. Finley, elevator man, and Carlisle Norwood, a tenant in the Chanin building.

Divided Over Identity.

Two of the men who saw her identified the body before cremation, but the other two were not so sure. The taxi driver said he drove the girl to Flushing, which is on the way to Long Beach, and that when she became noisy he put her out in front of a drug store there.

An elder woman, known to Chanin building attendants as a "character" was along when the girl first appeared at the 42d street address. She is reported to have said:

"Have some one watch her; she has a lot of money."

The credibility of the identification is affected by the fact that the taxi driver insists his fare was intoxicated and evidence that the girl had a purse stuffed full of bills. When Starr left home that morning she had only $4 with her and the medical examiner has said that an autopsy showed no signs of alcohol in her body.

Died of Forcible Drowning.

Dr. Otto Schultz, who performed the autopsy, told the jurors the cause of Starr's death was forcible drowning, that she was unconscious when put in the water and that she had not been criminally assaulted but had been severely beaten.

Francis Peabody Hamlin, young Boston society man and cruise director for the Cunard line, appeared before the jurors. Mr. Hamlin, it was said, told the same story he told Mr. Edwards in Boston—that he knew Starr but had not seen her shortly before her death, as had been believed by the girl's parents.

The New York artists who testified were Harry Stoner, a Midtown painter, and Edwin Megaragee, well known painter of animal life, who has a studio in Greenwich Village. Both were mentioned either by name or initials in the first of Starr's diaries.

She Worked as Model.

Mr. Megaragee, it was said, told the jurors that Starr had posed for him a couple of years ago and that he considered her a good model. He said she made considerable money posing for artists. Both artists characterized Starr as a moody, temperamental girl.

Regarding the Franconia incident of May 29, a taxi driver told of seeing the girl leave in an intoxicated condition at the Cunard pier. She had been taken off the liner, which had just sailed, in a tug. The taximan gave her a lemon to help sober her.

Another cabby told of driving Starr to her home. He said she asked him to let her out at a Fifth avenue address but suddenly changed her mind.

"Take me back to the pier. What time is the next sailing?" she asked. The driver said it was not until next week.

Helped Her up Steps.

So she told him to drive to her house in St. Luke's place. Staggering and weeping, she could not climb the steps alone, so the driver helped her to the third floor apartment.

District Attorney Edwards read from the first diary to the jurors. The leaves numbered more than fifty, according to Inspector Harold R. King, who has been working with Mr. Edwards on the case. It was promised that extracts from the diary would be made public Monday.

An afternoon paper today stated it had learned that Starr was in love with Dr. J. Jameson Carr, ship's doctor of the Franconia. The paper said it learned from a woman passenger that once, on an ocean voyage, a stewardess called Carr to attend Starr and the physician urged her to give up liquor.

Meanwhile detectives were working their hardest to find the dead girl's underclothing, hat, and coat. They were not on the body when it was found on the beach. The coat, a fur-collared modish one, was purchased at a department store, where it was marked down from $135 to $70. Starr was very proud of it.

More About the Family.

Another Faithfull home was discovered in Manhattan this afternoon. Between Oct. 1 and Nov. 20 of last year Faithfull occupied a small apartment on West 12th street several blocks from his present St. Luke's place address. His family was in London at the time. This angle is interesting to the authorities because, according to advice from London, Faithful or some one else edrly in November forwarded to a London banker $5,000 to the credit of his wife. At that time Faithfull, in his 12th street apartment, was cooking his own meals on a gas stove and spending his days in chemical experiments with a cat and dog and his only companions.

Meanwhile efforts to find out whether Starr carried insurance were met by rebuffs from the family, the stepfather insisting the matter was too personal to discuss.

Eight Reported Killed in Turkish Mine Explosion

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 12.—(AP)—Eight men were reported to have been killed today in an explosion at the Grisow mines near Zonguldak.

STARR PLANNED TO SAIL ON FRANCONIA, HER LETTERS REVEAL

LONDON, June 13 [Saturday].—(AP)—The Daily Mail today publishes extracts of letters from Miss Starr Faithfull to an unnamed friend in England, in which she told of plans to visit England.

"I have my passage booked on the Franconia, sailing from New York May 30," one of the letters read. "A friend of mine is sailing on that boat, which explains my decision.

"After the boat has passed the Statue of Liberty I shall believe in God, fairies, and Santa Claus."

Writing from St. Luke's place in New York, without giving a date, Miss Faithfull said in one of the letters:

"I wish I was starving in Branerton street in Chelsea with the roof falling in and the rain pouring in—anything but this.

"Do you know where I wish I was at this moment? I wish I were having a nice, long double whisky with you at the Six Bells (a saloon in Chelsea). Everything now seems so arid, blank, negative, and futile that I wish some geographical phenomenon would wipe America off the map."

Another extract read:

"I am more bored by my native land. If I were a man I would join the foreign legion and forget my past. . . . Yesterday I swear I was completely overcome by depression. New York seemed like a huge graveyard and the skyline didn't thrill me a bit. It just looked like elongated dominoes and perfectly ridiculous.

"Everything here seems like a most awful anti-climax. I realize that my depressed attitude is far from admirable, but if I 'made an effort' I think it would be like bursting a blood vessel mentally."

The Daily Sketch says that Scotland Yard, despite denials, is working on the death of Starr Faithfull at the request of New York police. The paper said that yesterday a search was made throughout London for certain man and women friends of Miss Faithfull. Officers already have interviewed two or these, it was said, and their statements will be sent to New York.

The Daily Express publishes an interview by an unnamed physician to the effect that he saved the life of Starr Faithfull two years ago after she had taken an overdose of a sedative drug.

Asked the reasons for her action, she was quoted by him as saying:

"I have nothing to live for. Somebody has let me down very badly."

HOPE TO SPEED REMAP AND TAX LAWS NEXT WEEK

Amendments on Monday, Vote Tuesday, Is Plan.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—Senate leaders today prepared for quick action next week on congressional reapportionment—which passed the house yesterday with 2 votes to spare—and on the proposals for the relief of Cook county taxpayers as embodied in the eleven bills sponsored by the Chicago real estate board.

A. O. GALVIN.

Amendments worked out by yesterday's conference of taxation experts with a view of making the measures satisfactory to all groups have been prepared. A. O. Galvin [Rep., Chicago], who introduced the bills, announced he would present the amendments Monday, when the bill will be on second reading, and it is planned to get a vote in the house Tuesday.

Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield], said tonight that as soon as the bills reached the senate, which should be on the same day as they pass the house, he would call the revenue committee together forthwith and have the bills reported out, with a view of getting them to vote by Friday.

Summary of Tax Proposals.

The three chief proposals embraced in the eleven bills are:

1. Semi-annual payment of taxes.
2. Postponement of the dates on which delinquent taxes begin to gather penalties.
3. A twenty year bond issue to fund the 1930 taxes.

Attorney General Carlstrom sent an opinion to the house on those of the measures which were submitted to him, saying they are constitutional.

"These proposals," said Senator Searcy, "appear to be constructive measures which will lighten the tax burden on Cook county taxpayers. From all indications they may prevent many a small property holder from losing his holdings. If passed by the house they will get a clear track in the senate. I shall get them through the revenue committee without delay and I think there is little doubt that the senate will pass them without trouble."

Remap Flaws Pointed Out.

One or two flaws in the congressional remap which went through the house yesterday were pointed out this afternoon by Minority Leader Iroe. In trimming up the Cook county districts to remove the opposition of some Republican members all of Calumet was put in one district and part of Calumet in another district. It will require an amendment in the senate.

The bill is on second reading in the senate. It was rushed to the upper chamber soon after its passage by the house and advanced on the calendar. The amendments are expected to go in Tuesday, and the bill put to a vote Wednesday or Thursday. It will then require a vote in the house to concur in the amendments.

Senate leaders said today 33 votes were lined up—or seven more than the constitutional majority of 26.

Cite Safety Record in Plea for Drivers' License Bill

BY HAL FOUST.

The Chicago Safety council yesterday cited the state's experience in licensing chauffeurs as an argument in favor of licensing all automobile drivers as provided in a bill pending in Springfield.

CHARLES L. RICE.

"The accident records of commercial vehicles as compared with private passenger cars," said Charles L. Rice, president of the council, "prove conclusively the value of examining all drivers and providing them with a license revokable for misconduct behind the wheel.

"The local figures are inadequte but we have national figures showing that fatalities due to private cars have increased thirty-seven per cent from 1927 to 1930, while deaths due to trucks have dropped fourteen per cent and the toll of taxicabs has fallen twenty-five per cent and the fatalities due to buses have decreased nineteen per cent. Private passenger cars, for the most part, are operated by unlicensed drivers, while trucks, taxicabs, and buses are operated by licensed chauffeurs."

Chicago Figures Given.

The records of the Chicago police department show 18.1 per cent of the city's accidents are due to chauffeur driven vehicles, which comprise 13.4 per cent of the vehicles in Chicago. However, the average commercial vehicle, especially taxicabs, cover many more miles of streets than does the average private passenger car.

The secretary of state maintains an office at 608 South Dearborn for licensing chauffeurs. Applicants, at the rate of from 5,000 to 8,000 a year, are examined regarding their knowledge of traffic laws and are given a test drive to qualify them for licenses. F. F. Anderson, chief clerk, said that ten or fifteen out of every hundred applicants fail to pass the tests. In 1930 eight licenses were revoked after conviction for driving while intoxicated.

COUNTY HIGHWAY QUIZ

The roads and bridges committee of the county board yesterday began an investigation of the procedure followed by the county highway department in acquiring rights of way for new roads. The department had been criticized for delaying work on state highway projects through its failure to push condemnation proceedings.

Three specific projects were cited by the commissioners. They were Algonquin road from Des Plaines to Algonquin, Higgins road from Orchard place to Cumberland road, and a three mile stretch of Cicero avenue in New Trier township. It was pointed out to George A. Quinlan, county superintendent of highways, that the state had awarded contracts for these pavements from one to two years ago but that only part of the work has been completed because the necessary rights of way have not been obtained.

Quinlan declared that it was the fault of the department's law department over which, he said, he has no supervision. E. L. Mulcahy, highway attorney, was ordered to submit a report at once on the work being done by his office.

QUESTION FORMER SWEETHEART OF MURDERED GIRL

Find Body in Quarry Pool; Escort Missing.

Lima, O., June 12.—(AP)—A former sweetheart of 17 year old Thelma Woods, whose body was found in an old stone quarry near here today, was held for questioning by police tonight. No charge was filed against him.

Lima, O., June 12.—[Special.]—Wrapped in a gunny sack and weighted with iron, the body of Thelma Woods, 17, missing from her home here since May 30, when she attended a dance with Earl Truesdale, 20, was found in an abandoned quarry pond this afternoon.

The girl's hands were tied behind her back and barrel hoops were used as a boatlike affair to hold the weights lashed to the side. A gash on her head was believed to have been used by a blow or a bullet.

Hunt Youth's Body.

Truesdale's body also is being sought in the quarry.

Search for the bodies was begun when Truesdale's automobile was found on the bank of the quarry May 31. He had accompanied Miss Woods to McCullough amusement park here the night of May 30, a day after he first met the girl.

Finding of iron bars in the sack around the girl's head afforded an explanation of why repeated efforts to dynamite the bodies from the water had failed.

Miss Woods was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Woods, Lima. Truesdale, the son of Donald Truesdale, had been employed as a farm hand, near Beaver Dam, O.

Broadcast Truesdale's Description.

The search for the missing boy and girl has attracted wide attention throughout the middle west and descriptions of them have been given broadcast to virtually every city of importance.

The authorities also are working on the theory young Truesdale may have been taken away from the vicinity of Lima by the murderers, but are inclined to believe the persons who killed the girl also killed her escort.

AMERICAN DIVERS PUT CABLE UNDER SUNKEN "SUB"

CHEFOO, China, June 12.—(AP)—Divers from the American salvage vessel Pigeon today put a wire cable around the sunken British submarine Poseidon off Weihaiwei despite heavy weather.

Tomorrow the Pigeon and other surface vessels will try to raise the wreck, in which 18 of the crew are believed to have died. The Pigeon, equipped with compressed air apparatus, joined the rescue fleet late yesterday and went to work immediately.

One of the submarine's survivors was taken to a hospital today suffering from the effects of his long immersion.

'JENSEN BARRED IN CARPENTERS' COUNCIL RACE

Forty-five local unions in Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties, composing the Carpenters' district council, will hold the annual election of district officers today. A president, a vice president, secretary-treasurer, and members of the arbitration board and finance committee are to be chosen. The officers have barred the candidacy of Harry C. Jensen, who was president four years ago, on the ground that he did not qualify by actually working at the carpenter trade. Jensen asked for an injunction to halt the election unless his name was placed on the ballot, but Circuit Judge Normoyle refused it.

CANCEL VOYAGES OF OCEAN LINERS; BUSINESS POOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 12.—The unprecedented slump in the trans-Atlantic steamship passenger business has caused the great shipping companies to make drastic cancellations in their sailing schedules. Already nearly 40 voyages of some of the world's largest liners have been canceled. Usually at this time of the year liners are filled with passengers. The situation is unprecedented in the annals of the Atlantic shipping industry.

Most liners carry but a few more passengers than in the winter season.

NAVY IS GAGGED BY HOOVER ON HIS ECONOMY MOVE

White House to Do All Talking, Adams Told.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—One of the most stringent gags ever placed on the navy department by any executive has been put into effect by President Hoover in connection with the current economy program.

All naval officials, including Secretary of the Navy Adams, now are under strict orders not to disclose any features of the Hoover plans for curtailing the activities of the navy department during the coming fiscal year beginning July 1.

Cuts in Marine Strength.

Secretary Adams today had but one response for all questions touching on the navy's plans for saving $15,000,000 during the next year. This was that the White House had given strict instructions that there was to be no publicity given out at the navy department regarding the economy program. The White House, Mr. Adams said, has advised that it will give out all information to be made public.

Notwithstanding the secrecy orders, it has been developed that the Hoover program calls for cuts in naval aviation, a reduction in marine strength, cuts in civilian personnel, some curtailment of the training activity of the fleet, possibly the decommissioning of a number of naval vessels, including the battleship Wyoming, and economy in fuel oil made by having all ships travel at the most economical speeds whenever possible.

Abandon Plans for 45 Planes.

Forty-five patrol airplanes appropriated for by congress last year for use at Coco Solo and Pearl Harbor will be trimmed from the navy's building plans as an economy move. By abandoning those ships the navy will save on first building costs, in personnel to man them, and administration. As a result naval personnel will be reduced in number. No cut in the number of planes actually with the fleet is to be made, so far as is known now. The naval cuts hits planes intended for land stations at outlying possessions.

By cutting the number of planes intended for these places the President put a step highly pleasing to the army, for this branch of the national defense service long has contended the navy has no right to have land based aircraft.

"PRESIDENTIAL" BEES DISTURBED AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—"Presidential bees" came to light today in such numbers as Washington, accustomed as it is to the species, least quite unusual.

Incidentally, they almost gave the members of the young Republican committee an unexpectedly warm welcome when the delegates appeared at the White House to meet the President.

Just before the reception began the White House gardeners felled a big hollow maple and disturbed a large hive of bees within its trunk. As the delegates walked onto the south lawn of the executive mansion, the bees swarmed in front of the portico.

Wild honey is to become a familiar dish on the presidential table, as one gardener was quick enough to get a container and gather up about 15 pounds.

Evansville, Ind., June 12.—[Special.] Kissing your wife in public is not disorderly conduct, according to Charles J. Bichel, city judge. Clyde Stone was held on a disorderly conduct charge by a policeman who saw him kiss Mrs. Stone as she left him to enter the place where she is employed.

ROMANTIC HISTORY OF 'OLD GLORY' IS RETOLD ON FLAG ANNIVERSARY

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—Realizing that tomorrow will be the 154th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the official flag of the United States, the George Washington bicentennial commission today issued a statement setting forth famous first occasions in the flag's history.

According to the commission, the flag's first display by the continental army was on Aug. 3, 1777, at Fort Stanwix, N. Y., during an attack by the British. It was first carried in battle by George Washington's troops at Brandywine on Sept. 11, 1777, and was first saluted by the British at the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga on Oct. 17, 1777.

"Maj. Paul Jones," the statement read, "took the first naval salute to the Stars and Stripes on Feb. 14, 1778, when he sailed his ship Ranger into the harbor of Quibern, France. In the same ship he forced the first striking of colors to our flag by the British at Dublin on April 24, 1778. The ship Bedford carried the first American flag into an English port on Feb. 2, 1781, and it was first carried around the world by the ship Columbia, sailing from Boston in September, 1787."

"It was first flown in battle in the navy by the United States frigate Essex in 1813," the statement continued. "The next year Francis Scott Key wrote 'The Star Spangled Banner.' In 1818 congress decreed that henceforth a new star should be added to the admission of each new state to the Union; but, before that, on Jan. 13, 1794, after Vermont and Kentucky had been admitted to the Union, the stars and stripes were increased to fifteen. The 1818 congress reduced the stripes to thirteen and decreed a new star for each new state, bringing the number of stars to twenty.

"On April 6, 1909, Admiral Pearty carried the first American flag at the north pole. Within the last decade General Byrd has carried it to both the poles."

POPE REPLIES TO FASCIST REGRETS OVER INCIDENTS

Report Pontiff Accepts Peace Overture.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 12.—The flames of the quarrel between the Fascist government and the holy see over the alleged political activities of the Catholic Action society had died down to such an extent today—nineteen days after they flared up—that the government announced that so far as it is concerned the whole business is settled.

DINO GRANDI. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

In Vatican circles, too, it was allowed to become known that the squabble is considered ended, and that the reply of Pope Pius XI to the last Italian note, which expressed regrets for the violence against the church, will be in the Fascist government's hands by Monday. The pope's reply was handed today to Borgoncini Duca, papal nuncia to ome, with instructions to deliver it to Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister. While the contents of the note were not made public, it was reported to be conciliatory.

Hope to Renew Processions.

Some further notes may be entailed in the ultimate clarification of interpretation of article 43 of the Lateran treaty, which both sides claim the other violated, but it is confidently expected that there will be no remaining obstacles to proceeding with the festivities scheduled for June 21 in celebration of the anniversary of St. Anthony of Padua, which is an important event in Catholic Italy, and which will be marred if the pope's interdiction on public processions remains in effect until then.

The Fascists appeared to think tonight that their whole objective had been won with last night's publication in Osservatore Romano, Vatican organ, of the announcement that hereafter the bishops would direct the Catholic Action association directly, without passing their authority through the diocesan juntas of laymen.

One Chance of Friction.

One point on which there remains the possibility of friction, and one which has caused much resentment in Fascist circles, is the pope's continued appeal to the world, as attested through the telegrams of sympathy which have come to the Vatican from all parts of the world. This is considered by the Fascists as an attempt to mobilize foreign opinion to influence what is regarded as a purely internal Italian affair.

Osservatore Romano tonight printed messages from Cardinal Hayes of New York and Archbishop MacNicholas of Cincinnati, and a score of others expressing condolences to the pope for his grief and admiration for the fight he is waging in behalf of the rights of the church to educate the Catholic youth.

It was announced today that there had been manifestations among the Catholics at Afragola, Nicastro, and Campobasso against the ban on religious processions and that the people have held them without the presence of the clergy.

3 FLYERS ESCAPE BEING SUCKED INTO HOT CRATER

CHIGNIK, Alaska, June 12.—(AP)—Man for the first time has flown over the crater of Aniakchak volcano on the south shore of the Alaska peninsula, but only after a battle against the suction of air towards the hot crater, 21 miles in circumference. The suction pulled the airplane toward the pit and only a sudden dive away from the gaseous mouth saved the ship from plunging into the hole.

A plane piloted by Harry Blunt, with Al Monsen, mechanic, and carrying the Rev. Bernard J. Hubbard of Santa Clara, Cal., the "glacier priest," soared over the world's largest active crater yesterday, taking off from Chignik bay. Sailing over some crags, several huge eagles attacked the plane, Father Hubbard reported, sneaking from behind on a short turn and diving in. The propeller wash turned them over like chips on the ocean, but screaming, they came back for more until outdistanced.

Sulphur fumes were noticeable 40 miles from the volcano and at a 6,000 foot elevation, the priest said. Pilot Blunt maneuvered the plane to a height where a dash could be made over the crater. The crater was black and emitting hot gasses. Then as the cold air began to suck the machine downwards, Blunt dove away from the crater, roared into the canyon of the Aniakchak river and brought the plane to a landing on Kujulik bay.

RUMANIA GIVES 51 SPIES LONG PRISON TERMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, June 12.—A Rumanian court martial tonight imposed heavy prison sentences on 51 persons, charged with espionage against Rumania. Seven others were acquitted.

The case dates back to last October, when the Rumanian political police discovered a gigantic espionage organization, with branches in every city in the country. More than 100 arrests were made. The police discovered a secret wireless station from which the results of the organization's work were transmitted to Vienna, their chief headquarters. The police believed the spies were working for Russia, although other nations were said to have furnished part of the plentiful funds which the organization possessed.

Maj. Versaru, said to be the leader of the band, was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment and dismissed from the army. Five others were given 15 years each and two 12 years each. Jenny Lohr, famous woman spy, was given ten years and the others one to five years.

AUSTRALIA LABOR CAUCUS PUTS O. K. ON ECONOMY PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANBERRA, Australia.—Prime Minister Scullin and Edward G. Theodore, treasurer of the commonwealth government, were victorious today in the federal labor caucus by a two to one majority. The caucus indorsed the economy decision made at the recent Melbourne conference, involving compulsory reductions in pensions and wages, and the voluntary conversion of government bonds.

As a result of this victory, parliamentary approval of the measure is assured, and a return to sounder conditions, both in government and private finance, is expected.

The banks have undertaken to carry government deficits, thus enabling the state governments to meet all their liabilities.

ADVISORY GROUP DECLINES TO ACT ON TAX FUNDING

Members of the mayor's advisory committee yesterday decided to take no stand on the legislative bill, fostered by Attorney General Carlstrom, to fund the 1930 taxes over a period twenty years.

Arguments against the bill, according to reports, were advanced by representatives of the Civic federation and the bureau of public efficiency. They are said to have claimed that the bill not only would set a bad precedent in that it would get the taxpayers' out of the habit of paying taxes, but also would add to the taxpayers' burden through increased interest charges on the estimate of $250,000,000 taxes.

DOUMER TO TAKE PRESIDENT'S SEAT IN FRANCE TODAY

Delicate Affairs of State Face New Head.

PARIS, June 12.—(AP)—The massive plaque of the grand master of the Legion of Honor, together with its broad scarf of red, will be affixed to the bosom of Paul Doumer tomorrow—and from that moment he will be the thirteenth head of a French republican government that faces many problems.

Immediately after the ceremony of inauguration, which will take place in the Elysee palace, Gaston Doumergue, newly married retiring president of France, who has headed the state for seven years, will catch a train for the quiet city of Toulouse, near which he and his bride have prepared their home. M. Doumergue will leave many delicate matters in the hands of his successor.

He will leave also Pierre Laval, who will continue as premier.

Will Ask Cabinet to Stay.

In accordance with precedent, Premier Laval's cabinet will present its collective resignation in order that the new president may be free to ask some one else to form a new ministry. However, President Elect Doumer already has indicated that Laval and his ministry will be asked to continue at their posts.

The first pressing problem M. Doumer and M. Laval must consider is the naval construction program, for which they must attempt to obtain an appropriation from parliament. This construction program takes in a battle cruiser of 23,333 tons, designed to outclass Germany's New Deutschland, and a number of smaller swift craft to guard France's colonial empire.

The nation has been made more empire conscious than ever by the current colonial exposition in Paris, which is an object lesson in the potentialities of the overseas domain.

The Laval cabinet, with the new lease on life it will obtain under the new government, also will be charged with the duty of carrying on vigorously the naval negotiations in Italy in the hope that the accords signed March 1 may be made workable. The general political relations between France and Italy now are considered good.

War Debt Problem Looms.

The reparations problem also faces the incoming government—and for France that means resistance against all attempts, either by former foes or former allies, to reduce the nation's share of payments under the Young plan.

The age old problem of France's relations with Germany will crop up again, especially in reference to the proposed Austro-German customs union, of which the French view is extremely skeptical. It is predicted, however, that the nation will strive for better relations with Germany.

Mennonites Ban Radios as Sin Against Church

KITCHENER, Ont., June 12.—(AP)—The Amish Mennonite conference of Ontario, concluding its convention today, decreed that radios must be banned from all Amish Mennonite homes. The sect classifies radios as musical instruments, which have been forbidden by the church since it was founded. The penalty for violation of the regulation is excommunication.

PROVIDE JOINT VOTE FOR HEAD OF CRIME COURT

The judges of the Superior court yesterday approved a resolution which provides for the election of the chief justice of the Criminal court at a joint meeting of the judges of the Superior and Circuit courts. It has been the policy for the Superior court justices to elect the chief justice of the Criminal court one year and the Circuit court justices to hold the election the next year.

The resolution passed yesterday pointed out that the Superior court usually supplies two-thirds of the judges sitting on the Criminal court bench and that therefore it should have more authority in deciding who shall be the chief justice. The effect of the resolution will be to give the Superior court judges control of the election since they outnumber the Circuit court judges 22 to 14.

The election will be held next Friday. Judges Philip J. Finnegan, Michael Feinberg and Harry M. Fisher, all of the Circuit court, are candidates for the chief justiceship. Some of the judges, it has been reported, are in favor of giving Chief Justice John P. McGoorty, who was elected from the superior bench, a second successive term.

EX-MARINE FINDS LIFE TOO QUIET HERE; HE'S FINED

Adam Prushinski, 22 years old, 2143 North Oakley avenue, an ex-marine, returned to Chicago not long ago after several years of service in the orient. Among other souvenirs that he brought from China was a large quantity of fancy yellow, red and green firecrackers which he promptly set off in Holstein park to celebrate.

"It was too quiet around here," Adams told Judge Alfred O. Erickson in Shakespeare avenue court yesterday when he was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct by Charles Featherly, manager of the park. "Besides," added Adam, "the Fourth of July is next month."

The judge fined Prushinski two dollars.

JUDGE ASSAILS USE OF TRIALS AS ENTERTAINMENT

Asks Press to Tone Down Sensational Reports.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 12. — In charging the grand jury at the Cornwall assizes at Bodmin, which is considering three criminal cases, Justice Roche today made a plea to the public not to regard murder trials as spectacles or entertainment and he asked the press to refrain from spreading sensational reports which were likely to influence justice.

Difficulties have arisen elsewhere owing to the newspaper reports, the judge said, pointing out that publicity was having an increasingly bad effect on juries. He also cautioned his audience against any manifestations while in the courtroom.

Refers to Murder Case.

One of today's cases was a double murder charge against Mrs. Sarah Annie Hearn, who was held in a sensational poisoning plot. The others involved a youth charged with murdering an old woman, and a person charged with attempted murder.

Referring to the Hearn trial, Justice Roche said:

"It is of supreme importance that public interest does not lead to interference with the quiet investigation of the matter on hand and that it does not bias the decision of the jury. The task of the press is not altogether easy owing to the impossibility of publishing a verbatim report and the difficulty of compression.

"Trial Not Entertainment."

"But a solution to this difficulty, and to all similar difficulties, is to bear the principle in mind that the reports of a judicial investigation are not a spectacle or entertainment. They are trials by court and jury, and nothing must be done to influence a decision.

AMELIA EARHART IS UNHURT WHEN HER AUTOGYRO CRASHES

Abilene, Tex., June 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam who is attempting a cross country autogyro flight cracked up here today. Her machine failed to develop sufficient momentum on the takeoff and crashed into a field of parked automobiles near the Abilene airport hangars. The aviatrix escaped uninjured, but her craft was greatly damaged.

Two automobiles were also damaged but a survey showed that none of their occupants was injured. Miss Earhart climbed out of her disabled machine and walked away, apparently little excited over the accident. The damage to the autogiro was said to be "considerable" but just how extensive the repairs needed before the flight can be resumed could not immediately be determined.

Mrs. Putnam, who was the first woman to cross the Atlantic in an airplane, told mechanics that she had control of her "flying windmill" at all times but that she couldn't develop enough "lift" to clear the automobiles. When she realized her plight she tried to set her machine down in a cleared space among the cars but struck two of them in the air.

whether it is done by means of a report, head lines, which are very often to be misleading, or by writing any description or other matter calculated to affect a proper and orderly trial.

Mrs. Hearn is accused of poisoning her sister, Miss Everard, and Mrs. Alice Thomas, the wife of a neighboring farmer.

Nonunion Concern Voted County Printing Contract

The public service committee of the county board yesterday voted to award the contract for the printing of the 1930 personal property assessment lists to the Magill-Weinsheimer Co. on its low bid of $5,860. Commissioner Mary McEnerney, an official of a labor union, sought to have the contract awarded to the Chicago Printers, a union concern, which submitted a bid of $8,690, nearly $3,000 higher than the low bid. The Magill-Weinsheimer Co., which is an open shop, proposes to print the lists by the planographing method.

CITY TO OPPOSE INJUNCTION ON TRANSIT FUND

Claim Writ Would Peril Work Already Done.

Contending that complete stoppage of expenditure from the transit fund for subway investigations would nullify much work already accomplished, attorneys for the city will ask Judge William J. Lindsay in the Superior court today to hold up the injunction which he has indicated he will issue against such expenditures.

W. J. LINDSAY. (TRIBUNE Photo.)

Corporation Counsel Sexton and Walter L. Fisher, city transit attorney, will urge that issuance of the temporary injunction be delayed until a survey determines what further reductions may be made in the staff of the subway branch of the board of local improvements.

Staff Cut Two-Thirds.

The survey will be carried out by the two attorneys. President Lindheimer of the board of local improvements and Commissioner of Public Works Sprague. They conferred yesterday with Mayor Cermak and James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission.

"It was pointed out," the mayor said, "that there are some things that must be carried on or all the work up to the present time will be nullified. We have already cut the staff two-thirds, and there may be a few more employes that can be eliminated.

Decision Due Today.

Judge Lindsay indicated a week ago that he would issue the temporary injunction today, at the request of Attorney Stephen A. Foster, representing two taxpayers. The court delayed action a week to permit the corporation counsel to be heard.

Attorney Foster asked a bar on expenditures from the transit fund on the grounds that the legality of the transit ordinance, under which the expenditures are being made, is still to be approved by the courts.

CALLS VERMONT LAX IN FIGHTING FOR U. S. LIBERTY

Boston, Mass., June 12.—(AP)—Vermont withheld any alliance with the 13 original colonies in the war with England until it was sure which was to be the victor, Jenny Waldron told a master in federal court today. Waldron, a former attorney general of New Hampshire, is presenting his state's case in a boundary dispute with Vermont.

Waldron quoted historians with a view to showing that the state also tried to avoid association with the colonies after the revolution if it could be "decently avoided," so as to remain free from the payment of debts incurred in the war by the colonies.

The New Hampshire counsel read a document purporting to show that Vermont's patriotism during the revolution was wholly local and that the state itself took no war risks until it was sure who was going to win the war. He said the state prospered and increased while the other states fought the war.

Waldron also read a report made by British agents to their commander at the time Vermont was negotiating with Great Britain during the revolution. These agents reported that Vermont planned to prevent invasion by either the colonies or Great Britain and to string out negotiations until such a time as it could be satisfied who the victor was to be. The agents reported that those favoring the colonies in Vermont dared not admit their beliefs in public.

United States Senator Warren R. Austin, special counsel for Vermont, in his arguments had contended that Vermont did the colonies a great favor by carrying on negotiations with Great Britain with the sole intent of aiding the colonists by holding off an invasion from Canada.

WIFE OF JUDGE HURT IN CRASH ON NORTH SHORE

Mrs. Helen Williams, 31 years old, wife of Judge Noland Williams of Dallas, Tex., was seriously injured yesterday when the automobile in which she and her husband were driving crashed into the rear of another car at Hibbard road and Lake avenue, Wilmette. At the Evanston hospital, where they were taken, it was said that Mrs. Williams was suffering from a concussion of the brain.

The Williams had been visiting in Kenilworth and were en route to Detroit, Mich., when the accident happened. Their machine struck a car being driven by Mrs. T. H. Kramer, 2915 Leland avenue, when the latter stopped suddenly. Judge Williams received minor bruises.

Henry Simolton, 63 years old, colored, 5526 South Michigan avenue, died at the county hospital of injuries received Wednesday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Forrest Files, 4744 Evans avenue, at 55th street and Michigan avenue.

This death increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 502.

DR. L. O. HOWARD RECEIVES 1931 CAPPER AWARD

A committee of agricultural leaders headed by President F. D. Farrell of Kansas State Agricultural college, yesterday chose Dr. L. O. Howard of Washington, D. C., noted entomologist, as the recipient of the 1931 Capper award.

The award, made annually for distinguished service to American agriculture, provides a gold medal and $5,000. The committee announcing the award, which met yesterday at the Drake hotel, includes, besides Dr. Farrell, the following: Carl B. Gray, president Union Pacific system; Alexander Legge, president International Harvester company; H. A. Morgan, president University of Tennessee, and Walter T. Swingle, United States department of agriculture.

Dr. Howard served in the federal department of agriculture for fifty years, during 34 of which he was chief of the entomological bureau. He is credited with "organizing and developing the biological method of insect control which contributes millions of dollars annually in preventing losses to agriculture.

Dr. S. M. Babcock, University of Wisconsin, inventor of the butterfat testing method in common use, was last year's Capper award recipient.

WITHDRAW CASH FROM BANKS AND ROBBERS GET IT

Menacing him with a revolver, a bandit late last night held up Frank Caliendo in his vegetable and fruit store at 6807 Stony Island avenue and escaped with $1,600. Caliendo told police that $900 of the sum represented withdrawals from a bank. The remainder was an accumulation which he had not deposited.

Ole Olson, 4341 Ellis avenue, a carpenter, withdrew $600 yesterday from a neighborhood bank, fearing for the safety of his money. Pickpockets took it from him a few hours later on a Wabash avenue street car.

One Injured, 50 Escape in Explosion of Paint Tank

One man was slightly injured and 50 others were driven from the paint shop of the U. S. Gypsum company at Bloomingdale road and Kostner avenue yesterday when a paint tank exploded and fire followed. Stacey Black, 40 years old, 1008 North Clark street, was the injured man.

MYSTERY VEILS TAG DAY PLANS FOR TOMORROW

No Permit Given, City Officials Say.

Mystery surrounds the plans announced yesterday by five Jewish organizations in Chicago for a city wide tag day to be held tomorrow in behalf of the Jewish national fund for the purchase of land in Palestine.

From no source last night could it be learned where the groups had received permission to conduct a tag day. At the same time workers of the Chicago Junior Hadassah, Senior Hadassah, Volunteers of Zion, Junior Mizrachi, Young Israel and Avukah were going ahead making arrangements for tagging with headquarters in many sections of the city and in the loop.

Sure Arrangements Are Made.

"I am quite sure everything has been arranged," declared Mrs. Eli Baron, chairman of the tag day committee. "We have heard nothing to the contrary."

Ald. Sheldon W. Govier, chairman of the tag day sub-committee of the council finance committee, said that to his knowledge the tag day has not been authorized, as the city ordinance provides for four tag days and any allowed in excess of that number can only be on authority granted by the city council. These tag days organizations are the Poppy Day association, Chicago Children's Benefit league, Chicago Federation of Aged and Adult Charities, and the Chicago Federated Charities.

"If the law is violated tomorrow it will be done by the police department and no one else," Ald. Govier asserted. "There was no legislation sanctioning the tag day, and it is up to the police to enforce the ordinance."

Alcock Gets No Request.

Acting Commissioner Alcock said he had received no requests to issue a permit for the tag day. When asked what the police would do he said, "I suppose the police will stop them."

Mayor Cermak said he knew nothing of the proposed tag day.

Ald. Govier, in discussing the tag day, said:

"It isn't fair to impose so many tag days on the public. For years we have been fighting to reduce the number of tag days. This spring we thought he had succeeded when we got the veterans' groups to agree on a single day. If the rules are let down for one group, even though it may be worthy, a precedent is set that will undo all we have accomplished toward the protection of the public."

TWO POLICEMEN DISMISSED BY MERIT BOARD

Two patrolmen were dismissed from the police force yesterday by the civil service commission, and a third was fined 30 days' pay for leaving his post without permission.

Patrolman William B. Cashman of the Morgan Park station, one of those dismissed, had been suspended several times and dismissed twice before. He was reinstated once by the previous civil service commission, and again, on March 19 of this year, by court order.

Patrolman Cashman was suspended again on May 2, on the charge that he left his post of duty at a polling place in the election of April 7, and failed to return. It was on that charge that he was dismissed. Patrolman Albert Rosenquist of the traffic division was dismissed on a charge of intoxication.

Patrolman William J. Hanley of the Sheffield avenue station, was fined. He left his post on May 21 to go to the home of Mrs. M. Rowan, 536 Arthington street. He asserted that she had asked him to protect her from her husband, from whom she was separated.

BOY, 15, PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN POLICE SLAYING

Varner Corry, fifteen year old boy indicted for the murder of Policeman Edward B. Smith in the swimming pool of the John Marshall High school, pleaded not guilty to the charge when he was arraigned in Criminal court before Judge John P. McGoorty yesterday.

The boy appeared in court with 20 other prisoners. He was without necktie or coat and answered Judge McGoorty's questions in a low voice. He said he had an attorney and the court assigned the case to Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

Miss Jessie Binford, head of the Juvenile Protective association, requested the judge to assign the case to the Juvenile court for hearing. She said a number of club women had asked her to intercede in the boy's behalf. Judge McGoorty said that the law requires that the Corry boy be tried in Criminal court.

FINED FOR BEATING SISTER.

Victor Misek, 26 years old, 2560 Emerald avenue, was fined $25 yesterday in the Stockyards court by Judge Samuel H. Trude on the charge of beating his sister, Mary, 27 years old, a deaf-mute.

CONTRACTOR WINS IN APPEAL ON U. S. TAX FRAUD PENALTY

The Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday cleared John Griffiths, Chicago contractor, of charges of fraud in connection with his 1919 income tax statement and granted him a rehearing before the board of tax appeals.

In February, 1929, the board of tax appeals ordered Griffiths to pay $27,455.55 on an item of $87,926.63 in his 1919 income, plus a penalty of $18,727.73 for alleged fraud in failing to report this item. The board denied his request for a rehearing. Yesterday's decision struck out the penalty and gave Griffiths another chance to tell the board of tax appeals how the $87,926 appeared in his 1919 income.

The facts, according to Griffiths' attorneys, Payson Tinkoff, David C. Munson, and Fay W. Johnson, are these: In 1916 the directors of John Griffiths & Son Co., began furnishing personal surety bonds on construction projects and the Griffiths corporation paid the directors the premiums which the company would normally pay insurance companies for handling these bonds.

In four years, 1916 to 1919, inclusive, Griffiths' personal share in these premiums amounted to $87,926.63. He contends that he had instructed his secretary, who was taking care of his tax statement, to charge these premiums to his income year by year, but that in 1919 he found that this was being neglected through a misunderstanding. Then instead of prorating this income over four years, the secretary charged the entire $87,926.63 to Griffiths' 1919 income.

WEALTHY GIRL, MISSING 10 DAYS, PICKED UP HIKING

Slept One Night in Barn, Another on Steps.

South Bend, Ind., June 12.—[Special.]—Clad in a hiking outfit, Mary Elizabeth Wardwell, 24 years old, who was reported missing June 2, was found here this evening. She is the daughter of Addison F. Wardwell, retiring president of the Watertown National Bank of Watertown, N. Y.

Stories to police revealed that Miss Wardwell left Watertown on June 2 with George Reed, 18 years old, of Hobart, Ind., on a hiking trip. They became separated Saturday in Ashtabula, O., and she came on alone, sleeping one night in a barn, and another on a church step.

Meanwhile her father began a search. The trail covered New York state, Ohio, and Indiana. Yesterday Mr. Wardwell arrived in Gary and posted himself on the highway leading into Hobart. His information was that the girl would arrive at Hobart.

Miss Wardwell is socially prominent in the east. She was educated at Florence, Italy, and is an accomplished linguist. The Reed boy gave himself up to police in Buffalo, N. Y., tonight.

Reed Tells His Story.

Reed said he had been traveling about the country a year or so. Two weeks ago he returned to his home in Brownsville, a Watertown suburb. He was walking along one of the main streets of Watertown, he said, when he encountered the banker's daughter. She suggested, so Reed told the police, that they take a trip to Panama or Mexico. He refused. Miss Wardwell left the next day without him, Reed declared, and the following day he started on another nomadic excursion.

From Watertown, Reed said, he went to Hobart, Ind., and back to Ashtabula, O., where, on Wednesday, he met Miss Wardwell by chance. The next day Mary Elizabeth left him, Reed declared. Reed said he wrote to Miss Wardwell's father, Addison F. Wardwell, and then came on to Buffalo.

Italian Banker Gets Five Years in Hatry Crash

MILAN, Italy, June 12.—(AP)—Giovanni Gialdini, Anglo-Italian banker, a partner in the Hatry companies which collapsed with huge financial losses in London in 1929, today was sentenced to five years and ten months imprisonment for fraud.

FRENCH STRIKERS DRIVE OFF POLICE IN 6 HOUR BATTLE

ROUBAIX, France, June 23.—(AP)—Police tonight engaged in a prolonged pitched battle with textile strike demonstrators, said to be led by communists, who had thrown up barricades in the populous Rue de Loghais. Charges by police and mounted gendarmes failed to dislodge the manifestants.

At a late hour the authorities abandoned until daylight all efforts to break down the barricades. The conflict then had lasted for more than six hours, during which time the strikers stoned the police continuously.

Dispatches from Lille, France, on June 2 said that more than 100,000 textile workers of the Roubaix-Tourcoing region were on strike because of reduction in wages. A general strike was feared after wages also were reduced in steel mills in that section. Empty textile factories were under guard in the region, but no previous serious disorders had been reported.

Dr. Loefer Found Guilty of Traffic in Narcotics

Dr. Wilhelm Loefer, physician and operator of a drug store at 1102 Leland avenue, was found guilty of violating the federal anti-narcotic law yesterday in a verdict returned by a jury in Federal Judge John P. Barnes' court. Dr. Loefer was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Mary D. Bailey. He is liable to a maximum fine of $60,000 and a sentence of 60 years in the federal penitentiary on the eight counts on which he was convicted.

R. F. NEWHALL MADE TREASURER OF SOUTH PARKS

R. Frank Newhall, first vice president of the First National bank, which recently absorbed the Foreman State National bank and the Foreman Trust and Savings bank, was yesterday elected treasurer for the south park system at a special meeting of the commissioners.

Mr. Newhall succeeds Oscar G. Foreman, who was chairman of the executive board of the Foreman banks. Mr. Foreman, who had been treasurer for five years, proffered his resignation to the board Thursday. The Foreman banks held some of the park system's funds, which are now transferred to the vaults of the First National bank.

SENATE VOTES JAIL TERM FOR RECKLESS DRIVER

Springfield, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—Amendments to the Garriott reckless driving law have been added in the senate on motion of Senator James J. Barbour [Rep., Evanston], who added a jail sentence and fine to the misdemeanor count already provided in the measure. The same provisions originally were in the bill but the house struck them by an amendment. The bill was advanced to third reading in the senate yesterday and will come up for passage next week. Imprisonment up to one year in jail and a fine not to exceed $1,000 are provided if a person driving recklessly injures a pedestrian.

The BOULEVARD

Our Only Loop Store is at Washington & Dearborn

We moved to this location for two reasons. First—to save over $70,000 a year rent. It was the only thing we could do and continue to give the famous Foreman & Clark values. Second—because it is a more convenient location for our customers. So don't be fooled. Get the greatest clothing values of a lifetime at Foreman & Clark.

Many have borrowed our slogans, copied our ads, and imitated our store-fronts—but no one has ever duplicated our values. We've smashed the sham and pretense of false and unfair competition with solid merit, true service, and absolute satisfaction. Others may seek to reproduce Foreman & Clark methods in part—but never the whole. For instance, our fabrics from the finest mills are ten times tested before they are bought with exactly the same precision instruments used by the U. S. Government Bureau of Standards. What other clothier does that—no matter what his prices? From coat collar to trouser tip our clothing is tailored by the finest group of craftsmen in the land. The finished garments are shipped daily from Foreman & Clark owned, operated, and financed factories. This eliminates the outside grasping, greedy middleman's profits. It holds our retail margin to only 55c on any F & C garment you buy. There, in but a small part, are some of the many reasons why F & C quality can never be equalled at even double or often triple F & C PRE-WAR PRICES—why F & C STANDS ALONE, unique in its leadership of the entire clothing industry, maintaining its position by constant adherance to the highest of all ideals—PERFECTION and PUBLIC PROTECTION.

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a venal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overcome resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will attack the mighty fabric of that mightier engine. I will shake down from its height corruption and bury it beneath the ruins of the abuses it was meant to shelter."

—Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

A LESSON IN DEMAGOGY.

For years after the passage of the Esch-Cummins transportation act professional railroad baiters, notably Brookhart of Iowa, charged that the act guaranteed the railroads 6 per cent on their allegedly inflated capitalization. Any one capable of reading the language of the law must have known this was false. Brookhart and his fellow critics undoubtedly knew it. Their assertion was challenged and its fallacy exposed repeatedly, time and again. But this did not stop it. It was supposed to be good "progressive" politics, and no doubt it was swallowed by thousands who did not trouble to read the law. There is no guaranty of earnings in the transportation act. There were provisions supposed to guide the interstate commerce commission in regulating ratemaking and for the distribution of returns, provided they exceeded 6 per cent. But these provisions were restraints upon profits and anything but a guaranty. The present condition of railroad revenue demonstrates that fact in a sensational manner. Because of the depression of business many railroads have had difficulty in getting revenue enough to meet the interest on their bonds, to say nothing of a return on their common stock. Where was the alleged guaranty while this was happening?

Of course, Brookhart and his friends have shut up on this falsehood. But it ought not to be forgotten by the public and especially by the gullible voters who swallowed it. It is a conclusive test of the reliability of these politicians as leaders of public thought and action. Deliberate falsification ought to retire them from public life. But the public has a short memory.

Meanwhile the people of the west who were so ready to swallow the guaranty myth as a sinister device of greedy corporations would do well to reflect upon the realities they now have before them. They will be wiser if they realize that when the earnings of any enterprise, even great enterprises like the railroads, are unduly limited during favorable times, either directly or by excess profits taxation, ruin is certain to be threatened and be hard, perhaps impossible to escape when hard times arrive, because no surplus has been built up against the bad years. The present plight of the railroads is one of the major factors in this depression and one of the important obstructions to our recovery. It is no victory for the farmer. On the contrary, it has contributed and is contributing to his difficulties as to that of every other class in the country directly or indirectly. There is perhaps nothing that would more widely and more promptly stimulate recovery than a resumption of expenditure by the railroads on upkeep, improvements, and legitimate developments. What prevents them is lack of the financial reserves which a short-sighted policy of restraint upon earnings and heavy taxation have brought about in a period of increasing competition from new agencies of transport and steadily rising costs.

This policy of restriction was the creation of a largely unreasoning hostility kept inflamed chiefly by politicians posing as the friends of the people. No one denies that evils had sprung up in railroad control and management and that restraints were necessary for the protection of the public interest. But government regulation was not permitted to stay within bounds and it has resulted in restrictions which have been injurious not merely to investors but to the public the railroads are expected to serve. This ought to be clear to any sensible mind at this time. There is no common sense in burning down the house to roast a pig. Selfish politicians, concerned only with getting votes to maintain themselves in office, have been chiefly responsible, through confusing and deceiving public opinion, for a condition which is hurtful to the whole country. The railroads are the backbone of the transportation system of the nation and should have the constant support of a constructive policy of regulation. They should be assisted to recover adequate financial resources and enabled to progress in efficiency under changing conditions. To advocate this is to be a friend of the people. To oppose it in the face of experience and fair judgment is to be their enemy.

THE DRIVER BILL.

The bill to require a license of the driver of an automobile makes slow, if any, headway in the legislature, and its chances of getting through at this session are regarded as slight. The sponsors of the bill think highly of it as a remedy for some of the many traffic conditions, but without much evidence. Theoretically, a person permitted to drive a car on the public highways should be of proved qualifications, but it is quite apparent that a test even if made scrupulously would not determine the probabilities of behavior which are decisive in the safety of the highways.

That the tests would be made scrupulously in our administration of highway laws is not to be believed. The chances are all that another administrative function would be added, with no results appreciably good. In the meanwhile another joss would be erected to the great American superstition that acts of the legislature can correct everything. It is only occasionally that an accident is caused by a driver so disqualified by physical or mental defects that he would have been detected as unfit in the tests for a license. Accidents are caused by the abuse of the roads by drivers expert enough to pass any tests. Conduct ranging from mischievous to criminal produces most of the avoidable accidents on the highways, and the persons responsible are entirely capable of considerate driving if they would restrain themselves.

The proposed license bill would set up additional machinery, with more prospect of abuse than correction. The theory that the driver of so powerful and potentially dangerous an engine as the modern automobile should be proved capable may be excellent. Like many other admirable theories, it lacks a footing in reality. There is more automobile law now than is honestly enforced, and in the familiar American way a large part of the enforcement is intended for graft and extortion.

DEDICATING THE HARDING TOMB.

President Hoover will appear in Marion, O., Tuesday to dedicate the costly memorial tomb of the late President Warren G. Harding. The ceremonies have waited for time to smooth out the disordered leaves in the cypress and to allow the palm to raise its head. The marble temple was raised on the plain of Marion, but has waited until some President would dedicate it to its purpose. President Coolidge's tenure slipped away and the ceremonies waited. President Hoover has been reserved and withdrawing, but has consented to do the final honors.

In its true meaning the ceremony is a solemn occasion, a dedication to certain weaknesses of the American republic in which Warren Harding had a more notable part than would have been expected for him, although all parts were congruous. Temperamentally, Mr. Harding was unqualified for the presidency at a moment when the republic was turning at once sentimental and puritanical even beyond its usual wont. He might have been president of France, but he had too much gusto for a nation which was taking its moralities from the Westerville, O., congregation of prohibitionists and its political practices from the Ohio gang. He was suave, genial, companionable, and robust. He could have stepped in and out of old English Tory politics, with Rochester, Lord Wharton, or Lord Melbourne, being neither Buckingham nor Bolingbroke, but of a typo which could carry either a county or a dinner.

The Republican party took him out of the senate to make him President because Mr. Wilson had prepared the way for reaction from silent men in the White House. The superman's day was done. The Republicans in control of the convention guessed that the country wanted something comfortable, and Mr. Harding was a comfortable man. He gave people what they wanted. If they wanted prohibition he gave them prohibition. He did not want it. If they wanted oil lands he gave them oil lands. This system had worked in Ohio with balanced perfection between the Anti-Saloon league in Westerville and the Daughertys in Washington Court House.

Harding was not chiefly blamable. He had taken Easy street through politics. He had not forced himself into the presidency. That had been given him by men who knew exactly what they wanted and they thought they knew how to get it. They thought the country was ready to give it to them and they were almost right. They thought the sentimentalists and moralists were content to have their ecstasies or their bigotries, and if uninterrupted in them would consent to everything else either by silence or with spoken approval. In this again they were almost right.

In the dedication of the memorial a post of honor should be given to Westerville and another to Washington Court House. They coöperated in this episode in the history of the republic. President Hoover may reflect upon it as he delivers his eulogy.

Quite fittingly the President goes from Marion to Springfield, Ill., where he will dedicate the new tomb of Abraham Lincoln. The great Harding memorial may not have all its significance for the American people now, but it will come to have it.

THIS NUTTY WORLD.

Russian communists in Dresden, Germany, broke the windows in the German owned house of the American consul because a southern jury in the United States has sentenced to death a number of young Negroes charged with raping two tramp white girls in a box car. Box car weddings are nothing in Russia. Whites in Georgia or Alabama might break the windows of the residence of a Chinese consul, if one could be discovered, because an Indiana judge sentenced a white killer-rapist to the reformatory under some act for the correction of juvenile delinquencies, and Italian Fascists might demand an apology of Jugo-Slavia because ten thousand American college students have petitioned for the abolition of compulsory military training in land grant universities.

The monks in Tibet probably will go on a hunger strike because France would not permit Tex Guinan to go to Paris and show that city what it thought it was. The world has been distinctly loony since South America and Europe rioted against Americans because two Italians were executed in Massachusetts for murder, or did it begin when Great Britain made a war to compel Chinese to smoke opium to help Indian agriculture? The United States government has been smoking opium itself for the same reason for a year.

FARM VALUES.

[The Pennsylvania Farmer.]

According to the department of agriculture, values of farms went on downward during the year ending with February. If we take the average of the five year period 1910-'14 as 100, farm values are now 106. In 1925 they were rated at 127, and in 1920 at 170. The department assigns as the reasons for the past year's decline drought, low prices for farm products, world-wide depression and a congested real estate market. No doubt these influences had their effect, but there is another which should not be overlooked. Since 1920 the so-called friends of farmers, agricultural organizations and even the department of agriculture have been busy telling the world about the distress of agriculture, talking dollars off the value of farm property. They have just about convinced investors that farm property is about the worst thing on the market. But the tide will turn some day, and those who have secured some of the farm bargains now offered will not regret their purchases.

KEEPING COOL IN HOT PLACES.

In determining human comfort, both at work and at rest, both temperature and humidity must be taken into consideration, is the consensus of two groups of experimenters reporting in the American Journal of Hygiene. Incidentally, the movement of air in currents is also a factor, though to a less important degree, and mor indirectly.

Miura reports that at 61 degrees a difference of 1.17 degrees in temperature is equal to a difference of 50 per cent in humidity, so far as the comfort is concerned. At 70 degrees the same difference in humidity is equal in effect to a difference of 4 degrees in temperature. When the temperature of the air is 70 degrees and the humidity is 70 per cent the air has a feeling of wetness. At this temperature, differences of 20 per cent in humidity can be detected by the feel of the skin. If the temperature is only sixty-one, the variation of the humidity must be as great as fifty per cent for the skin to feel the difference.

These observations were made with very delicate instruments applied to the skin of the forehead and on the side of the neck. Instruments showed that the skin in these regions fluctuates considerably in warmth, according to the condition of the atmosphere. The experiments showed that the skin is much more delicate in its ability to detect changes in temperature than it is in appreciating changes in humidity, but it responds to both, within limits.

These experiments were made with the body in repose. Another group of experimenters worked with men who were doing hard labor. They determined the amount of heat made by the working body and what became of it.

At lower atmospheric temperatures the human body gets rid of its excessive heat by radiation and convection. It gives out heat like a stove, and it also heats up its surroundings by the same process that we heat an iron bar throughout by heating one end of it.

Perspiration as a means of getting rid of heat at low temperatures is unimportant. At high temperatures the picture is reversed. Perspiration is the only effective way of disposing of excess heat in these circumstances. The temperatures and humidities at which insensible perspiration is changed to sensible perspiration is 80 degrees Fahrenheit and a humidity of 20 per cent. Whenever these combinations of levels are exceeded perspiration wets the skin and the clothing.

Incidentally, these experimenters found that the human body as a machine for converting fuel into energy has an efficiency of from 11 to 20 per cent.

FIND THE REAL CAUSE.

K. B. M. writes: Does it mean "nerves" when one constantly suffers from a dull headache and dark rings under the eyes?

REPLY.

"Nerves" is a very elastic term, and I presume an ablebodied stretcher could make it cover dull headache and circles under the eyes. Any person with either of the symptoms mentioned and "nerves" should try to find what is wrong.

THERE IS NO DANGER.

A. S. L. writes: Considerable anxiety has been aroused in our household over a report that aluminum vessels are poisonous, and that foods cooked therein absorb this poison, which is very harmful to some, while others are immune.

REPLY.

Your anxiety is unwarranted. Somebody is spending a lot of money frightening people on this subject, and for some reason or other there seems no way to stop these gallant scarecrows. The possibilities of poisoning in the way you mention have been investigated by several high class laboratories—official and nonofficial—and all reports are agreed that there is no danger.

IT'S ONLY A SYMPTOM.

R. S. G. writes:

1. I have a rapid, intermittent pulse. Is it serious? I am a man of 33.
2. Can it be cured?
3. If so, how?

REPLY.

1. A rapid, intermittent pulse is a symptom only. That means it is the voice of something else. Its seriousness depends on what is talking and what is being said. It may be a symptom of organic heart disease with broken compensation, nervous heart disease, nervous height, some forms of goiter, excessive use of tobacco. There are other possibilities.
2. In many cases the symptoms can be stopped.
3. All depends on what is behind it.

Report is made that vacant property referred to is now in satisfactory condition. A "No Dumping" sign has been installed.

SEEKS ANOTHER NAME.

Chicago, June 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I should like to know what legal steps are necessary to change one's name. I have been told it is not necessary to go to law. J. P. B.

"It is sufficient, in legal proceedings and elsewhere, that a person is designated by a name by which he is commonly known and called, even though it is not his true name. . . . A marriage by the name by which the individual is commonly known is valid. . . .

"Where it is not done for a fraudulent purpose, and in the absence of statutory restriction, one may lawfully change his name without resort to any legal proceedings, and for all purposes the name thus assumed will constitute his legal name just as if he had borne it from birth." 43 C. J. 380, 381.

Chapter 96 of the Illinois revised statutes provides that a person "may" file a petition and secure a court decree, but it is held that such statutes do not abrogate the common law wright of an individual to change his name without application to the courts.

In adopting a new name one should for convenience give notice of the change to those persons to whom the information may be material. In transactions in which the old name appears we suggest continuing to use it to avoid confusion. For example, the same name under which one took title to real estate should be used in a subsequent conveyance.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

WHOOPEE! THE CAMPAIGN'S ON.

Simeon D. Fess has kicked off and we can forget all our troubles. The presidential campaign of 1932 is started. Simeon made an address to three hundred college boys and it's certainly got the old ring in it. Now wait till the Democrats get over arguing about who's really going to the White House next year, and then for the red fire and the bands playing. Mr. Fess is going to make the Democrats hop along lively to catch up.

Look what the Republicans have done for this here now glorious country. They put the Rocky mountains out where they are so that you can go there in the old bus on your vacation. If any. Who stuck the Mississippi right where it is so that it can be of the greatest use to all the inhabitants? We pause for a reply. Let Simeon D. Fess tell you the answer; the Republican party. If the durned old Democrats had had anything to do with it they would have stuck the Mississippi down in New Jersey, where it would only have been ten feet wide and two blocks long. [Cheers.]

Who rose up and licked the British and drove 'em out of this country? Need anybody ask? Need Mr. Fess ask? Shucks, everybody knows; the Republican party. The whole dinged American army was made up of Republicans. There was one Democrat in the army, but he was drummed out of camp at Valley Forge for stealing socks from his freezing comrades. Who won the war of 1812? The Republicans. Who planted the gold in the California mountains? The Republicans. Mr. Fess admits it.

Who invented the steam engine, the cotton gin, the sunshine, the harvesting machine, the game of golf, spring rains, baseball, football, and electricity? The Republican party. Who invented the tariff which kept us out of competition with the pauper labor of Europe and made everybody rich? [A voice, "I'll bite; who was it?"]

Mr. Fess tells us. It was the Republican party. Who hung up the sun, moon and stars, and started the idea of putting ice cream in soda water? Need we answer? Gosh, the Democrats have got to go some to catch up with Simeon D. Fess and the Republican party.

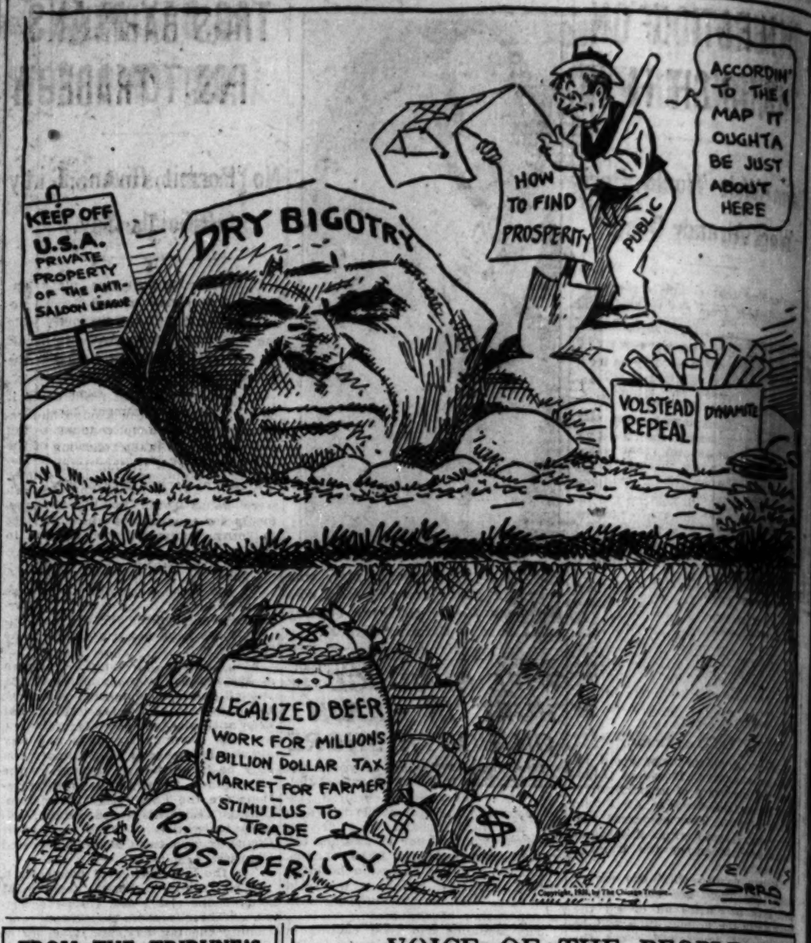
BURIED TREASURE



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 13, 1915.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago street car strike hangs in the balance. An eleventh hour offer to arbitrate was presented by the union heads, but the traction company officials said that on first glance they did not believe the conditions under which the union offered to treat are at all acceptable. They asked for a truce until tomorrow, as several of the directors are out of the city and could not be reached immediately. Spokesmen for the car men promised to lay the request for a truce before the union officials at 10 o'clock this morning.

LONDON.—Another big battle is being fought along the line of Dniester river in Galicia. Those German troops which crossed the Dniester at Zurawna having been driven back and the Russians in eastern Galicia and Bukowina also having been forced to withdraw to the river, the two armies now are facing each other across the river. Heavy fighting also continues in the Baltic provinces and on the eastern Prussian frontier, in which both sides claim advantages.

BERLIN.—The text of President Wilson's note was published in the Berlin newspapers and seems to have made a distinctly favorable impression. It is believed to offer the possibility of negotiations on which a satisfactory settlement regarding the Lusitania incident may be reached.

HAVANA.—After a short session the constitutional convention voted that the Platt amendment, just as it stands, be added to the constitution. The resolution had a preamble referring to the joint resolution of congress, the treaty of Paris, and the Platt law. The vote was 16 to 11.

LONDON.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman will ask the government in the house of commons whether it will give full information as to the condition of affairs in South Africa. What most people would like, but do not expect the government to give, is the exact truth concerning the busis of the various peace rumors, which are daily becoming more numerous and more emphatic, but which are bewilderingly divergent.

WASHINGTON.—President McKinley's prompt repudiation of the third term idea has struck an evidently responsive cord in the political heart. Many men continue to comment upon it as a remarkable exhibition of the President's fondness for throwing himself upon the people, and they say almost unanimously that if there were anything which could induce the American people to forego their opposition to the third term it would be this prompt and manly proclamation by Mr. McKinley.

OTTAWA.—Reports from British Columbia are that Mr. Onderdonk of San Francisco is pushing forward his contract on the Canadian Pacific railway, which is for 127 miles of very difficult country, with great energy. Of some 3,000 men employed on the work, approximately one-half are Chinese, to the employment of whom there is an intense and increasing aversion among the people of British Columbia. They are paid $1 a day.

CHICAGO.—Gen. Grant, who is en route from Mexico City to New York, reached Chicago accompanied by Mrs. Grant, Col. Fred Grant, and Miss Sharp. They are at the Palmer house. Gen. Grant, when asked his views concerning the Garfield-Conkling row, which resulted in the resignations of Senators Conkling and Platt, said emphatically: "I shall not hesitate to say I am with Mr. Conkling and with Mr. Platt—all over and all the time. The New York senators were insulted by the President, who made an appointment obnoxious to them, and he made it simply because it was obnoxious." He said he did not believe the Albany legislature will elect successors to Platt and Conkling at this session.

DETROIT.—The village of Ludington on Lake Michigan was visited by a destructive conflagration which nearly wiped out the entire business portion of the town. The loss is $200,000.

NINETY-FOUR IN ALABAMA.

Montgomery, Ala., June 9.—Permit me to take this opportunity to correct Mr. H. E. Zimmerman of Mount Morris, Ill., in his statement in the Voice of the People column on Monday, June 8, in which he included Alabama as among the states whose legislatures have defeated bills to legalize beer, wine, and other liquors.

Alabama, as THE TRIBUNE knows, is one of the driest of the states—a place where, as Mr. Davenport of Collier's says, "they stagger to the polls to vote dry."

Our legislature recently had before it a bill to legalize the sale of near beer and to tax it, with the revenue to go to the educational fund of the state.

The temperance committee adversed the bill and two days later the house refused to take the measure from the adverse calendar.

Alabama statutes prohibit the sale of anything that "looks, smells, or tastes" like beer.

Suffering as we are in 94 degrees temperatures now, newspaper correspondents covering the legislature are watching with interest a revived near beer bill which, by a political trade, was referred to the committee on privileges and elections! It may be that it will meet with more success than the first bill.

Let us pray! TRAVIS K. HEDRICK.

ELECTED AMATEURS.

Chicago, June 4.—Our legislator from Cook county, Mr. E. J. Schnackenberg, seems to be greatly concerned about the right of the people to elect their tax officials. Has he ever stopped to think what an expensive right that is? We elect amateurs to the jobs of assessors and reviewers, and they in turn put amateurs to work in their departments because the employés of these departments are not under civil service. And so our whole taxing system is in the hands of amateurs. That is why we are now in such a muddle and will continue to be so long as we elect our taxing officials.

A TAXPAYER.

AT THE ART INSTITUTE.

Chicago, June 6.—"A Layman in the Art Institute," by James O'Donnell Bennett, is an inspiration. A truly good use is made of printer's ink and column space. Kirkland trials, tax evasions, divorce, war, reparations, baseball, and markets sink into insignificance in comparison with such an article.

CHARLES EICHIN.

THE ECONOMICS OF ALCOHOL.

Elkhart, Ind., June 1.—Referring to your cartoon on the front page of Sunday's TRIBUNE, I suggest that you tell your readers how other countries (England, for example) that have no prohibition laws, and therefore no "Volstead repeal key," would open their "prosperity treasure chests" to overcome their business depression. I well remember our panics and business depressions as far back as the Grover Cleveland administrations, when there were no prohibition laws to blame, and I feel convinced that Volstead repeal would open Uncle Sam's prosperity treasure chest only to a few ex-brewers, ex-distillers, and ex-saloonkeepers, at the expense of the vast majority of our decent and law abiding citizenry.

I quote from a recent statement by Henry Ford: "The liquor business made money for a few—took money and money ability from very many. If it is impossible should occur—I mean the return of legalized liquor—its first effect would be a widespread reduction of wages, due to the demoralization of labor which liquor always causes."

JOHN M. KOHNEN.

WHY NO REAPPORTIONMENT?

Bloomington, Ill., June 8.—We have heretofore often disagreed with some of your editorials, but the recent statement concerning the income tax bill being a raid on Chicago pocketbooks is too much. I now am confirmed in my opinion that you deliberately misrepresent the truth in such matters.

Why do you want the public to think an income tax unfair? To make a property owner pay a tax when there is no net income in reality is confiscation. It seems to me that your property owners in Chicago would welcome an income tax to relieve the burden they are facing and let some of the income of these buildings be taxed according to the income. Come on, let's be fair. I own property and have a decent income, but am for the income tax. F. E. FULLER.

UNSIGHTLY DEBRIS.

Chicago, June 1.—It is welcome news to learn that the South Central association in coöperation with property owners is tearing down old structures which have become eyesores in the near south side and cleaning out the district.

It would be helpful if some structures could be aroused to get owners of buildings already wrecked to remove the debris and clear up their lots, particularly along Michigan and South Park boulevards, from 22d to 47th street.

U. S. APPROVES SHIPMENT OF ARMS TO CHINA

Licenses Asked Through Peiping Legation.

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—Acting on the suggestion of the Nanking government during the last month has granted export licenses for arms shipments to China. The licenses were requested by that nation through the American legation at Peiping.

Dr. C. C. Wu, in announcing his resignation as Chinese minister to Washington yesterday, said warlike preparations by the Nanking government, through purchase in the United States of arms likely to be used against the people of Canton, his native city, had prompted his resignation.

No Change in Policy.

The application through the American legation to the state department, instead of the usual procedure of applying through the Chinese legation at Washington, was said by department officials tonight to effect no change in policy. It was described as merely a temporary substitution of an official channel of application for earlier.

Undersecretary Castle said several permits for export had been granted upon China's request. He added that if future requests came through the American legation in China, and they were known to be bona fide, they would be acted on in the same way as if they were received through the Chinese legation here.

Recent developments in the Canton-Nanking situation, linked directly by Dr. Wu with his resignation, are being studied by state department officials on the basis of dispatches received from the American legation at Peiping and the American consular agencies in China.

It has been found that much information from China on political developments has been based on rumors and reports which in many cases must be discounted because of their apparent source. So far as actual military activities were concerned, officials said, nothing sufficiently definite to warrant an opinion on the situation had been received. From a source, however, it appeared that the Chinese movement does not constitute a immediate threat to the Nanking government.

In many cases in the past, experience in observing Chinese affairs has proved that what appears at first to be a small movement has grown to proportions sufficient to shake the foundations of the national or provincial governments.

The national government under Chiang Kai-shek is looked upon by officials here as the most stable which China has had for many years. It is believed to surpass in proportionate power that held by the late Chang Tso-lin in a portion of northern China.

Offer Canton Rebels Peace.

HONGKONG, June 12.—(AP)—Information received today from Canton said the nationalist government has extended the olive branch to leaders of the insurrection there and offered concessions in an effort to avert civil war.

As peace measures the Nanking officials were said to have proffered Canton its own political council, and to have suggested the appointment of Wang Ching-wei, rebel leader, as president of the executive bureau of the new "national" government at Canton.

The Nanking central government would agree also to the calling of a general assembly to provide for its reconstruction. [Meeting in Nanking four weeks ago, the national people's congress, composed of government supporters, adopted a provisional constitution to function until 1936, when the people's capabilities of self-government would be considered.]

Some concern was felt in Honkkong because of the Canton insurgent government's declaration it would seize a portion of customs payments. The Cantonese said they would pay the port's share of the foreign loan commitment but would retain the surplus of payments, instead of permitting the money to go "not only for national interests, but the personal interest of Chiang Kai-shek and his family."

Reports reached here today that foreign warships had rushed to Foochow to guard their nationals from outlaws who overpowered troops in the interior and killed many captives. Two hundred foreigners, most of them missionaries, fled to Foochow from the Min river valley, where large bands were looting the country.

BRITISH PROTEST PERSIA'S BARRIER AGAINST TRADE

London Threatens to Adopt Retaliatory Tariff.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June, 12.—The British legation at Teheran, Persia, has protested to the Persian foreign office against action taken by the imperial government in bringing its exports and imports under government control, it was learned in London today. Diplomatic action was taken following the protests by British trading interests in southern Persia, regarded a fruitful selling ground for British manufacturers ever since the war.

The loss of the Indian trade through Mahatma Gandhi's economic boycott has diverted large stocks to Persia which are selling at low prices despite the general high cost of living.

British Threaten Retaliation.

Great Britain views Persia's action as one of discrimination, which must lead to the introduction of retaliatory tariffs against Persian goods unless something is done. Economists consider such a step would be disastrous, since Great Britain is Persia's biggest customer.

It is reported that some annoyance was caused by the Persian government treating the British note indifferently, although 36 per cent of her trade is with Great Britain and India. The Persian government feels that it has acted in the interest of its own manufacturers, despite a feeling in some quarters that state control of trade pleases Russia. Persia feels that Great Britain is looking for a new oriental market for the goods which have been diverted from India, but Persia is reported to be unwilling to give up protection on her own manufacturers.

Persia Turns Down Women.

TEHERAN, Persia, June 12.—The ministry of commerce, which has become a very important government unit on account of possessing the arduous task of regulating Persia's foreign commerce, has called for applicants to fill various positions in its department.

Many applicants were young women, who claimed to have a knowledge of one or other of the European languages, as well as being able to handle a typewriter with Arabic characters, which is the standard machine in all government offices in Persia.

The executives of the department, after many meetings, decided not to employ women, and the applicants were told that they were progressing too fast. The young women in Persia are of the opinion that they can work just as well as the men, and are willing to work at a cheaper salary.

Kathryn Carver, wife of Adolphe Menjou, motion picture star, left on the Century from the La Salle street station for New York City. Then there was Armida, the Latin-American beauty who is known both on the stage and screen, who arrived on the Commodore Vanderbilt of the New York Central at the same station from New York City.

Army Top Sergeant Dies Leaving $100,000 Estate

San Francisco, June 12.—(AP)—John J. Fitzgerald, former top sergeant in the United States army who died here yesterday, left an estate of approximately $100,000. Fitzgerald often told friends a man could save more money in the army than in civilian life, and during his years of service collected no pay. When he retired the government handed him $16,000 in pay and interest and a pension of $67 a month. Investments accounted for the remainder of the estate.

PANTAGES SAYS HE SPURNED GIRL AT HOTEL PARTY

San Diego, Cal., June 12.—(AP)—Alexander Pantages, wealthy theater man, today testified in the "girl market" case that he had no advance knowledge of an alleged hotel party here, and denied acts with Lydia Nitto, alleged by the state to constitute violations of the Juvenile court law.

Pantages said his only purpose in coming to San Diego last Oct. 16 was to arrange with George R. Daley for the payment of an $80,000 note. He said Jesse H. Shreve, one of three co-defendants in the action, asked him to make the trip.

The state charges Pantages and Shreve conspired with Olive Clark Day and William Jobelman, alleged operators of a Hollywood "girl market," to bring Miss Nitto, 17, to the hotel.

Pantages said while he and Shreve were waiting for Daley they decided at 11 o'clock to go to the Common wealth building, where Shreve's office and a theater are located, to get a financial statement in preparation for the conference.

"When we got to the building Shreve said, 'By the way, I may have to take some of John P. Mills' friends back to the hotel with us.' I said, 'Go ahead, Jesse, if you want to.'" Pantages said.

Miss Nitto testified she was taken to the theater by Shreve with Mrs Day and Helen Livingston, another girl, to await the arrival of Pantages.

Pantages said three women returned with Shreve and they drove to the hotel. He said he left Shreve and the women in the lobby, but when he reached his room the three women came up with Shreve and asked if John P. Mills had been found. Mills, a real estate man, was accused in the alleged conspiracy, but pleaded guilty to contributing to the delinquency of a minor and turned state's witness.

Girl Approaches Him.

Pantages said the women settled down in the room and Mills soon arrived.

"This Nitto girl tried to take possession of me," Pantages said, "telling me she was sorry for me because I looked so bad. So I walked over and said to Shreve, 'Jesse, you'll have t get rid of these women; we've got business to transact.' So he and Mills left with two of them, but the Nitto girl stood around and talked.

"Finally I said, 'Listen, lady; you'd better go join your friends. I'm busy. We have work to do.' So she said, 'All right,' and left."

The theater man's attorney then asked Pantages whether he turned out "all the light but one little one" when he was alone with Miss Nitto.

"I did not," Pantages replied.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 12.—It cost Richard Farnsworth, 20, a student, who arrived from Chicago recently, $1,000 to learn that old gag about the talkative stranger and the big hearted Irishman.

Farnsworth left his hotel in the Boulevard Montparnasse for a stroll. In a café in the Boulevard des Capucines he fell into the usual conversation with the usual friendly stranger. The usual charitably inclined Irishman, with a fortune to give away, joined them. The usual continued to happen, up to the point at which Farnsworth in proof of good faith in the enterprise in which all three agreed to engage, drew $1,000 from his bank.

The story has the usual ending. Farnsworth's money and the fascinating strangers have all disappeared.

HOUSE IN WHICH CZAR WAS SLAIN NOW A MUSEUM

Soviets Charge 50 Cents to Go Through It.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SVERDLOVSK, U. S. S. R., May 4.—[By mail via Harbin, Manchuria.]—Formerly Ekaterinberg, named after Katherine the Great, this ancient city of 150,000 inhabitants on the banks of the Iseta river, 1,200 miles due east from Moscow, is the scene of the slaying of the czar and the imperial family by soviet agents in the summer of 1919.

The Reds explain that the Romanoffs were put to death because the rapid advance of Admiral Koltchak and his White Guards threatened to liberate them before they could be removed. As a matter of fact, the advance columns of Koltchak's army did enter Ekaterinberg only a few days after Nicholas and the czarina and the czarevitch and the princesses had been slain.

House a Museum Now.

One can visit the house where the Romanoffs lived and died for 50 cents. It is a sort of museum now, and a pleasant, round faced, rosy cheeked girl shows visitors through and explains things in Russian and what might be called German.

There is the room where the emperor and empress slept, with an ikon in each corner; then the little dressing room where the czarina prayed alone in the absence of Rasputin, her mad mentor, fairly bristling with ikons. In Nicholas' "study," a small, bare room with a desk, more ikons.

Then the playroom of the czarevitch, with some clumsy wooden toys, and another room off his bedroom filled with dreadful looking mechanical appliances to fit over any part of his body, head, torso, arms, and legs in case he was stricken with a hemorrhage.

Had Bleeders' Disease.

The czarevitch was a "bleeder," cursed with the terrible disease from the Battenburg strain, which made him likely to bleed to death from a scratch, anything that broke the skin. His blood lacked the coagulating ingredients to make it clot and form a scab and stop bleeding.

Downstairs, in a sort of half basement, is the cellar room where the Romanoffs were herded that fateful morning, and whence came a file of Red guards to fire volleys into them from their rifles until all had sunk to the floor riddled with bullets. Then the bodies were carried to the forest north of here, soaked with benzine, burned, and the remains cast into a disused, water filled mine.

Now an Industrial Center.

Sverdlovsk is now the center of industry in the Urals, and economic developments in this region under the 5 year plan will make it the most important in the entire soviet union.

The Urals were selected for two reasons, first because of the presence of raw materials and second, and perhaps chiefly, for strategic reasons. This zone is 2,500 miles from the nearest potential enemy, Poland. To the north there is nothing but arctic wastes leading to the polar circle, to the south for a couple of thousand miles there is desert, and then only Afghanistan and Persia. To the east there is 4,000 miles of Siberia.

In the mountains there is iron and coal. There is electric power in the waterfalls of the many streams. There is asbestos. The largest deposits in the world, they say, are at Bazhenovo, just to the northeast. And there is copper. Timber is in abundance in the dense forests, and the district, all the way to Chelyabinsk, to the south, where a mammoth tractor and combine factory is being constructed, are well served with railways, for Russia.

Safe from Invading Armies.

At Nijni Tagull are huge metallurgical works and machine shops, and further on is Blagodat mountain, said to be solid iron ore, 55 per cent pure.

Safe from invading armies and hostile raiding airplanes, industry will be developed here for the entire country, according to the present plan. The only hitch is the necessity of building many thousands of miles of new railroads to fetch in materials and supplies and to haul out production for distribution.

American experts have advised against the centering of so much industry in the Ural district, refusing to take political factors into consideration. They assert that economic reasons alone should dictate policy on economic subjects. They assert that costs of marketing will be so increased through the long rail transport as to make the material produced beyond all price.

Reds Fear Intervention.

But the Red chieftains have their intervention complex and are fearful of a united attempt at invasion by the capitalistic powers, so they are determined to locate their industry in the remotest depths of the vast country.

"Ten years hence airplanes may be capable of bombing places a couple of thousand miles from their bases, so why not locate your plant further west?" the Americans ask.

"How much airplanes will be developed in ten years is only conjecture, but we do know that invading armies will always advance only as fast as men and horses can proceed," the Reds reply. "We will concentrate our worries on armies, not on flying machines."

"Death, Taxes" Proves Lively Book of Verses

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

DOROTHY PARKER'S "Death and Taxes" [Viking] is to be published on Monday. I shouldn't be mentioning it today, except that the title impresses upon me the two things in life which one cannot escape, but as you read this, if God is really in his heaven and all's well with the world as Mr. Browning led us to believe is the case, I am on my way to escaping everything else.

DOROTHY PARKER.

I am writing this on a foggy, damp day, looking at the Wrigley building almost cut off to a towerless height, and the Merchandise Mart as hazy as if it were only an idea forming in the architects' brains.

But while you are reading this I am probably lolling in the most complete and exhausted slumber in a bed that rolls me into deeper sleep, or—if you don't read it so nearly at dawn, tramping the deck of the steamship Paris, feeling with every step that peculiarly vivifying effect of the aliveness of what one is walking upon—for such a boat gives to one. Or perhaps I am just lying back in a deck chair looking at the rolling horizon and knowing that sea-given feeling of the utter uselessness of trying to do anything about anything. There the ocean is, bigger, more powerful than man, the most democratic thing in all of life, in a sense. It doesn't consider Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan or the President of the United States or Mr. John Galsworthy any more than it does the literary editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. We all take what it gives us and railing at it is as futile as railing at fate itself. And, strangely, there is something terrifically inspiriting about that helplessness. Figure it out for yourselves. I never have been able to. I just know that it happens. There are so many things in life that one can do something about, and has to!

If one can't do anything about death or taxes, one certainly can do something about the book by that title. One can buy it. One cannot, however, escape its allure. It consists of 62 pages of poetry, some of it the kind that "Enough Rope" was mostly, a bit flippant, and always amusing, and some of it with a deep poetic beauty. One of the poems is called "Ballade of Unfortunate Mammals," and has for its first stanza:

Love is sharper than stones or sticks;
Lone as the sea, and deeper blue;
Loud in the night as a clock that ticks;
Longer-lived than the Wandering Jew.
Show me a love was done and through,
Tell me a kiss escaped its dght!
Bon, to your death you'll pay your due—
Women and elephants never forget.
And so on.

Drink and dance and laugh and lie,
Love the reeling midnight through,
For tomorrow we shall die!
(But, alas, we never do.)

"SWEET VIOLETS."

You are brief and frail and blue—
Little sisters, I am, too.
You are heaven's masterpieces—
Little loves, the likeness ceases.

There are many more and serious ones. It would spoil the treasure hunt to give you any more clews.

BY DIARMUID RUSSELL.

"Crossroads in Ireland," by Padraic Colum [Macmillan].

There come many visitors to the States who return only in book form with their impressions of this country. Their second visit is perhaps not so well liked. This cannot be said of Miss Somerville. She came here to receive a warm and kindly welcome from many friends. In her return in "The States Through Irish Eyes" she shows herself a courteous guest, saying many kind things about this country and the people she met here.

I think I mislead in saying courteous, from which one might suppose Miss Somerville says things more from manners than belief. This would not be true. It is obvious from her book the author met here many people who offered in their kindness and hospitality all that they had, who showed her much that is best in American life. She left this country with these memories and returns with a delightful book of appreciation written with that charm and lightheartedness of which she is so well master.

The author may have seen sad things here, but they do not enter into her impressions. I suspect Miss Somerville believes a concentration on what is good will do as much to eradicate sore spots as to rub them savagely. No one will suppose "The States Through Irish Eyes" is a penetrating account of this country. It is a record of a visit to friends. After reading this record one feels one would like to know these friends, to know Miss Somerville. The next best thing is to know this book with its evidence of wit and a kind and generous nature.

Though Mr. Colum lives in this country, he writes about his own. This is best indeed, for it is obvious his roots are deep in Ireland and that he has a spiritual and cultural kinship with that land and its literature. Perhaps there is some understanding in this for the charm of his book "Crossroads in Ireland." It is gentle and generous. Had Mr. Colum lived in Ireland one could not imagine this book less readable, for as an author he is a craftsman, but it is possible close contact with an Ireland hardly recovered from the past might have brought some bitterness.

In one meeting of an Irish parliament many years ago before the Dail came to being a speaker alluded to a family. "Personally and politically they are all prostitutes, from the bedizened hag now grinning in the grille above to the white livered scoundrel now shivering on the floor."

In Ireland that bitter spirit, though dying away, is not yet lost. There is no trace of it in Mr. Colum. Perhaps I am wrong to assume Mr. Colum's book would have been less kind if he lived altogether in his country, but I have lived there myself and I remember few Irishmen who at one time or another were not wrenched with a bitterness which had been their heritage for many years.

Mr. Colum's book wanders amiably and casually from past to present, at one moment dwelling on a conversation with a farmer, at another hopping back to talk of Tara and the ancient kings of Ireland.

It is not really so casual, for Ireland has not yet become civilized enough to be divorced from her traditions. The pleasant memory extends back many hundreds of years, as Lady Gregory has shown in her Kiltartan stories.

The author has love for and a wide knowledge of his subject. He writes with an ease and dignity which is the gift of something more than talent. I am sure many Americans will visit Ireland after this book has come to their hands. There is kindliness and a great understanding in it, and the reproduction of Irish artists' pictures does nothing to make Mr. Colum's book and his country less desirable.

Dead Hand of Von Bulow Hits at Ex-Emperor

First of Prince's Four Books Translated.

"Memoirs of Prince von Bülow," translated from the German by F. A. Voigt. [Little Brown.]

BY BERNADOTTE E. SCHMITT.

To most present day readers Bernhard (later Count, and then Prince) von Bülow may be hardly more than a name. But as secretary of the German foreign office (1897-1900) and imperial chancellor (1900-1909) he was one of the most important political personages of pre-war Europe, and his memoirs in four heavy volumes, of which the first now appears in English translation, have aroused considerable interest abroad.

And quite astonishin memoirs they are! Dictated by the prince in 1921-1926 and repeatedly corrected by him, they were sealed and deposited in a bank, on the understanding that they were not to be published until after his death and then exactly as he had written them. He was thus able to express himself, and has done so, with complete frankness regardless of all personal considerations—with the result that his publishers, both German and English, have been forced, under threats of legal proceedings, to make certain eliminations or corrections.

On the other hand, Prince Bülow appears to have relied very largely on his memory and his private correspondence and to have paid little attention to the voluminous government publications in which his actions are officially recorded. The historian, then, to whom the memoirs might seem a treasure trove, will have to use them with discretion. But he will be grateful for the sketches of innumerable personages whom Von Bülow was able to observe at close range and for many piquant incidents which are often more illuminating than pages of exposition.

Beyond all doubt the chief interest of the book lies in the picture of the Emperor William II. During his days of power Bülow was supposed to hold his master in the hollow of his hand; the thesis of the book is that this was far from being the case; that, on the contrary, William II. was an unstable, incalculable, erratic individual whose arbitrary conduct caused his counselors endless concern and whom even Bülow himself could not always control. And the moral, of course, is that the ever-recurring difficulties in which Germany found herself arose from the willfulness of William and the folly of his favorites, not from the course plotted by Bülow.

In reality, Bülow's policies, as revealed in post-war documents and memoirs, have been severely, not to say savagely, criticized by many German writers; and while his own testimony may justify a plea of extenuating circumstances on many occasions, his failure to resign office hen his advice was disregarded leaves him with the responsibility for his actions. This first volume makes only too evident that Bülow never forgave William II. for the practical dismissal in 1909 and has sought to even up the score by telling everything imaginable which will present the emperor in an unfavorable light.

One does not have to defend the conduct of the exile of Doorn, which often was highly prejudicial to the interests of Germany, to feel now and again a bad taste in the mouth at Bülow's presentation.

Although the first volume comes down only to 1903, Bülow loses no opportunity to denounce the bungling foreign policy of his successor. Assuredly there was much in the policy of Bethmann-Hollweg which deserves criticism, and many of Bülow's observations are just; but it is equally true that he bequeathed to Bethmann an extraordinarily difficult situation for which Bülow himself had found no solution.

These criticisms should not deter readers from the book, which is written in a vivid and easy style. Bülow was a master of literature, ancient and modern. He interlards his narrative with frequent apt quotations, he tells his stories with verve, and from beginning to end he holds one's interest without flagging. If the memoirs fall short of being either great literature or unchallengeable history, they provide a picture of Wilhelmian Germany which, if distorted in details, is unforgettable and overpowering.

U. of C. Professor Finds Russians Are Charming

Also Recites Long List of Their Cruelties.

BY OLIVER R. BARRETT.

The "Golden Age of Soviet Russia," by Dr. Adolph Carl Noe, is a record of the observations of an eminent scientist and keen observer, presented in an interesting and entertaining manner.

Dr. Noe is a professor of paleobotany at the University of Chicago, where he has organized in the Walker museum the largest collection of coal fossils in the United States, outside of the Smithsonian museum in Washington.

In 1927 Dr. Noe was the geologist of a commission selected by request of the soviet government to prepare plans for new coal mines in the Ukraine. As an accredited employé of the soviet government he was able to gain much first hand information from the Russians, as well as from foreigners whom he met in the soviet government.

The Russians he found "one of the most lovable races in the world." The Russian engineers were tactful, considerate and extremely polite. The muzhiks simple and friendly. And yet he tells strange stories of revolutionary atrocities of these same Russians—of women hung by their legs with a fire lighted below their suspended bodies until they died, of the officers of the Black sea fleet thrown into the furnaces or dumped overboard with cannon balls tied to their legs, and of a diver who later went down and became insane from seeing the bodies standing upright in the sea bottom and swinging with the water current. The wild orphan children, "almost like wild animals, living on theft and garbage, begging, stealing, robbing, diseased, and unspeakably dirty, hardly able to speak," were visible everywhere.

More pleasant to contemplate is the picture of mixed bathing in Russia. Bathing suits were unheard of. Yet the sexes mixed without observable impropriety, glorying in the strength and symmetry of their bodies, although modest naiads would duck in the water on the approach of a boat. He enjoyed the finest caviar selling at less than 2 rubles a pound, while razor blades were 3 rubles each. All classes of society and all phases of Russian life are presented.

Just now the rest of the world is taking a lively interest in the five year plan, wondering whether the soviet scheme will succeed to the confusion of the plans of other powers, or whether it is but a passing phase of the revolution that will burst like a bubble and show "the dawn following the night of autocracy and preceding the daylight of freedom."

Dr. Noe makes no prophecies, nor does he show prejudice or bias, but with a trained mind and watchful eye he has recorded his observations and experiences in Russia in 1927, when hopes were pregnant and illusions were possible. The hopes still remain, but the illusions have been somewhat disturbed by hunger and disappointment.

One cannot finish this book without having secured a better understanding of the Russian people and their problems.

SHE TRUMPETS GENTLE READER'S PLEAS FOR GORE AND MYSTERY

"Simple Confession," by Baird Leonard [Cosmopolitan], is a volume of gay and charming light verse by the amusing woman who writes "Mrs. Pep's Diary" for Life, and who is their dramatic editor. No words about it could speak as alluringly and loudly as samples of its charms. Mystery fans will get a great chuckle out of her frank declarations of war against anything but books with plots which she can "view with alarm."

BAIRD LEONARD.

A GENTLE READER SPEAKS.

Battle and murder and sudden decease
Make up the novels that pleasure me most;
Me for the fiction that's full of police
Hounding their victims from pillar to post!

What in my life are the Russex downs
Peopled with characters quaint in their speech?
What do I care for cathedral towns?
What price glory or galleons reach?

Nobody knows till page 374.

All the Ritz children I gladly resign,
Likewise those stories of life on the farm;
Wall-safes and poison and sword-canes for mine;

"The Good Hope" Last Novel by H. S. Harrison

"Queed" was followed by "V. V.'s Eyes" and "Angela's Business," and, after the war, "Saint Teresa." After a long silence Mr. Harrison says his last word in "The Good Hope," just given posthumous publication by Houghton Mifflin company.

NEW 'HOT KNIFE' SURGERY LESSENS CANCER DANGER

Strange Cause of Colds Discovered.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12.—(AP)—A "hot knife" for surgery, progress in a cure for congenital dislocation of the hip, and tracing of colds and indigestion to strange causes, were some of the subjects discussed at the closing session of the annual convention of the American Medical association today.

The "hot knife" is not so warm to the touch—barely 120 degrees Fahrenheit—but it is deadly to cancer cells. It is equally deadly to all rapidly growing cells, but is not so lethal for the great mass of normal cells which have passed their growth period.

Stops Wandering Cells.

For these reasons it is useful in cancer surgery to prevent malignant cells from being cut loose to wander around elsewhere in the body. It is a loop of special wire electrically heated, and was described by A. C. Scott, M. D., of the Scott and White clinic, Temple, Tex.

"It radiates upon the surface of wounds," he said, "thus sterilizing any malignant cells which may have escaped from the tumor mass, or from the injured lymph nodes and vessels. One may spread disease with a cold scalpel, but it is impossible to spread any kind of disease with a hot instrument."

Use of Manipulation.

Congenital dislocation of the hip may be cured in its earliest stages by manipulating the joint into place, said Charles H. Jaeger, M. D., of New York City. He said the treatment is new and has been used in several cases. A splint holds the leg in proper position, while a pressure pad, without violence, gradually pushes the dislocated bone into its socket.

Seeming common colds which are not really colds, but manifestations of the strange sensitivity called allergy, were discussed by Milton B. Cohen, M. D., and Jack A. Rudolp, M. D., of Cleveland. Allergy is an exaggerated susceptibility to a substance harmless to most persons.

"Many of the recurrent colds that children have," the paper of these physicians stated, "are allergic attacks that simulate colds. Others are a combination of allergy and infection. In the latter case the infection cannot be cleared up until the allergy that irritates the membrane is relieved."

Trace Trouble to Thyroid.

Thirty-four cases of digestive disturbances traced to the thyroid gland were reported by J. Russell Verbycke Jr., M. D. of Washington, D. C.

He considered them remarkable because the thyroid in each case apparently was normal. The fact that the thyroids were not functioning properly was discovered through use of one of the most delicately balanced tests of science, measurement of the basal metabolism rate, which means the amount of energy expended by the body when at rest.

Wants Public to Attend Rites Honoring Harding

Marion, O., June 12.—(AP)—Officials of the Harding Memorial association made it clear today that dedication of the memorial Tuesday is not an "invitational" event. The statement was issued when several letters were received from citizens of prominence asking if they would receive invitations. "More than 1,000,000 citizens contributed to the fund which made the memorial possible. And it is obvious that sending out invitations would be impossible," Hoke Donithen, president of the association, said.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

LOUIS GOSSELIN, CITY FISCAL AID 27 YEARS, DEAD

Louis E. Gosselin, deputy controller of the city of Chicago from 1902 to 1929, when he took a leave of absence because of illness, died on Thursday in Miami Beach, Fla., according to word received here yesterday. The body will be brought to Chicago on Sunday and burial will be the following day in Calvary cemetery.

Mr. Gosselin's failing health caused him to obtain a leave of absence in July, 1929, from the position he had held through a number of mayoralty administrations. Four months ago he went to Florida in an attempt to regain his health. He became seriously ill a few weeks ago. He was 60 years old.

Mr. Gosselin was general bookkeeper of the department of public works for nine years prior to 1902 when he was appointed city auditor. He carried that title together with that of deputy city controller for 27 years.

He was a graduate of John Marshall College of Law, first president of the National Association of Controllers, and a member of the Edgewater Golf club. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah Gosselin, a daughter, Mrs. John Lemond, and three grandchildren.

Mr. Gosselin was still technically deputy controller of the city at the time of his death.

PLOTS CALLED VISIONS, BUT 3 ARE STILL HELD

Ferdinand K. Daum, 54 year old Gary bookkeeper, and his confidants, James Clayton, 28 years old, and Ted Hartman, 30 years old, who were charged on Thursday at Gary with conspiracy to commit a felony, were in jail last night.

The Gary police were still of the opinion that plots to counterfeit money, to sell fake stock certificates, and to kidnap two wealthy residents of Gary, of which the prisoners were accused, never got beyond the stage of "maybe we'll do it." The police attribute the whole series of alleged plots to an intensive imagination on the part of Daum.

J. J. Kelly, one of the prospective kidnaping victims, scouted the idea that there was any serious intention to kidnap him. Joseph Tittle, Gary packer, the other prospective victim, was said to be in the same frame of mind, although he was out of Gary.

Veteran Iowa Jurist Dies at Fort Dodge

Fort Dodge, Ia., June 12.—(AP)—Judge R. M. Wright, 87, former judge of the 11th Iowa judicial district and a former state legislator, died here late last night.

Grand Jury Frees Girl on Charge of Murder

Helen Deal, 18 years old, who shot and killed Nicholas Colantino, with whom she lived at 169 West Locust street, was freed of a charge of murder by the grand jury yesterday. A coroner's jury previously returned a verdict of justifiable homicide after investigating the death. Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Spiro stated that the grand jury had apparently agreed with the coroner's jury that the girl was justified in slaying Colantino, who had lured her from her home in Sidney, O. The killing took place ten days ago when the Deal girl found Colantino with another woman.

Miss Devaughn Ashley, 18 years old, 1334 Bryn Mawr avenue, was arrested yesterday on charges of selling subscriptions to magazines which she did not represent. It was charged that her practice was to accept a first installment and disappear. She was arrested on the complaint of Ernest Wolff, service superintendent of the Uptown theater, the arrest taking place in Wolff's office.

She is charged with taking two diamond rings, valued at $1,600, from the Cahill home on her departure on May 3. According to the police, she is also known as Annie McCauley and is the wife of Joseph McCauley, an ex-convict.

JUDGE REQUESTS TRIAL OF COP WHO SHOT AT AUTOIST

Judge Leon Edelman yesterday recommended that Policeman William Hoban of the Town Hall district be taken before the civil service trial board as a result of firing several shots into the automobile of George Schweikert, 1916 North Halsted street, following a minor accident a week ago. Schweikert and a companion were released when arraigned in court yesterday.

Schweikert told the court that his automobile scraped fenders with one driven by Hoban. After giving Hoban his card he started to drive away when Hoban began firing at him, Schweikert testified. Arrested on six counts, Schweikert was held in the county jail for three days while trying to raise bonds of $5,700.

Hoban testified that Schweikert had attempted to bribe him. Under persistent question by Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller Hoban admitted the bribery charge was untrue.

TELEVISION ERA HERE, SAYS HEAD OF RADIO BROADCASTING SYSTEM

Atlantic City, N. J., June 12.—(AP)—The television era has definitely dawned, but television today is considerably of an experiment, M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company, told the National Electric Light association convention here today.

"Technically and commercially, television today is just as much of an experiment, just as crude, yet just as promising as the feeble attempts at propagating entertainment by radio telephony prior to 1926," he said.

Even after television has been developed to the point where receivers are simple and dependable, Mr. Aylesworth said, sight by radio will be utilized only as a supplement to sound broadcasting.

"The immediate application of television will be the visual presentation of the broadcast artist."

DELAY QUIZ IN WOMAN'S DEATH LAID TO POISON

The inquest in the case of Mrs. Josephine Keim, employé of a radio tube factory, who died Thursday at St. Luke's hospital a supposed victim of an obscure chemical poison contracted while at work, was continued yesterday to June 30 pending further investigation.

Upon adjournment of the inquest Dr. Clarence Muehlberger, coroner's toxicologist, inspected the plant of the Tung Sol Condensers, Inc., 2319 Calumet avenue, where Mrs. Keim worked. The toxicologist was accompanied by Dr. Alice Hamilton, specialist in industrial poison, who volunteered for service on the coroner's jury.

Neither would be quoted, but indications were that the inspection uncovered no peril of poison to the 150 employés of the plant. Assistant Health Commissioner Hugh Jones announced his department was investigating the claim of Mrs. Keim's brother that another worker in the plant had died and four more were ill as a result of their employment.

THE CLICK OF THE GATE
By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Iris, fifteen year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously from her home in a remote section of Paris. Iris has been separated for years from her mother, Clare, a star of great charm but no moral sense. They are cousins and the only kin of their tyrannical Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmauron.

Clare planned to divorce Marcel and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. Charnwood, about to leave for Africa, postponed his trip to look for Clare, assisted by Tommy Edgerton, a journalist.

Tommy goes to her aunt's home and learns that her husband is already domiciled there. He seems to have changed in character, and has taken charge of the search for Clare. He runs across Alan at Helen Roderick's, the American woman for whom Iris has been posing, and learns that they are friends, unknown to Iris. He recalls having seen Alan with Clare at Le Touquet, gambling heavily and hobnobbing with a coarse looking couple. Later he saw Marcel entering the home of Suzanne Marly, an actress.

Tommy goes to Iris, stating that Clare is being held for ransom. Her aunt offers a gift if Clare is found. If Marcel and Iris promise to become reconciled. Marcel meets Tommy at Alan's and drives them home. He accompanies Alan to his hotel room. An attempt is made to asphyxiate Alan. He moves to Tommy's apartment.

Tommy goes to Iris the night Clare vanished. From Iris' description of the man and Tommy thinks Alan recognizes him as De Bertincourt's companion in Le Touquet. Tommy suspects Marcel as the suspected instigator of the kidnaping, with the couple, Alan and Marly, his partners in crime, the motive being to collect the ransom money. Tommy sets out in search of the couple and learn that they have a half-million francs. Alan rides at the spot in a forest in the outskirts of Paris where Marcel is to meet Clare and is discovered and nearly killed by an unknown assailant. He returns to Tommy's, who tells him that he saw Marcel's car in front of Suzanne Marly's apartment at the hour scheduled for the delivery of the ransom.

INSTALLMENT XLVIII.

A TERRIBLE SUSPICION.

Charnwood almost shouted in amazement. "No! Are you sure it was he?"

"I looked into a doorway to watch," said Tommy, "and a few minutes later—it was another past one exactly—De Bertincourt rushed past and jumped into his car. I caught a glimpse of his face. It was white as a ghost, eyes popping, and his hair—for he hadn't a hat—all but standing on end."

After a dazed moment Charnwood said, "The damned thing is beyond me, but I'm sure of is that those instructions were meant only as a blind. The office chart and all was purposely prepared to lead whoever knew about it on a false quest, so the scoundrels could carry on in safety."

"Perhaps, but I've a sneaking notion something upset the apple cart for their schemes. If you'd seen the sick look on that bloke's face, you'd pay my wondering. If ever a man had the devil behind him, it was our blue-blooded friend."

Wicked deeds with nameless fear, Charnwood was scarcely able to rouse himself when Tommy informed him the hot bath was ready. However, warned by the latter's chilling shiver, he divested himself of his soaked garments and lay for a minute in the steaming water. He had shaved and dressed himself in clothes when an all important fact struck him in the face.

"By God, Tommy, do you realize it's Saturday?" he cried, bursting in upon him. "What about that poor child? Are they going to send her back?"

"They will, if they've got what they want? They'll be only too anxious to get rid of her."

"But how can they get what they want?"

"I cannot that part is all O. K. What I saw last night may only have been that de Bertincourt had been kicked out of Marly's abode by the Baron de Wimpe. He's probably squared everything and by now is with his family, pillow as a hero."

All this merely rubbed salt into Charnwood's wounds. Throughout his acquaintance he reflected that once again his rival held the winning cards. If the body of an Englishman had been found in the Rambouillet forest, who, after hearing De Bertincourt's explanation, would have attached any blame to his actions? He could simply have stated that he had been attacked first and in self defense he could deserve it. As for Iris, he saw her slipping irrevocably into his hands. If Clare was unharmed, she would accept her burden readily, blindly confident that her husband, like herself, had risen to heights of self-sacrifice. But a hope now remained of proving to her how shamefully she had been betrayed.

"I can't sit still any longer," he called out brusquely. "I'm going to find the Rue de Bretonne and see what happens." As he reached the door the telephone rang.

"It's for you," he announced huskily. "She's half out of her wits, the old woman downstairs. It seems that De Bertincourt hasn't been seen or heard of since she's driven him last night. He's completely disappeared."

"What happens the three million for himself and hooked it?" Tommy exclaimed. "He wouldn't dare. Even if he wasn't jailed for theft, Paris would be too hot to hold him and that, for him, would spell death."

"It may not be voluntary withdrawal. You yourself said what a beastly hole he was in last night, as if he were fleeing from trouble."

"There's the impression he gave me. What if he's committed some fatal blunder and been forced to clear out?"

Without stopping to find out what has happened to his daughter?" said Charnwood with a queer look in his eyes.

Tommy had grown suddenly still. "Perhaps, Alan, he already knows and is glad to see it. Maybe he has known all along that the girl was dead. It's a horrible solution, but I shouldn't wonder if it was the right one."

"Perhaps," Charnwood suggested in a strained voice.

"Or, unintended murder. There are occasions when it's simpler to let a criminal run his course than be caught with the goods. It wouldn't stop the ransom being paid."

"I'm going to the house," said Charnwood with an effort. "It's possible that if Clare doesn't turn up by one——" He could not finish. "God knows I wish you luck."

As Charnwood reached the comtesse's house, Ursule, peering forth from the window, hurried out and unlatched the iron gates with trembling hands. The usual welcome was portentiously silent. With deepened foreboding he passed through the faded tapestries till the door opened and Iris came in.

Her pinched face and the shadows beneath her eyes told of another sleepless night, but she was carefully dressed and bore herself with a self-possession more alarming to him than any display of emotion. When she had greeted him she sat down composedly on a stiff, carved chair and let her hands rest idly on her lap.

"I have just come from my aunt," she remarked in a low, matter of fact voice. "The doctor is with her, but she will not utter a word either to him or to me. There is something on her mind—I don't know what. All morning she has had an image in her big four-poster bed, simply waiting. If I do not return, I am sure she will die."

For the first time he felt convinced that the old woman had played only a minor part in all this. She whose passion it was to sway lives had been the tape and tool of an unscrupulous knave whose perfidy she was unable to suspect. No wonder her lips were sealed.

Every road to frank speech barred by his secret belief, Charnwood found extraordinarily difficult to offer any comment, but he need not have troubled. Iris was entirely too absorbed by her own thoughts to notice his silence. She went on with the even detachment which struck him as dreadful. It was as though she were walking on an eggshell crust that any moment might crash and precipitate her into an abyss.

"We know nothing—absolutely nothing. We trusted him. If he failed to deliver the ransom, we have no means of finding out. Even the letter was in his pocket, although I kept a copy."

"Have you got that, of course? May I see it?"

"The other one which came yesterday?" he asked, recalling her words.

"I don't see what any longer," she returned, empty-handed.

"Where is it?"

"I burned it after Charnwood had gone. I thought I could lay hands on it, but I suppose the maid has taken it away." She seemed totally indifferent.

"Are you satisfied it came from the same source?"

"Can I be sure of anything? I certainly thought so when it arrived. The envelope, paper, but the printing looked like the other. I'm sorry I destroyed it, but it seemed unnecessary to keep something which was a clear threat. I felt I had to tell you, only he came in while I was telephoning, so I couldn't finish."

"You destroyed something of the sort." He kept his face devoid of expression. "Then you have not been out?"

"No. I don't even know if I'm acting wisely in letting you come here now. I have altered everything."

He saw a stony look come into her eyes. It struck him that her mind, touching the edge of a suspicion too terrible to formulate. One sentence from her would crystallize her doubts into the worst certainty, but he held back. The time had not yet come for any violent disclosure.

Good morning!

"Annabelle's Affairs" is ideal entertainment for a lazy summer's day. It's fizzy and amusing, and provides enjoyment without brain fag.

A glance at the cast assures you that the character portrayals are in competent hands. As for Mr. McLaglen, his beaver doth not long his manly pulchritude disguise. He sheds it in the second reel and stands before your eyes, the sort of man for whom most girls would like to advertise. Divested of his traderhorn, he looks well, acts well, and speaks the king' English, minus the profane decorations usually associated with Mr. McLaglen because of his periodic impersonations of Capt. Flagg.

Then there is Roland Young as a perpetually inebriated gentleman to make you smile. He and his boy friends and servants and the heroine and her girl friends who become servants—for reasons the picture shall show you — bring ready laughter to your lips. Jeannette MacDonald plays Annabelle with lightness and humor, sings a bit — charmingly — and is mighty good to look at all the while.

Never mind what ARE Annabelle's affairs. But she has plenty. And the most important of these is Mister Victor McLaglen!

"WHITE SHOULDERS."

Produced by RKO.
Directed by Melville Brown.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.
THE CAST.

Gordon Kent ..... Jack Holt
Norma Selbee ..... Mary Astor
Lawrence Marchmont ..... Ricardo Cortez

You are faced with the odd situation of a bridegroom forcing his wife to live with another man, after she has shown that she prefers the chap to himself.

The action unwinds logically and the finale doesn't tax your credulity too much. It might have, under less adriot handling, just as the entire story could have proved irritating—but doesn't. Each player gives a 100 per cent performance.

"White Shoulders" has plenty of action, some unusual situations, and considerable suspense. The lines as spoken ring true. The film should do well at the box office.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 12.—[Special.]—After seven weeks of matrimony, Rex Lease and Eleanor Hunt have separated. Miss Hunt and Lease were married last April, shortly after she quit the New York stage and arrived here to pursue a film career. Lease and his bride are living in separate apartments. "It was just a silly quarrel, but I know everything will be all right," the actress said. Lease said: "It's true we separated."

Dewitt Jennings is one actor who's glad his children live in a motion picture atmosphere, and is glad they are starting their lives in Hollywood. His children, Margaret and Clark, are just out of high school and both have been promised screen tests, much to the glee of their father, who disagrees with many of his personal friends who seek to efface their families and rear their children as far as possible from the environment of the movie life. Little Margaret Jennings has a fine voice, and the happiest moment of her proud dad's life is when he can haul out a clipping and show you, not that he had praise lavished on him for some performance of his own, but that a London music critic prophesies that her voice is good and that she will make grand opera.

Hughes has replaced Edward Sedgwick with Tom Buckingham, former Pathé megaphone man, to direct "Sky Devils." Hughes also has signed Charles Starrett to play opposite Billie Dove in "The Age for Love," her first starring picture for United Artists. Frank Lloyd directs.

Vatican Sets Limits of Sanction of Wedding of Ileana and Anton

BUCHAREST, June 12.—The permission of the Vatican has been received for the marriage of the Catholic Archduke Anton von Habsburg with the Orthodox Princess Ileana of Rumania, under conditions even stricter than those which governed the recent wedding of the Orthodox King Boris of Bulgaria with the Catholic Princess Joanna of Italy.

First the pope stipulates that the only marriage ceremony must be held in the Catholic church; second, no supplementary marriage ceremony, such as followed the marriage of King Boris in Italy, must occur in any Orthodox church.

The Vatican still considers, it was learned, that Boris' so-called second marriage in the Orthodox cathedral in Sofia as a violation of an agreement he made with the Vatican before his marriage was sanctioned.

Talkie Will Show How Charities Do Their Work

A talkie which is to answer the questions that both beneficiaries and donors always ask of social welfare organizations is planned by the United Charities of Chicago.

50 Years Since Graduation, 5 Enjoy Reunion

Others Gather on Midway and in Evanston.

Campuses on both the north and the south side of Chicago will be thronged today with old grads, as the University of Chicago and Northwestern plunge into their respective alumni day programs.

At the Evanston institution the lion's share of attention will go to the five surviving members of the class of 1881, who plan to observe the golden anniversary of their graduation. Reunions of many classes were in progress yesterday at the universities and in downtown clubs.

On Monday the 73d annual commencement formalities at Northwestern will be held in Patten gymnasium, with the awarding of degrees to 1,500 graduates of various schools and departments. Rufus Dawes, president of the 1933 World's Fair, will give the commencement address, and President Walter Dill Scott will confer the degrees.

Reports from the alumnae associations over the country indicate that the 34th commencement of Rockford college will be the most largely attended in the history of the school, the Chicago offices of that college announced yesterday.

The 50th anniversary of the graduation of Miss Jane Addams, head of Hull house will be one of the chief events. In addition to her address to the graduating class Monday, she will meet seven other of her class mates for their 50th reunion. They are Mrs. William Alderson, Los Angeles; Mrs. Annie Ellers Bunker, New York; Mrs. Phila Pope Campbell, Denver; Mrs. Mattie Thomas Green, Chicago; Mrs. Eleanor Haworth, Washington, D. C.; Miss Elizabeth Smith, DePere, Wis., and Mrs. Ella Browning Tucker, Oak Park.

Commencement exercises will begin with an alumnae lecture this afternoon, followed by the annual meeting of the alumnae association. The alumnae banquet will be tonight. Tomorrow the baccalaureate address will be delivered by Dr. Charles C. Morrison of Chicago. Diplomas will be presented to 63 graduates by President William Arthur Maddox.

Tuesday morning and afternoon the University of Chicago will hold its annual convocation. Members of the graduate school will receive their degrees before noon, and the undergraduates in the afternoon. The latter session will mark the presentation of the Rosenberger medal to Samuel O. Levinson of Chicago, author of the movement for the outlawry of war as an instrument of national policy.

The medal, which was conferred first upon Dr. F. C. Banting of the University of Toronto for his work in the discovery of insulin, and later on Prof. James H. Breasted of the University of Chicago for his archeological activities, was endowed by Mr. and Mrs. Jess L. Rosenberger, "in recognition of achievement through research, in authorship, in invention, for discovery, for unusual public service or for anything deemed of great benefit to humanity."

Songs and styles of twenty years ago dominated the scene last night at the Chicago Woman's club as the women of the class of 1911 at the University of Chicago turned back the calendar and lived their college days over again. Mrs. Mary Louise Etten McWhorter was the authoress and producer of a skit, "Twenty Years After," in which was interspersed the old Blackfriars songs and popular hits of the day. Meanwhile the male members of the class held a stag dinner at the Hotel Sherman.

Costumes of their college era worn by various alumnae provoked shouts of laughter as they streamed past the reunion dinner table to the tune of "Good Old Summertime," and "O, You Beautiful Doll." Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey [Geraldine Brown], impersonated the class grind; Mrs. Florence Fanning Dunihue, a prom girl, wearing the identical costume of orchid taffeta in which she attended the 1911 prom; Mrs. Esther Hall Dixon was a bathing girl, Mrs. Mary Colt Edwards a tennis girl, and Mrs. Nina Wilson Badnock the campus flirt.

Three Chicago families will acquire a pair of bachelors apiece at the University of Chicago convocation on Tuesday. Degrees will be given Robert and Janet Cunningham of Glencoe, brother and sister; John and Harriet Link of 1824 Blue Island avenue, brother and sister, and Robert and Stuart Palmer, brothers, of 2302 Wilson avenue.

A doctorate of philosophy in the department of sociology will be awarded John Dollard, who from 1925 to 1929 was assistant to President Max Mason and Acting President Frederick Woodward. He will become an assistant professor of anthropology at Yale.

At the Civic Opera house yesterday Britton I. Budd, public utilities executive, and the Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, archbishop of Milwaukee, were made honorary doctors of laws by De Paul university. The school also conferred the honorary degrees of master of letters on the Rev. William Schaefers of Wichita, Kas.

Nearly 500 students will be graduated this morning at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium from the colleges of medicine and dentistry and the school of pharmacy of the University of Illinois. Henry Woodburn Chase, president of the university, will officiate and confer the degrees. Dr. Edward H. Kraus, dean of the school of pharmacy of the University of Michigan, will be the speaker.

Nurses who have finished their courses in one of the schools of nursing affiliated with the college of medicine and will be numbered among the graduates, include classes from the Henrotin hospital, West Side hospital, University hospital and the St. Anthony de Padau hospital. Fifty-five girls are included in the groups.

Tom Lincoln, Nancy Hanks Married Again

Wedding Service Reacted to Dedicate Shrine.

Harrodsburgh, Ky., June 12.—(AP)—The wedding in the Kentucky wilderness 135 years ago uniting Tom Lincoln and Nancy Hanks, parents of Abraham Lincoln, was reenacted at Pioneer Memorial State park here today.

It was the dedication of the temple sheltering the cabin where Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks were married. Some 5,000 townspeople and visitors gathered on the historic ground overlooked by old Fort Harrod and the cemetery where sleep Kentucky's first settlers. Several spectators were temporarily overcome by the heat during the ceremonies.

William N. Doak, secretary of labor, who delivered the dedicatory address as a representative of the national government, paid tribute to Lincoln's parents and said Lincoln owed much of his strength of character to the hardships of his youth.

The wedding performed by the Rev. Jesse Head and the housewarming that followed were dramatically portrayed by Prof. Howard Saxon and the stagecrafters of Transylvania college, Lexington.

The program was opened with a pageantry of Harrodsburg's colonial days, commemorating the 157th anniversary of the founding of the town by settlers from Virginia. Forty-eight young women carrying daisies represented the states, and thirteen little girls in costumes represented the original thirteen colonies.

A Bible was placed in the Lincoln marriage cabin by Mrs. Doak, attended by Mary Jane and Elizabeth Bird Hutton. After the invocation by the Rt. Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, bishop of the Lexington diocese, Episcopal church, Gov. Flem D. Sampson opened the program. Former Gov. Edwin Morrow introduced the representatives of other states—Dr. Francis Milton Massie of Lexington, Ky., a native Virginian; George A. Ball of Muncie, for Indiana, and H. H. Cleveland, Springfield, for Illinois.

United States Senator Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky, described the cabin in the days when it stood in Washington county, where the wedding took place.

Art Institute Students Win Prizes at Show

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

THE students of the Art Institute school have staged an excellent exhibit. The 52d annual graduation exercises yesterday afternoon in the Goodman theater paved a natural approach to an understanding and sympathetic viewing of the work which is now hanging in the temporary east wing galleries of the museum. There is a great deal of the usual and typical exercise picture and drawing to be found, but every now and then something unusually able strikes through and compels more than a neutral approval.

There are in the first large gallery by actual count twenty-one paintings of the female figure in the nude. This sounds like a fleshly show, but if you go with that in mind you will be quickly disabused. From the student standpoint there is nothing of nakedness here, simply problems in anatomy and flesh texture that they have tried to master. The best of their experiments are given publicity. Some of them are really good, others not so well done. Interspersed among the houris [who are in truth not houris but very matter of fact and even stolid young women of not particularly great bodily charms] there are many costume portraits and a considerable number of still life canvases. One of these last with a mop, a bucket and a thick, white china coffee cup is a clever episode of the atmosphere of early morning aureoling a scrub-woman's subconsciousness.

In succeeding galleries are a great many drawings, portraits and figure; drawings of birds, fish and beasts, many of these last excellently done; advertising designs and commercial printing; etchings and lithographs; water color studies of still life, fruit and flowers; and the rest of the fascinating detail of sculpture and pottery, modeling and textile work which completes the modern school exhibit. Of particular beauty is the silver sailing boat given to the Chicago Yacht club in memory of George Owens Clinch.

The prizes, among the most valuable of the year, were awarded as follows: The James Nelson Raymond foreign travel fellowship of $2,000 [the first time given], to Dan S. Lutz of Decatur, Ill.; the Edward L. Ryerson foreign travel fellowship of $1,500, to Florence M. Thomas of Portland, Ore.; the Anna Louise Raymond foreign traveling fellowship of $1,500, to Ralph C. Henricksen of Chicago; the Bryan Lathrop foreign traveling scholarship of $1,500, to Edwin Boyd Johnson of Watertown, Tenn.; the William M. R. French foreign traveling scholarship of $1,000, to Anthony J. Skupas of Chicago; the American traveling scholarship of $250 to Richard H. Crist of Cleveland, O. Honorable mentions were awarded to Hubert Bailey of Dayton, O., and to Elena Dorothy Donnecke of Davenport, Ia. The committee of awards consisted of five officials of the Art institute and five instructors from the school.

The exhibition will continue to July 12.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Lost Interest.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy who is mad at me for no reason. I try to attract his attention, but it doesn't help. BROKENHEARTED."

Without an apparent reason for his indifference, one can only assume it is because of lost interest.

Reasons for Getting Drunk Are Maudlin, Claims This Fellow

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"The thing with which I am concerned," writes "Gaylord," "is the question of why young men get soused. The problem was advanced in your column and some of the explanations given were:

"1. Because the girls expect it.

"2. Because of being a wet blanket if you don't.

"3. Because it is the thing.

"Now, I insist that girls do not expect it. This is simply an hallucination of an ultra modern, jazz novel reading and movie mad mind. Of course, there are girls who expect men to tote liquor along. But consider the kind of girl. She is NOT the type one would choose for an eternal partner. Nor even choose to introduce to your mother or friends.

"Wet blanket reason: This is the conception of a phlegmatic mind, a mind that can't be pepped up without alcoholic stimulant. A fellow with personality, some conversational ability, and a clean line of humor can't be a wet blanket. And the weak willed will say that these are gifts of divine dispensation, but I say personality can be improved; one can learn to be a good mixer and be an agreeable fellow people enjoy having around without liquor stimulant.

"To say that drinking is the thing is just maudlin talk. This is the most idiotic and spavined reason of all. Any man who drinks because it is 'the thing to do' is not the type a real girl would want to pal with, anyway. He who runs with the herd is weak and has no right to enjoy the privileges of the strong."

"Gaylord" wants it known, too, that he is no angel boy; that if he felt like drinking, he'd drink. But it makes him sore to have his weak-minded brethren speaking up for all men when the woods are full of young males who detest the soused ones just as much as any nice girl detests them.

And what he resents most is the implication that the way of the girl today is hard because she is hard put to find young men who can take their liquor and leave it, and not subject girls to the insulting after effects of a "souse" party.

Swedish Girl's Fine Complexion Due to Unique Face Washing

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A 60 year old woman was telling about a Swedish maid she had in her employ for many years. During the entire stay of the maid, covering years, this woman swears that not once did the girl clean her face by any but this process:

She had flannel towels and used two at a time for her face. One towel was dipped into hot water [no soap] and it did the cleaning off; the other towel was dipped in cold water and used right after. The Swedish girl never dried her face in the ordinary way, but patted at the cold water until it was absorbed by the towel and what dampness was left over remained for the air to dry. My informant tells me that this Swedish girl was the envy of every woman that came to that house, her skin was so exquisite.

Listening to the recital was one whose complexion hasn't one faint resemblance to the Swedish type of skin. In every detail, hers is diametrically opposed. Yet, her immediate response was: "I bet that's what's the matter with my face. Using soap and water on it." Which is a ridiculous conclusion to jump at.

National traits govern complexions, to some extent, as in case of the Norwegians, Scandinavians and Swedes. And the happenings of the story related occurred some twenty years ago; the living of it was in a quiet, inland town where road dust was about all that had to be combatted. Under out atmospheric conditions of living, soap and water as routine cleansing agents are imperative. Only those whose skin is so unusually dry that they must have the artificial lubrication effect of a grease are justified in cleaning with creams only.

Another item about the Swedish girl was her hair treatment, and from all accounts, her hair was as beautiful as her skin. She shampooed it, as the story goes, with her corn meal; nothing else. She practically used to raise a lather principle with the fine coarse meal on her hair, and brushed it until every particle of meal was removed.

I doubt if our women would have the patience to brush until all the meal powder was eliminated, but the brushing in itself would seem to be gorgeous gloss ascribed by her employer to the Swedish girl's hair.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

M. McG.: WHITEHEADS, like blackheads, are symptoms of a clogged skin. The treatment is similar. Stimulate the circulation by exercise and tonic baths. Press out the contents. It may be necessary to use a sterilized needle to aid in the work. Daub on peroxide and massage gently with cold cream. My booklet on the skin may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

K. D.: IT IS NOT NECESSARY to increase the number of meals to your three meals should be eaten not hurriedly and consist of well balanced foods. Menus for the gaining weight must include fruits and green vegetables in order to help digestion. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for my weight gaining booklet.

BY THALIA

You can't imagine a more entrancing experience than a visit to Joseph T. Ryerson's Chicago den on top of the Ryersons' mid-town dwelling! A prodigious wealth of imagination, artistry, planning and workmanship went into its creation, and the completed result is a delight to behold.

The owner's idea of housing a collection of early Chicago books and prints in the most modern settings, and superimposing it on a gem of a Tudor house, is in itself a charming-ly unusual conception. I couldn't begin to tell you all about the exciting decorative details nor the fascinating fun of inspecting the treasures of Chicago past Mr. Ryerson is constantly augmenting. The room itself is about 15 by 40 feet and has an enormous casement window all across the south end, so you get a marvelous view of the skyline behind a fascinating silhouette provided by a window box of cactus plants. At the other end are a fireplace and the usual shelves. The walls and furniture are all in pale taffy and tan shades, and there are several Indian rugs on the parquet floor.

Reid Adler, in designing the setting, carried out Mr. Ryerson's own ideas and the furniture is all of Chicago workmanship (the huge divan covered in modern fabric had to be built in the room). Mr. Adler designed the framing for the collection of prints and planned their arrangement.

The collection of books includes all sorts of interesting items such as volumes of early publications, directories, Kohl's Pike booklets, and one section of the book shelves is devoted to the various editions by Chicago authors of Mr. Ryerson's acquaintance. Besides the books and prints visitors there may many more, all filed in a carefully systematic order in a series of closets that are ingeniously concealed in the walls of a narrow library hallway from the elevator to the Chicago room. There is a whole series of movie film that Mr. Ryerson has taken. Half way down the hallway, which is walled in with book shelves, there is a vast mirror on one side, and an equally vast mirror on the other, and an equally vast picture looking northward on the other.

Mr. Ryerson obtains material for his collection from various sources. Some persons have offered him cherished heirlooms, not because they wish to sell them but simply because they wished to find a suitable home in which they might be preserved.

Jean Leland and Howard Linn, two of the students of the Glenwood Manual Training school, have had the entire responsibility of planning and managing funds for the new administration building of the school, a memorial to the late Edward Burgess Butler, who was its president for more than 15 years. Miss Linn and Mrs. Leland have entertained and assisted with the interior decoration of the building, which is to be dedicated on January of 12th century.

The executive room is in 18th century English style, with walnut panelled walls and large windows hung in red damask. A portrait of Mr. Butler, done several years ago by Louis Betts, hangs at one end, and opposite it a memorial chronological panel representing the pictorial activities of the school being carved by Oskar J. W. Hansen. The building contains also a conference room for visitors, offices, and auditorium lecture quarters, all done in simple, attractive and livable style.

Harold Gould is to make the presentation speech, Dr. Frederick F. Bunting the dedicatory address, and Miss H. C. Butler, president of the school, a speech of welcome.

Oliver Lodge at 80 Believes in Spirit World

LONDON, June 12.—(AP)—Sir Oliver Lodge, eminent physicist and psychist, was 80 years old today. He spent the anniversary quietly with his family in their country home. He appeared to be in excellent health.

Gives Views on World of Beings Superior to Man.

New York, June 12.—(AP)—Sir Oliver Lodge recently foretold that the next revolutionary development of science would be the discovery of a new world. He described that world thus:

"It will be a spiritual world which interacts with the material world and yet is not of it.

"It will be discovered that man isn't the highest being of which we have cognizance, but that there is a multitude of other intelligences, some of them far more highly endowed than ourselves."

Sir Oliver says he already has had contact with another plane of existence. Two years ago his wife died, and within a few weeks of her death he told of receiving messages from her.

"She met and was welcomed by her beloved son and daughter," he said, "and was allowed to send us a characteristic and evidential message before being taken by them to rest and recuperation."

Sir Oliver's interest in psychic matters developed in his 56th year, after he had become known to scientists throughout the world by his strictly material labors.

His scientific fame is based on his achievements in wireless telegraphy—he is credited with the discovery of the principle of tuning in, utilized on radios—and in the general field of electricity and physics.

He is six feet three inches in height. His head is bald on top, and fringed with white hair on the sides, and his beard is a patriarchal white.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

MEN'S FLOWER SHOW OPENS.

With the happy selection of the most opportune week of the season for the showing of spring garden flowers in competition, the annual spring flower show of the Men's Garden club of the Chicago regions opens at 1 p. m. today with expectations that entries as well as attendance will set new records.

Displays are to be set up this morning in the Garfield park conservatory exhibition hall. Van N. Marker, president of the men's club, and August Koch, chief florist for west parks, agreed yesterday that gardens were in the midst of their most profuse spring bloom and that flowers would be at their best.

Peonies and iris are expected to be most prominent. Last year more than 1,200 entries were registered in time for judging during the morning. Two sets of classes are provided, one being for amateur nonmembers and the other for members of the club. Competition is open to all gardeners in Chicagoland, even to suburbanites. The conservatory is to be open until 10 o'clock tonight and hours tomorrow for the flower show as well as for other portions of the conservatory will be from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

An Unbiased Opinion.

While I was waiting for an elevator in the lobby of our office building a pleasant faced man joined me and asked me if I were working hard.

"O, I never work hard," I answered. "It doesn't pay."

A week later my boss warned us to keep busy, as the new president was coming in any minute. I had plenty of letters to type, so was quite busy until a voice interrupted me, saying, "Conscientious workers are always appreciated."

I looked up and found the pleasant faced man that I had met in the lobby a week ago watching me intently. He turned out to be our new president. I still blush whenever I think of the remark I made to him—" that it didn't pay to work too hard. M. G."

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Not long ago a famous and most delightful English author wrote a novel entitled "Love Is Enough." Sometimes I feel I would like to write a book—and it wouldn't be a novel—entitled "Love Is Not Enough."

When you're a father or a mother, love is not enough. Love is necessary. It is the foundation. It is the beautifier. You can't make good without it. But it isn't enough.

As the child in this letter following, who has lost her mother, says, "I know my father loves me dearly, but. . . ." He needs to understand his daughter and see things with her eyes, too. Love is not enough.

"Will you please write something about the way a father should speak to his seventeen year old daughter?

"My mother died two years ago and my father is more or less trying to take her place. He is particular about my warmth and comfort, clothes and looks. But the trouble is he thinks he knows more about girls' desires and dislikes and tastes than a girl herself. And when I disagree with him he gets extremely angry and calls me bullheaded, etc.

"He is generally affectionate and kind, but when he gets one of his ideas, or anything doesn't go just as he likes, he says humiliating and hurtful things which penetrate deeper than he knows. He has a habit of interfering in plans I make, which is very hard.

"I am not the kind of daughter who goes out a lot and spends his money. I frequently stay home when I should like better to go out, just because I know he wants company. I have a little stubborn streak in me which I inherit from him, but I seldom oppose his desires.

"He is also nervous and his feelings are easily hurt, so I never say anything about his actions. If he would only stop and think, and try to see why I do or say this or that, instead of getting excited right away?

"I know my father loves me dearly, but don't you think all fathers should have a little respect for daughters of my age, especially when they are companions in place of a wife?"

Perhaps you are a father, trying hard to fill the mother's place—and lonely for your wife. Try to understand your daughter and be her companion—not her mentor.

You will find great delight in the friendship that is possible with a daughter in her teens. Besides, you can be a real help to her in that way.

Most daughters are eager for and proud of their father's friendship. Forget your dignity and opinions and hurt feelings. Talk things over with your daughter—your business, the house, money.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The little niece of a friend of mine, aged 7, was going to have a new dress for a very special occasion. When her mother showed her the material she looked disappointed, then said:

"Well, mother, I've put up with your sewing all these years. This time I think you might have bought me a dress." M. G. S.

PARIS, June 12.—[Special.]—Leopold Stokowski, director of the Philadelphia orchestra, has just returned from a short visit to Russia, where he went to get a first hand impression of the effect of the bolshevist régime on culture. That impression may be summed up in a phrase, he said—that "every art is now subject to politics."

"It was in the schools," he said, "that I first found that political preoccupations came first. In infant schools Montessori and other modern methods of teaching are practiced by very intelligent teachers, but in the more advanced classes every effort seemed bent on training good workers for the community, as if the object was to drown the individual in collectivism.

"It is in the theater that the bolsheviki have shown the most enterprise, both artistically and from the point of view of propaganda. I never saw anything finer than what is being done in the theaters of Moscow and Leningrad. The technique is marvelous. But all plays had the same sententious character and sought to defend soviet ideas. They were all simple and obviously addressed to simple people. During the interval military films always are shown.

"There is tremendous propaganda in favor of war. Children are all being taught that Russia is encircled and that they must prepare for war."

Delightful New Wrap for Summer Ensemble

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Many of the evening wraps accompanying new summer evening ensembles are just so much delightful nonsense from the wrapping point of view, being obviously designed for the graceful line and gesture they lend the dress and its wearer rather than for any pretense at warmth. But they are so pretty that we can forgive their frivolity; they really do add a lot to the smart evening effect.

Molyneux is making wraps to match nearly all the evening frocks shown in his new collection of summer clothes designed especially for his private clients. That is to say, for some of the smartest women in Europe. These wraps are something between a cape and a shawl and they're décolleté in a deep point in back, while in front they dwindle to mere scarf ends tied around the neck.

They're made of a clever combination of diamonds of the material edged with wide bands, and they drape gracefully in back. The cut of the frocks they accompany also features these diamond shaped incrustations, which make a lady look twice as slender as she really is.

Molyneux makes these ensembles of satin, chiffon or fine lace in all the pastel shades, as well as some brighter tints. The one sketched today is of shamrock green satin. The bodice is surplice in back as well as in front. There is a tie belt of the green satin.

Food Talk

I suppose there is no kind of meat dish of which people are more suspicious than a chicken croquette. Many slanderous stories have been told about its contents. But despite all these tales I am strong for its continued existence. A croquette, if properly made, is most attractive in appearance. Its golden brown crust makes it most appetizing. If the crumbing, coating, and frying have been done well the contents of the croquette is juicy and free from any grease soaking.

It seems to me that restaurants and hotels have given the croquette its bad name. This, of course, has not been done maliciously. Food used in the croquette is too often ground up into almost a smooth paste and then combined with so many other foods that the chicken is lost. As a result, it is impossible to identify its flavor or texture. And who enjoys a nondescript food? A chicken croquette can be lifted to the high plane where it belongs if the cook will cut the chicken into dice, and not too small dice at that. The finest of chicken should be used. This doesn't mean that leftovers must be eliminated. Either white or dark meat or a mixture of both may be used and the quality will be high.

But some one says, how can one get diced chicken to stick together so that it may be molded into shape? The only way is to add a very thick cream sauce which will hold the meat together. This, when chilled, can be molded into any shape, then crumbed and dipped in egg. Croquettes may be shaped and kept in the refrigerator several hours before they are fried.

Frying should be done only a short time before the meal is served. Drop prepared croquettes into fat heated to about 390 degrees F. This fat is hot enough to turn an inch cube of bread a golden brown in 40 seconds. Drop the croquettes into the fat carefully. A slotted pancake turner or a strainer with a handle is a handy device for putting the croquettes into the fat or taking them out. Fry to the preferred golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper.

Place the croquettes in a pan and put them in a medium hot oven until they are ready to be served. They should not stand in the oven longer than ten minutes. The croquette is sure to become thoroughly heated through and this is essential. It is a disappointment to get a croquette that is only warm in the center and this is what often happens if the croquette mixture is cold. The oven should not be too hot; if it is the croquette is likely to brown too much. Croquettes should be served with a creamed vegetable. Creamed potatoes are an especially nice accompaniment.

CHICKEN CROQUETTES.

Juice of ½ lemon.
Salt and pepper.
Sifted cracker crumbs.

Boil the chicken and let it cool. Remove the meat from the bones and cut it into medium sized pieces about an inch square. Use also the small pieces for the croquettes. The large pieces will give the croquettes their character. Slice the mushrooms. Melt 3 tablespoons of butter in a saucepan. Stir in the flour and cook until mixture bubbles. Stir in the chicken stock and the cream slowly to prevent any lumpiness. Continue stirring for a few minutes after the fluids are incorporated. Take the sauce from the fire. Add the sherry flavor, lemon juice, salt, and pepper. Spread it out on a broad platter and fold in thoroughly the chicken and the mushrooms. Set it away to chill.

When it is quite cold, shape the mixture into cutlets, barrel shaped croquettes, or pyramids. Dip each one first in sifted cracker crumbs; then in raw egg—the yelk and white just mixed together but not beaten; then in fine white bread crumbs. It is well to dip the croquettes in each of the materials used in the breading—all in the cracker crumbs, then all in the egg, and last, all in the bread crumbs. Lay them in routine order on plates provided for the purpose. Fry the croquettes in deep hot fat.

SLOVAK UNION SWELLS SPORTS CONGRESS LIST

Enters 100 Members in Mass Drill.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

One hundred members of the Gymnastic Slovak Union Sokol will participate in the grand parade which opens the Chicagoland Sports Congress Sunday afternoon, June 21. They also will take part in the mass drill which concludes the congress.

The Slovak union, which has ten units in Chicago, completes the list of organizations to be represented in the world congress sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. The organizations and membership accepting follow:

[illegible].....1,000
[illegible].....1,500

[illegible].....100
Illinois National Guard.....250
[illegible].....100

1,500 in Grand Parade.

Five thousand five hundred will participate in the grand parade. Nearly all of them will take part in the mass drill, the finale of the program.

The Gymnastic Slovak Union Sokol, a national organization of 50,000, has 4,000 members in Chicago. It was founded in 1905 at Passaic, N. J., now its national headquarters. A few months later, a second group of Slovaks formed a sokol at Boonton, N. J., not affiliated with the Passaic organization. Sokols now are organized in the principal cities east of the Mississippi river.

Chicago is the center of the district which extends from Milwaukee and includes northern Indiana. The last general demonstration or slet was held in August, 1926, at Whiting, Ind. The national convention and gymnastic exhibition is held every three years. In 1907 the Slovaks assembled at Trenton, N. J. The 1931 meeting will be held in Detroit.

Sokol Supreme Commander.

Michael S. Rehak of Chicago is the supreme commander and has charge of all athletic and gymnastic activities. Dr. Peter P. Hletko of Chicago is national medical examiner. Feronin Kalafut, another Chicagoan, is a member of the supreme finance committee. The national president, A. M. Pallerik, resides in Youngstown, O.

Last year the Slovaks sent three teams to the international competition at Prague, Czecho-Slovakia. These teams, athletes, gymnasts and women, met other competitors from Jugo-Slavia, Germany and Czecho-Slovakia. The United States athletes were unfortunately unsuccessful while the gymnasts won four prizes. Two Chicagoans, one of them Miss Sophie Minarcik, were members of the American Slovak teams.

Thousands to See Pageant.

Thousands are expected to watch the demonstrations of calisthenics, games, gymnastic exhibitions and the parade of war June 21. Each of the participating organizations will have its own following from its own membership and race. However, the idea back of the Chicagoland Sports Congress is to present mass athletics to Chicago. For the first time all groups have united in common cause.

More than 50 foreign language newspapers in Chicago are cooperating with THE TRIBUNE, urging their readers to attend the Sports Congress. Admission is 50 cents. Tickets will be on sale at 35 booths at Soldiers' field. All gates will be open to facilitate handling of the crowds. It is advised, however, that spectators come early. As seats are reserved and while all are excellent, the seats high up in the concrete stands undoubtedly will be the best from which to view the colorful pageantry in the arena below.

JAKIE MAY, CUB PITCHER, INJURED AS 3 CARS CRASH

J. S. (Jakie) May, left handed pitcher for the Chicago Cubs, was injured late yesterday when his automobile and two other cars collided at Halsted street and Waveland avenue. He was taken to the American hospital for examination and later was permitted to return to his home at the Sherman hotel when it was found his injuries were not serious.

He suffered a slight concussion of the brain and lacerations on the head and face. Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs' physician, said May would be out of the game only a few days.

May was driving east in Waveland avenue. The second car, driven by Frank Gottwald, a real estate dealer, was in Gottwald avenue, was moving north in Robey street when the accident occurred. The driver of the third car, which was being driven west in Waveland avenue, fled after the collision. The license plate on this machine was found to belong to George Haynes, 6600 South Austin avenue.

Kid Chocolate Defeats Steve Smith in 10 Rounds

GOLFERS TO CAST VOTES TODAY ON OLD, NEW BALL

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A test of the sentiment of Chicago golfers regarding the old and new golf balls will begin today with the opening of the poll taken by THE TRIBUNE in conjunction with the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association. Voting blanks will be available today at all the fourteen member courses of the association. The first two weeks of the poll will be devoted to daily fee golfers alone, and will be followed by a canvass of private courses and park links.

Golfers are urged to take this opportunity to express themselves on a subject which has divided the country's players into factions—those who like the new ball and those who wish to see the return of the old one. Here's your chance to tell why you do or do not like the ball which came into use the first of the year.

What Blank Contains.

2. My average drive with the new ball is.....Yards.
3. My average drive with the old ball is ..... yards
4. I [like] or [do not like] the shot to the green with the new ball.
5. I [like] or [do not like] to putt with the new ball.
6. I [would like] or [would not like] to see the old ball come back.

A special space will be left at the end of the blank so that the voter may include any specific opinions he may have on the subject.

Officials Differ on Ball.

A poll of officials of the daily fee association yesterday revealed the fact that both the new and the old ball have plenty of supporters.

W. B. Langford and T. J. Moreau, operators of the Mid-City course, received their supply of voting blanks yesterday and proceeded to set the golfers on their course an example by mailing in their own votes. Langford, who has an average score of 70 at Mid-City, drives 200 yards with the new ball, as opposed to a 210 yard effort with the old one. He doesn't care for the new ball in getting to the green, but likes it for putting. He enlisted among the numbers who wish to see the old ball come back, and stated that the new ball is too difficult to control. Moreau was of the same opinion as his partner.

Art Ahern of the Evergreen daily fee course prefers the new pellet to the discarded one. He said that the increased diameter of the 1931 ball has bettered the game for the golfer who shoots between 90 and 100, the larger ball making for better wood shots, although he was of the opinion that the new ball has no appreciable effect on approach shots and putts.

Opposes New Sphere.

Lee Vastine, vice president of the Daily Fee association and president of the Oak Hills club, is firmly opposed to the new ball. He stated that the change was unfair to the average golfer, particularly when driving into the wind, and that it doesn't run true on undulating greens.

TWENTY GRAND VS. JAMESTOWN! RACE GRIPS EAST

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand and George D. Widener's Jamestown will have practically a clear track for their meeting in the 63d running of the historic Belmont stakes tomorrow afternoon. Only Mrs. K. E. Hitt's Sun Meadow has been named, aside from the two which tonight were rated at the top of the three year old division.

Sun Meadow, good game colt that he is, is considered outclassed by the two equine Titans which have done far more than is ordinary for even top flight thoroughbreds. He is considered to be running for third money of $3,000, although there were not a few today who recalled the victory of the 100 to 1 shot, Jim Dandy, in the Travers last year when Gallant Fox and Whichone were considered to outclass the opposition.

Winner to Get $60,000.

The gross value of the race will reach $73,570 and the winner will receive upward of $60,000. This sum would put Jamestown, which was the two year old champion of 1930, well over the $200,000 mark, while Twenty Grand's total would go far past the $100,000 mark. The Belmont is at a mile and a half and is the most grueling test for three year olds in America.

The expectation by the officials is that a record crowd for the season will see Twenty Grand and Jamestown oppose each other.

The outlook tonight was for a fast track, as large crews of men have been harrowing and drying the surface at every opportunity. The sun and wind today brought the track to good condition and fair weather tomorrow is expected to make the racing strip perfect.

All of these preparations are going forward for a meeting between two thoroughbreds which are as fit as hands can make them. The veteran A. J. Joyner, who has conditioned horses with success on both sides of the Atlantic, is the handler of Jamestown and has as supporters many of the canny oldsters who have been watching thoroughbreds for decades.

Twenty Grand Holds Record.

James Rowe, considered one of the younger group of trainers, and son of the late James Rowe who was dean of the corps at the time of his death, is the handler of Twenty Grand. Twenty Grand did not get as many opportunities at the big money as a 2 year old as did Jamestown, but he won his share of glory nevertheless, the outstanding performance being his mile in 1:36, a 2 year old world record, made at Churchill Downs when he beat Equipoise by a nose.

Jamestown, in 1930, was defeated only once, captured the Belmont Futurity in gallant fashion, and was retired early the champion of the division. His one defeat was by Epithet in the Hopeful, in which he finished second. He avenged the defeat in the Futurity.

This year Twenty Grand has won the Wood Memorial, run second in the Preakness, and captured the Kentucy Derby.

ST. PAUL GOLFER HAS 281 FOR 18—SINGLE HANDED

Des Moines, Ia., June 12.—(AP)—The world's worst golfer, or close to it, has been found. Milton Rosen, commissioner of public works in St. Paul, playing the Wakonda Country club course during the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce frolic yesterday, plowed around the 18 holes for 281. His lowest hole was 8, his highest 22.

On the tenth, a water hole, he spoiled his chance for official recognition of his record by using a "hand mashie." After six balls dropped in the lake he tossed his seventh, and last, over the hazard.

WHEN INCHES MEAN VICTORY

Huntington Preps Lead Stagg Trials; Oak Park High Next

Huntington High school led the qualifiers at Stagg field yesterday, when eight athletes from the West Virgina town survived the preliminary elimination tests in the 27th annual interscholastic track and field meet. Oak Park High was second with seven qualifiers and Fort Collins, Colo., and Salem, O., were tied for third with six.

Randall Herman of Oak Park led his team with a victory in one heat of the 100 yard event, while Burling was qualifying in another heat. Toussaint in the low hurdles, Ovson in the shot put, Lloyd in the high jump, Zinkil in the 220 and Lydiard in the broad jump.

One hundred twenty-five men survived yesterday's elimination in ten events—the two dashes, hurdles, and six field events. Finals in these ten events and the 440, 880, and mile runs and three relay races will begin today at 2 p. m.

Wind Slows Runners.

Times in the track events were slowed by wind. Edwin Toribio of Jesuit High, New Orleans, who entered the meet with a 9.7 reputation, was no better than fourth in a slow preliminary heat and was eliminated from competition in the quarter-finals.

Crain Portman, Urbana, the other 9.7 entry, won his heat with 10.1 in the century and qualified in the 220 with a third in a :22.7 heat.

Jack Owen, Maplewood, Mo., won a preliminary heat in 9.9, the only race run under ten flat. Randall Herman, Oak Park, and W. Smith, Dupont Manual, Louisville, fifth last year, led the qualifiers in the quarter-finals with 10 flat apiece. Owen registered the best time in the 220 yard dash with a :22.4.

Amsden Oliver of Roosevelt High, Dayton, O., second in the high hurdles last year, led the qualifiers in both hurdle events yesterday with :24.8 in the lows and :15.6 in the highs.

Wallace vs. Oliver.

Bill Wallace of Eagle Lake, Tex., who has beaten the national records in both races this spring, ran the second best heat in the low hurdles in :25.1, and was good for :15.9 in the highs. He will probably fight it out with Oliver for the two championships today.

Elwyn Dees, weight man from Lorraine, Kas., who has broken shotput records at the meet in each of the last two years, qualified easily in his specialty and in the discus. The favorite to win the broad jump became Schrimscher of Maine Avenue High, San Antonio, when it was learned that he leaped 25 feet 1 inch at a meet last Saturday.

Warren De Marris of Pineville, Ore., spearing jackrabbits with a home made lance, was also a qualifier. He has done six inches better than the record of 205 feet 1 inch this spring.

Admission to the finals today will be free.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 12.—Two days of rest failed to work any miracles with the White Sox. They went back to their labors this afternoon, but Joe McCarthy's Yankees were ferocious, as usual, so the Chicagoans again folded up. The final score was 11 to 2, and that's just about what you'd expect when Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, and some others conduct a hitting expedition.

Manager Bush started Hal McKain, and things happened just as they always do when the roly-poly youngster doesn't confine himself to relief duty. McKain was a great pitcher if only two innings are considered. Then the Yanks decided to get after him. They did with two runs in the fourth, both caused by Gehrig's tenth homer of the year. They buried him entirely in the fifth, mainly because Ben Chapman uncorked a homer with two on. After this a few more unhappy incidents were reeled off at the expense of Ted Lyons.

Take Ted to Doctor.

Lyons' appearance as a rescuer wasn't staged with the idea that he would reveal some pitching the Yanks couldn't fathom. The workout was ordered as the first step in another effort to correct whatever is the matter with Ted's salary arm. He is to undergo an examination by a specialist at Rochester, N. Y., tomorrow. It was figured that working him today might bring on soreness at one spot or another, thus making it easier for the Rochester doctor to locate the trouble. Lyons yielded seven hits in three innings. So it's a cinch something is radically wrong.

If any proof is needed to show that the Sox are badly in need of the hitting prowess of the ailing twins, Jolley and Reynolds, it was provided in today's performance. They collected only four hits off Henry Johnson, who hasn't been much of an annoyance to any other Yankee opponents. Three of these four hits were bunched in the third inning, when the Chicagoans scored their day's quota of runs. In the following six innings the Sox didn't get a man to base, except on passes, and there were only three of those.

McKain Hits Triple.

A base on balls to Tate with one out in the third started the Sox toward their two runs. McKain ran out his string to three and two and then hit one of Johnson's cripples into left center for a triple, Tate scoring. Blue sent a fly deep to Combs, who doesn't throw well, and McKain scored with ease. Watwood and Fothergill prolonged the rally by singling, but Fonseca grounded into a force out.

The Yanks' tying foray in the home third also began on a base on balls. Ruth, who had fanned the first time up, drew a pass with one out. Gehrig promptly blasted No. 10 into the right

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Our Cubs made those roughhouse Phillies think for five innings yesterday that they might be able to win a ball game from their old playmate, Lee Sweetland. But in the end the visitors were disillusioned most cruelly, for the final score was Chicago, 7; Philadelphia, 4.

It was the sixth victory for Sweetland as compared to one defeat, and it was proper that this new Cub should get most of his aid from two other new Cubs, Rolly Hemsley and Bill Jurges. Hemsley scored the first Cub run on Jurges' single after tripling in the second. In the sixth, with the Cubs trailing, 2 to 1, Hemsley put Wilson on second with a single, then Jurges singled, scoring Hack and putting Hemsley on third, whence he scored on an infield out. And not content with this showing, Hemsley singled again in the seventh to drive in Hornsby with the sixth Cub run. Not a bad day for a bunch of newcomers.

Good Show for Women.

The victory was the third in a row for the Cubs in the series, which ends this afternoon, and, of course, afforded great delight to the ladies' day gathering of some 30,000 spectators. It placed the Cubs two up on the Phils in the season series and three up on eastern clubs on their present western invasion. The triumph continued our lads in a tie for second place with the Giants, who won from Pittsburgh.

Today will be celebrated as Shriners' day at Wrigley field and an elaborate program has been prepared for the period immediately preceding the contest. Bush is slated to work against Dudley.

Most of the Cubs' fun was enjoyed after a young pitcher named Frank Watt had given way to a pinch batter, though Watt got the loss because of the Wilson-Hemsley-Jurges onslaught in the sixth. Manager Shotton was obliged to use three pitchers to get through the seventh, which ended with the bases full after the Cubs had chased home three runs.

Hornsby Still in Slump.

Hornsby continued in the slump which has been on him every day except one since noon on Memorial day. Yesterday was the fifth successive game in which Rogers failed to get a hit. He did, however, manage to score a run, after getting one of the three passes doled out in the seventh inning frolic. Rogers probably would bench himself were the club losing, but there seems no need of his taking a rest so long as the club continues at its present splendid pace.

The way the game started out there was some fear that Sweetland was facing an ordeal similar to that which he encountered his last time out, against the Giants, when his ears were pinned back with startling expedition.

Bartell and Klein singled with one out at the outset of the game, and both ran home when Buzz Arlett knocked the first of his three hits, a mammoth triple to the center field screen. Buzz was held on third, however, Lugubrious Lester thus showing that he had the situation well under control.

Hemsley Scores First Cub Run.

Hemsley's triple and Jurges' first single made the score 2 to 1, a tabulation which prevailed until the sixth, when the aforementioned Wilson-Hemsley-Jurges combination got under way with two runs, a 3 to 2 lead resulting.

A triple by Cuyler started the doings in the seventh. Walks followed to English and Hornsby, filling the bases. Then Stephenson squirted a single between Bartell and Hurst, Ki and Woody scoring and Hornsby reaching third. Wilson fanned, but Hemsley came through with his third hit, scoring Hornsby.

The third Phil run was the result of hits by Arlett and Whitney and an error by Wilson, and the fourth came in the ninth on a walk to Benge and a double by Lee.

REFEREE TO HAVE FULL CHARGE OF STRIBLING FIGHT

Cleveland, O., June 12.—(AP)—The referee will be given complete charge of the world championship bout between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling here July 3, as long as he follows instructions laid down by the Cleveland boxing commission.

The commission will issue "such additional instructions as are deemed necessary for protection of the public and betterment of the fight" if it feels the referee fails to adhere strictly to its rules. The two judges will have the sole duty of balloting on the decision, the commission notified the participants and promoters.

A set of "no foul" regulations was adopted by the commission today. Under these rules the referee would count out either boxer claiming a foul and send him to his corner for examination. If he decides the boxer is unable to continue the fight will be termed "no contest." If he pronounces him able to proceed after a five minute rest and is met with refusal a technical knockout will be recorded in favor of his opponent.

Sweep All Wins Shore Acres Purse; Insco Breaks Down

BY FRENCH LANE.

Tragedy and a brilliant victory stalked along hand in hand in the running of the Shore Acres purse, which engaged 10 candidates for the American Derby at Washington Park yesterday. Sweep All scored the sparkling triumph. Tragedy descended on the valuable Insco.

Just when Insco started to run at the head of the stretch one of his legs gave way. It was a serious breakdown and he may have to be destroyed. So ended a career which thrilled a great crowd at Arlington last year as he won the Post and Paddock stakes.

He hobbled over the tanbark patch across the infield back to his stall with the crowd sorry for his plight. Only a Negro stable boy was with him and most of the 12,000 were grieving so much for Insco they forgot about the bet they had won on Sweep All.

Sweep All ran brilliantly. He galloped this seven furlongs over the lightning fast track in 1:25 4-5. He ran like he did in the Kentucky Derby when he finished second to the record smasher, Twenty Grand. He beat Oswego, one of his most dangerous rivals for the Derby, by a length and a half and never left the result in doubt. The eastern filly, Sunny Lassie, after making up much ground in the stretch, got up to be third.

Sweep All was ridden by Pool. He let Prince d'Amour and the filly Martha Jones make the early pace. As they headed down the stretch Sweep All moved on past the two early leaders and had the race at his mercy for the rest of the way. Oswego also moved up from the rear and was an easy second. The two early leaders dropped completely out of it in the late stages.

Sweep All was the favorite at a little better than even money. He won much easier than the price indicated.

It's been a long time since a racing crowd acclaimed old Martie Flynn in the winner's circle, but Martie got plenty of cheers yesterday when he won the six furlong race which came second on the program.

The old fellow had a hand coming for he ran a game and fast race to whip Gracious Gift by a head with Gerard charging up near them in the final drive.

Old Martie got a sound whipping before he got the decision. A half furlong from home, after he had taken the lead, he began to falter and Gracious Gift moved up on even terms with him. Then Jockey Carl Myers applied the shillalah like Martie was a very bad boy. As the leather began to pop against his flanks Martie began running again. He pulled out an inch or two at a time until he was a full head in front as the verdict was returned and was going away.

Martie's old friends didn't desert him. They backed him from 10 to 1 down to 4 to 1. Looks as if he's about as good as ever.

Charley Ellison, the Blond Plunger whose career closed a few weeks ago in a tragic death, won his biggest bet at Saratoga in 1902, according to an old timer we encountered near the Washington Park paddock yesterday.

"Ellison started his own colt, Skillful, in the Hopeful that year," the old timer said. "The bookmakers layed 30 to 1 against Skillful. I don't know how much Ellison bet, but I don't believe there was a book in the ring in which he did not wager something. Some bookmakers said he won $175,000 on the race.

"Everybody thought Skillful was a great colt after he won the Hopeful. Right after the Hopeful Ellison wanted to bet Skillful would win the next American Derby. There were no takers. Long before the American Derby of the following year was run Skillful proved to be a horse that could not go a route.

Asked quite a few people at Washington Park yesterday how they thought the Belmont stakes would end today. Here's what they said:

Col. Matt J. Winn—If I ever played the races I'd surely have a ticket on Twenty Grand.

Terry O'Malley—If Knights Call was in the race I'd have a ticket on him.

Tony Barrett—They won't beat Twenty Grand.

Jockey Charley Allen—Think I could win on Jamestown.

O'Neil Sevier—Won't anybody ever be close to Jamestown.

Good Time Charley Eregarthner—I'm going to parley Jamestown to win the Belmont and the Classic.

Blanche Ring—I'd like to be down there betting on Jamestown.

George Mulligan—Jamestown by plenty to spare.

Skeets Garner—I just got a divorce. Haven't had a chance to throw the figures on 'em.

Jim Norris—They held me up the other night. I'm going to get it all back on Jamestown.

Risque, Hertz Filly, Captures Amazon Purse

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. John D. Hertz's filly Risque came perilously close to defeat in the Amazon purse at Belmont Park today when the big weight concession she made to the Brookhurst Farm's Harlem brought those two to the wire only a neck apart. It required all the drive Jockey Eddie Steffen could put into the finish to get the daughter of Stimulus across the line a winner.

She was 1 to 7 in the betting, one of the shortest priced favorites of the meeting.

Back of Risque and Harlem finished Bobby Folsom, Novena and Helen Green. Harlem was 1 to 3 to place, and the others were 40 to 1 or better, but there was no price quoted for third against any of the starters.

Risque carried 120 pounds, within a pound of the three year old scale for fillies, and ran the seven furlongs in 1:24 1-5. She conceded fifteen pounds to Harlem and as much or more to the others. Risque ran a front race from start to finish.

Two other odds-on choices won in the day's competition. They were Morush and Economic, both trained by C. A. Buxton. The former bore the colors of C. A. Grande, having recently been purchased, while economic was a winner for J. H. Louchheim.

Morush was a 9 to 10 shot in a field of eleven and won by three-quarters of a length.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Back in 1862 the Illinois Central decided to discontinue its customary Hyde Park accommodation train after Jan. 1. The line was of advantage to Hyde Park residents but was not a paying investment for the company, which also suffered loss from damages arising from a collision the preceding year.

Feeling service a necessity, Hyde Park citizens launched a subscription movement to have a line of their own. The plan was to lay tracks from the then terminus of the horse car line on Cottage Grove avenue to run along the ridge in the western part of the village, then eastward to the lake and through Cleaverville and back to the starting point. A dummy to make the round trip every hour was contemplated. If sufficient funds were not raised, a fleet of omnibuses was suggested.

Eventually an arrangement was made with the railroad company, and the street car service finally was extended without public subscription, but that was later. J. G. C.

"Who" or "Which"?

Charles Collins, dramatic critic de luxe, takes issue with us on our use of "which" in referring to race horses. He correctly points out that we use "he" or "she" but revert to "which" when a qualifying phrase is employed. He contends that is illogical. Furthermore, he thinks that when a race horse is made a hero "who" is more appropriate.

"Way back years ago when newspapers had more such rules than now, a horse was an "it" and never "he" or "she." From that grew our use of "which," we assume. Mr. Collins may convince us—he is very convincing in an argument—but we don't anticipate twenty years' habit ever will succumb to mere argument, and so a great race horse in The Wake will still remain "he" and "which." We have preferred to say "he" to avoid the clumsy "it" but we just can't seem to write "who."

STEPHENSON GETS BACK INTO RANKS OF BIG SIX

The name of Riggs Stephenson of the Chicago Cubs reappeared in baseball's big six yesterday in an afternoon of heavy hitting. Two hits in four times at bat brought his average up to .357 and gave him third place in the National league batters as Wally Roettger failed to connect. Harvey Hendrick led the clouting with three hits in four trips to the plate for an eleven point gain and second place in the big six. Eddie Morgan hit two out of four to pick up ten points and pass Mickey Cochrane while the same record gave Babe Ruth three points and a .401 average. The standing:

Yankees Rout Lyons, M'Kain Vanquish Sox

field seats. Then Kerr fumbled on Chapman, who stole second, but McKain dodged further annoyance for the time being by retiring both Lary and Dickey on lazy flies to Fothergill.

Ruth Starts Trouble.

Ruth also had the pleasure of instigating the revolt that settled the issue and blasted McKain out of his job in the fifth. The Babe singled with one out and moved to third on Gehrig's line double to center. Both scored ahead of Chapman, who hit the ball into the right field bleachers. Lary followed with a single, so McKain didn't object when Lyons came in to relieve him. Lyons retired Dickey, but passed Sewell. Johnson then doubled down the left field line scoring Lary with the fourth and last run of the inning.

Further convincing proof that Lyons was not himself appeared in the seventh when the Yanks added two more runs to their already ample total. This disturbance started with a pass to Lary. Dickey fouled to Kerr, but Sewell shot a single to right and Lary scooted to third. At this stage Johnson came up with his second two bagger. It was an honest line drive to center and both Lary and Sewell rode home on it. A base on balls put Combs on first base. Reese then hit one squarely, but it was directly at Fonseca who clung to the ball and turned it into a double play.

Four out of Five Hit.

Four out of five men hit Lyons in the eighth and Bush mercifully rushed Moore to the rescue. Ruth opened the inning with a single against the right field fence and Byrd ran for him. Gehrig singled to center, putting Byrd on third. Chapman hammered a single to left, scoring Byrd. Lary then sacrificed. With the infield drawn in, Dickey singled past Cissell to score Gehrig and Chapman. Moore appeared and Sewell drove a hot shot down the first base line but Blue grabbed it. He also took a popup off Johnson's bat.

Bush will start his pitching staff—Pat Caraway—against the Yanks tomorrow. McCarthy thinks the Sox are not particularly ferocious and promises to place his trust in old Herb Pennock.

Badger Crew Impressive in 2 Mile Drill

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 12.—[Special.]—The University of Wisconsin crew in its afternoon workout today impressed observers more than at any time since its arrival for the regatta scheduled on next Tuesday afternoon.

Coach Mike Murphy of the Badgers has been so satisfied with the efforts of his oarsmen that he decided to curtail regular morning practice to allow the men to rest up a bit.

In the afternoon the Cardinal bladesmen went out for a two mile pull from the Columbia boathouse, which marks the one mile mark, down to the old railroad bridge that marks the beginning of the last mile. The last mile was turned in at 4:56, although the Badgers did not go over 38 in their sprint.

The spacing of the Madison eight is the outstanding feature of their efforts this year and this improvement, together with the undisputed power, smooth slide work and experience in the boat, gives Wisconsin a much higher ranking than last year. The only thing which remains to be tested is the ability to go over the course under racing conditions with the endurance necessary to carry them through the last mile.

SCOUTS GET TEST AT LINCOLN PARK FOR CANOE TRIP

Victors to Join Tribune's Annual Cruise.

BY BOB BECKER.

Some of the Boy Scouts who aspire to join THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE annual Boy Scout cruise on the Flambeau river will have an opportunity to show all their fancy canot strokes this afternoon. The first test to determine whether applicants have sufficient knowledge of canoeing to go on the cruise will be held at 1 o'clock in Lincoln park.

Through the courtesy of the Lincoln Park Boat club, which has been identified with water sports for many years, the test will be held in front its clubhouse, Vincent Smith, a member of the club and a former canoeing champion, will play the part of the "schoolmaster" and direct the young Scouts in the examination.

Must Know His Canoe.

Although a Scout need not be an expert with a paddle in order to qualify for this river cruise, officials in charge of the river trip have found it essential that each boy possess a good working knowledge of how to handle a 16 foot canoe. In the first place, a youngster who can't paddle correctly would soon tire on a long day's jaunt. In the second place, insufficient canoe experience would be a handicap in swift water.

The boys who go on this cruise are going to have a thrilling campfire meeting the first or second night of the trip. The state of Wisconsin has offered to send one of its most experienced uniformed conservation officers to the Flambeau in order to spend an evening with the cruising party.

Will Tell of North Woods.

This officer will come prepared to tell the Chicago youngsters some stories about the river, the wild life of the north woods and other interesting yarns about the north country which THE TRIBUNE party will cruise.

According to the schedule drawn yesterday the Boy Scouts chosen to go on the combination canoeing and camping trip down the Flambeau will leave Chicago the night of June 26 via Soo line to the town of Park Falls.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES STEADY; TRADING QUIET

Burnham Stocks Recover Part of Declines.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks on the Chicago exchange maintained a steady tone during yesterday's quiet trading session. Only 75,000 shares changed hands and final quotations were irregularly higher.

There was some good buying in the utility shares, notably the Insull issues, which forged ahead for moderate gains. The Burnham stocks recovered part of the previous day's losses. Noblitt Sparks was easy again, however, and closed a fraction lower. D. E. Lanfesty, treasurer of the company, stated yesterday that in all probability the company would maintain its present dividend rate during the latter half of the year. The payment for the current quarter has already been authorized. The acute weakness in the issue on the previous day had led to reports that the $3 rate would be changed. It is stated that the latter part of the year is ordinarily the best from an earnings viewpoint.

Make Share Offering.

Segal Lock was dull and slightly higher following the formal offering by a banking group of an additional 300,000 shares of common stock at the market. The stock offered was listed by the exchange on the preceding day with an extra 10,000 shares to be used for dividend purposes. Price changes in other sections of the list were inconsequential in the main.

An exchange membership was posted for transfer yesterday to Philip Dodge, partner of the New York Stock exchange house of Potter & Co. It is understood that the firm will shortly open a Chicago office and may take over the vacant quarters formerly occupied by Pynchon & Co.

Pays Regular Dividend.

Directors of B. Kuppenheimer & Co. yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the common stock. The firm reported a net loss for the six months ended April 30 of $19,270, which compares with a net profit of $190,334 for the corresponding period of the preceding year.

The company recently retired all of the outstanding preferred stock amounting to 3,800 shares. At the next meeting of stockholders a plan for the retiring of 15,500 shares of common stock now held in the treasury will be voted on. This would reduce the outstanding common stock to 84,500 shares.

ASSERTS STOCK REACTION SLOWS UP BUSINESS

Checks Expansion, Survey Says.

Despite the fact that the stock market has repeatedly during the last few years shown itself to be an unreliable business barometer, the action of security prices in recent weeks has had the effect of checking the expansion in trade and industry noted earlier in the year, according to the June number of THE CHICAGO Tribune Survey which has just been issued.

"Aggregate output of the automobile industry, which has been the principal original source of what improvement there was, has held through May near the April levels," the Survey continues. "And though the movement of freight has not been increasing, when a small gain would be keeping with the season, neither has it been declining.

"That there should be a halt in the mild increases in business which have been noted in other recent issues was inevitable in view of certain developments. A good measure of the check for checking the expansion of trade and commerce may be ascribed to the influences which have affected the peoples' psychology."

Summarizes Conditions.

The most prominent of these influences has been the continuously receding stock prices, it says, then adds that the fact that business had held up as well as it has in the face of these declines has been a testimonial to the actual needs for goods which exist.

Summarizing conditions the Survey says: "Although gains have been reported, there has not been by any means a rout, and many forms of activity appear to be stabilizing. Automobile output, which made gains in March and April, held its own during May. The steel industry continues to decline in activity moderately, in response to smaller seasonal requirements and subnormal buying by some of the largest users of steel—notably the railroads. The revival of residential building has subsided for the time being, and contracts are again in about volume."

Retail Trade Steadies.

Retail trade throughout the country appears to have halted, at least temporarily, from its downward tendency towards midsummer slackness discernible last week. Reports to Bradstreet's show that in general this branch of business held its own and in some sections increased from the previous week.

Reports from the far west indicate no improvement in that section, but trade in the south was upward. The west central section also showed slightly increased activity.

"School commencements and the coming vacations have been instrumental in sustaining seasonal retail trade," Bradstreet's asserts. "There are many reports of department store 'sales' with extremely attractive bargains offered. The low prices of raw materials now seem definitely to have been passed on to the finished product. Retail volume in most cases is not up to a year ago. In Detroit the decrease is estimated at 25 per cent, but value of sales everywhere, of course, is most pronouncedly off.

"The larger stores continue to take a disproportionately greater percentage of trade, with the smaller stores consequently suffering. Vacation supplies, cotton goods, hosiery, garden and household tools, paints and soft drinks have been the articles in general showing good volume. Electrical appliances have also been in demand. The jewelry business is less than fair, with demand principally for medium priced articles. Men's clothing outgoes quiet. Retail failures for the week were fewer."

Price Unsettlement.

"Continued unsettlement in commodity prices tends to restrict business in some departments of trade," says Dun's review of the week. "Production in many lines, however, has not been affected, and in some of them the output continues to be quite large. Pressure to move goods and propitious weather, in some sections, have helped many of the large stores to exceed in volume their sales totals of the first two weeks in June last year, if not in sales.

"Gains in sales are far from uniform, the lines most favored being wearing apparel, home furnishings and electrical appliances. The rate of stock turnover at some points is greater than it was a year ago, and this is in spite of the fact that May sales of department and chain stores showed a decline of 10 and 15 per cent, respectively. Cotton goods have not received the attention expected, in view of the extensive promotion work."

Northern Pacific to Add 500 New Freight Cars

As part of the car rebuilding program begun by the Northern Pacific a short time ago the road has just awarded to the American Car and Foundry company a contract for building steel underframes and superstructures for 500 single sheathed box cars. The cars will be built at the company's shops in Laurel, Mont. Delivery of the steel will start in about sixty days.

Old German Export Firm Is Forced to Suspend

HAMBURG, Germany, June 12.—(AP)—The 69 year old exporting firm of Schlubach, Thiemer & Co. suspended payments today, attributing its position to default by debtors in Central and South America. Local estimates place the firm's liabilities at about $1,350,000 and assets about $2,000,000. American and English banks are said to be the principal creditors.

Eastern Rail Officials Agree on Merger Details

New York, June 12.—Having agreed with western and southern officials on a move to obtain a 15 per cent freight rate increase, executives of the eastern lines took a further step today toward improving the position of the railroads by completing plans for a prompt filing of a consolidation plan for their territory. The rate petition is due to be filed next week. Filing of the consolidation petition will follow soon afterward.

Meeting in the Pennsylvania terminus, the eastern executives reached conclusions on two of the three important points which remained for settlement in the effort to unify the trunk lines by agreeing on the disposition of the Lehigh Valley and the Virginian railroads. A report on the third point to be settled, the disposition of a request by the Pennsylvania railroad for trackage rights on the Nickel Plate from Asthabula to Brockton, will be made within a few days by George T. Slade, the arbitrator chosen to decide this point.

Will Transfer Control.

The Pennsylvania railroad, which controls the Lehigh Valley, agreed to transfer this control to the Chesapeake and Ohio, obtaining, however, trackage rights into Allentown and Bethlehem and the privilege of soliciting freight at any point on the Lehigh Valley line.

The Pennsylvania will receive other considerations for this transfer. It is understood that the precise nature of this consideration will depend on the report of Mr. Slade on the Nickel Plate trackage rights the Pennsylvania desires. Should the Pennsylvania obtain these rights, they would serve as part consideration for its release of the Lehigh Valley. The cash consideration, if any, will be left for later decision. No financial terms will be included in the petition.

Control of the Lehigh Valley, acquired in part from the Delaware and Hudson railroad and in part in the open market, cost the Pennsylvania railroad about $70,000,000.

The Nickel Plate is willing to concede the Pennsylvania trackage rights in return for transfer of the Lehigh Valley to the Chesapeake and Ohio, but the New York Central has opposed this arrangement. The Nickel Plate and C. & O. are both controlled by O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, so that they act in concert in the present negotiations. It was owing to the opposition of the New York Central to the granting of the Nickel Plate trackage rights to the Pennsylvania that Mr. Slade was appointed arbitrator.

Agree on Virginian Road.

The disposition of the Virginian railway was decided by an agreement whereby the Chesapeake and Ohio railway and the Norfolk and Western, the latter controlled by the Pennsylvania, shall jointly own and operate the Virginian.

While today's deliberations left disposition of the Nickel Plate trackage rights undecided, the belief was expressed in railroad circles that Mr. Slade's decision would be acceptable to all.

The petition which will be filed will be in accord with the plan announced by the eastern railroad officials early in January. The allocations under this plan were:

To the New York Central: Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and a direct connection with the Virginian railway at Deepwater, including joint rates and routes over that railway.

To the Pennsylvania: Wabash railway, Detroit, Toledo and Ironton and Norfolk and Western.

To the Baltimore and Ohio: Ann Arbor, Reading, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Western Maryland, Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Susquehanna, Lehigh and Hudson River and Chicago and Alton.

Each of the four systems to be set up under the plan of the eastern executives would be worth about $2,000,000,000, with a mileage of about 60,000. These systems would comprise about one-fifth the mileage of the entire country.

TURNOVER OF FUNDS IN U. S. TREASURY TO EXCEED 1½ BILLIONS

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—More than $1,500,000,000 will flow into and out of the treasury next Monday. But the government deficit will be approximately $1,000,000,000.

For its quarterly financing program, the treasury will sell $821,000,000 in 3½ per cent bonds. At the same time it will pay off $589,000,00 in maturing certificates of indebtedness, receive $90,000,000 in interest payments and $30,000,00 principle of war debts from foreign nations.

In addition it will receive the second installment of tax on 1930 incomes which should run between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000. It also must pay $90,000,000 in interest on the public debt.

The government has spent much more in the fiscal year ending June 30 than it has collected. Rapidly declining income taxes and customs duties together with increasing expenses sent the total expenditure of the government on June 10 to $3,945,209,025 while collections from all sources totaled only $2,856,145,395, leaving the government with a deficit of $1,092,063,690 on that date.

There appears to be little chance that the deficit will be changed materially by the end of the month. So far this month income taxes have totaled $15,851,887, compared with $27,208,091 in the same number of days last June. For the fiscal year they have amounted to $1,580,480,768, compared with $1,911,751,132 in the same period of the previous fiscal year, a decline of $331,000,000.

REPORT GERMAN BUDGET DEFICIT AS $273,700,000

BERLIN, June 12.—(AP)—The serious state of German finances was disclosed today with publication of the government's balance sheet for the fiscal year ended March 31. It showed an ordinary budget deficit of $273,700,000 and a deficit in the extraordinary budget of $770,270,000.

Revenue under the ordinary budget which had been estimated at $2,675,360,000, yielded only $2,388,964,000. The greatest deficiency was revealed under the head of revenue from taxation, which was estimated at $2,361,085,000, but which yielded only $2,075,888,000.

Ordinary budget expenditures were reduced by rigid economy from an estimated $2,689,479,000 to an actual $2,625,979,000.

Taxation allotments to various German states were cut roughly by $77,510,000; internal war loans debts by $17,710,000; army by $2,530,000; navy by $4,600,000; civil service salaries by $5,520,000, but social burdens cost the country hundreds of millions more than had been expected. Unemployment relief alone, for example, instead of an estimated $42,320,000, swallowed $95,404,000.

Berlin Stocks Hard Hit as Investors Dump Shares

BERLIN, June 12.—(AP)—The boerse had a bad session today with both foreign and domestic investors throwing stocks on the market. United Steel and other industrials were specially hard hit, their quotations dropping to the lowest levels of the year, declining 4 to 7 points over the previous day. There was a slight recovery after the boerse closed. There appears to be a shortage of dollar bank notes here as the boerse committee today decided to issue checks on New York which will be cashable in bank notes here within a fortnight.

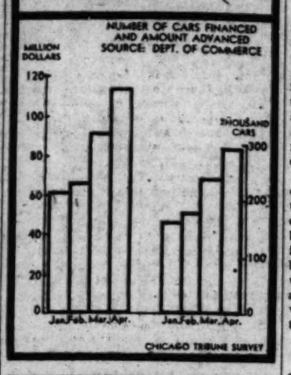
April Time Financing of Automobile Purchases Exceeded One Hundred Million Dollars



Ten Years Ago in Finance

Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis will begin hearing at once the wage controversy between the building trades unions and contractors which has tied up building and kept thousands of men out of work since May 1 in Chicago. "There'll be no monkey business," Judge Landis stated.

April, 1921, net operating income of all class 1 railroads was $29,201,000, or $1,494,000 less than in March.

Car loadings of the Burlington railway for the first week in June, 1921, were 36,249, compared with 41,907 for the same week of 1930, a decline of 27.8 per cent.

New Law Reduces Time in Foreclosing on Mortgages

BY SCRUTATOR.

Records reveal that there are around $400,000,000 of real estate mortgage bonds in foreclosure in Cook county.

Many of these issues have been in foreclosure for a year or more. Eventually the total will run higher, probably rising to a half billion dollars, as other issues now in default but not yet in foreclosure are taken to court.

Outstanding bonds secured by Cook county real estate, according to authoritative estimates, amount to about one billion dollars, and they are held by a million investors. On that basis it is reasonably certain that the number of holders of defaulted bonds runs well into the hundreds of thousands, allowing for the fact that many investors hold defaulted bonds of more than one issue.

Rights Under Law.

The holders of a defaulted issue are entitled by law to foreclose and force the sale of the assets securing the bonds. But under existing mortgage laws in Illinois there have been numerous legal obstacles to such action. Therefore, legislation was sought at Springfield to change this.

One of the most important laws passed during the present session of the legislature is house bill 532 which amend section 19 of the chancery act dealing with rights of parties served by publication. Its importance lies in the fact that it makes possible a speeding up in the liquidation of defaulted mortgages.

"Under our system of laws it is necessary, almost without exception, in foreclosure cases to serve unknown and non-resident defendants by publication," writes Herbert Becker, designer of the new law, in reply to this writer's request for an explanation of it. Mr. Becker is vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company.

"The publication law which has been on our statute books for nearly a century allowed three years for parties served by publication to come in and attack the proceedings or redeem therefrom.

"Because of this right of parties served by publication to attack foreclosure proceedings, title coming through foreclosure cases were unmarketable for three years and that simply meant that it required three year or more to foreclose a mortgage.

"Lately it has become the vogue for owners of property on the eve of foreclosure to convey their titles to non-residents or persons who could not be found so that it was necessary to publish for them in such foreclosure cases. This was obviously done to obtain the benefit of the three year period under the old statute."

New Law Saves Time.

The new law reduces the three year period to one year. Under its provisions the purchaser at the foreclosure sale will have a title when the period of redemption expires and a master's deed is issued.

"The new law becomes effective July 1, 1931," continues Mr. Becker. "There have been many inquiries as to its applicability to pending foreclosure cases.

"A careful and thorough consideration of the law leads to the conclusion that the new statute will apply to every foreclosure case where the decree of foreclosure is entered after July 1, 1931. The parties served by publication will have only one year from the date of the decree to file a petition to review the proceedings as provided by the new statute."

It is obvious that inasmuch as there are many cases where decrees of foreclosure will be entered after July 1 the new statute will have an important bearing on the present fore closure situation.

Florida Exempts Stocks Listed by Board of Trade

Stocks listed on the Chicago Board of Trade will be exempt from further qualifications in the state of Florida, effective July 1, Robert P. Boylan, chairman of the committee on stock list, announced yesterday. Forty of the forty-eight states now permit the sale of securities listed on the Chicago Board of Trade, either specifically or by implication, without further qualification. Some of these states require registration by qualified dealers.

General Realty and Utilities.

I would appreciate any information that you might be able to give me in regard to General Realty and Utilities corporation, listed on the New York Stock exchange. Do you know whether the company owns real estate and properties or is it just the top holding company of the common stock of other utilities? What individuals control the corporation and what are their connection? Thank you.—C. E. B.

General Realty and Utilities corporation was incorporated in January, 1929. It purchases, sells, and improves real estate, finances realty operations and acquires interest in public utility and other enterprises. Stock Transfer.

Please advise me who makes the transfer when stock is bought or sold. Does the company do this itself or does a separate company transfer stock for different companies?—V. N.

A transfer agent is one through whom change in ownership of stock of a corporation is made. It may be a bank, trust company, or individual. Many corporations do not have outside transfer agents, in which case some officer of the company, generally the treasurer, has charge of the records and seals of the company and makes the transfer from the company's office.

Commercial Failures Drop Sharply, Dun Reports

Commercial failures showed a sharp drop this week, the number in the United States for the six days as reported to R. G. Dun & Co. being 474, the lowest for a full week than for any similar period since early in October. In the short week preceding, covering only five business days, 454 defaults were recorded, while two weeks ago, covering six days, the number was 528. For the corresponding period last year the number was 459. Insolvencies involving liabilities of $5,000 or more this week numbered 268, against 263 for the five days of the preceding week, and 278 a year ago.

Marmon Reorganizes Its Plant; Reduces Overhead

Marmon Motor Car company has reorganized its plant operations and reduced overhead expenses to a point which, it is stated, permits an operating profit in spite of curtailed output. A monthly schedule of production has been worked out for the balance of 1931, which is expected by the management to show a satisfactory profit, despite the general condition of the industry. The new schedule went into effect May 1, and sales for that month were more than 450 cars, which was in excess of the estimate for the period. Current operations indicate another excess for the month of June.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 13.—Railroad shares were again the hope of the stock market. Some of the leaders had to stand for a good deal of profit taking in the early dealings in consequence of their sharp upturn in yesterday's late dealings, but the entire group swept forward anew in the afternoon. Closing prices reflected net gains of from 1 to 9 points.

Present popularity of the carrier issues is due, of course, to the united move of the executives for a 15 per cent horizontal increase in freight rates, and while the project so far is little more than a proposal it is evident important interests have some confidence in the success of the so-called "emergency measure" plan when it is laid before the interstate commerce commission next week.

Holders of railroad securities will have to read some poor earnings statements in the next few months, but the outlook for enough additional revenue to avert any real financial embarrassment for most roads is said to be brighter than it has been for some time. Traders with faith in the fitness of things in this particular sphere of commercial activity probably will not mind so much enduring present conditions for some time longer if it is assured that they will improve.

Union Pacific Gains.

Higher priced issues of the group again set the pace. Union Pacific distinguished itself with a gain of nearly 6 points, Atchison jumped 2, New York Central 2, and Norfolk and Western 3½ points. Pere Marquette overtopped them all with an upthrust of 9. Chesapeake and Ohio was turned over in heavy volume at rising prices and annexed another point or so to the gains it has been accumulating for the last week. This stock seems to have benefited from the "hurtful" publicity it received on the false report that its dividend had been cut last week. The price took a tumble of some four points when the rumor got around, but the loss was quickly wiped out in a rush of fresh buying orders when traders learned that the board had declared the regular $2.50 rate, and it has been on the upgrade ever since.

Other departments of the market were able to do little more than hold the line. Some of the utilities managed to gain a point or so, but final changes in the main were largely of a fractional nature. International Telephone added about the brightest pigment to the picture presented by this group. After selling fractionally lower, following the late announcement yesterday of the regular dividend and publication of the earning statement, the stock suddenly turned active and scored an advance of about 2 points on the heaviest volume of any stock on the list.

General Motors Off.

Appearance of the General Motors report, covering sales and shipments for May, seemed the signal for a run of realizing on that stock during the day. Results of the month were shown to have been distinctly satisfactory, with sales to dealers having run slightly ahead of the total for the same month last year. Estimates appeared during the day indicating that the second quarter earnings of the corporation will run pretty close to those of the same period last year, when net of $1.17 a share for the common was reported. The stock declined a point on the day. Other shares of this group fared somewhat better. Studebaker scored an advance of more than a point.

An advance of 25@40c in the hog market featured the trade in all branches of the live stock market yesterday. There was a moderate run of hogs on sale, but cattle and sheep receipts were small. In fact, there was but a single deck of lambs offered on the market after subtracting all the lambs shipped direct to packers from outside points.

The markets on hogs and cattle have been active all week and prices on both classes have advanced. Lambs recovered most of the early loss and are closing about steady with a week ago, but still materially lower than they were a few weeks ago.

Hogs Friday were in active demand and closing prices were from 50c to 75c higher than the previous Friday. Approximately 15,000 head compared with 16,074 a week ago Friday. For the first five days of the week there were 110,300 hogs marketed compared with 111,587 for the same days last week and 122,780 for the corresponding period last year.

Extreme top in the hog market was $7.20, paid for 60 head of choice 215 lb butchers. Most of the desirable shipping hogs sold at $7.00@7.10, with several sales at $7.15.

Heavy hogs were comparatively slow and seldom showed more than 25c advance for the day. Prices ranged down to $6.25 on them. Packing sows strengthened 10@25c during the day, selling at $5.35@5.75 mostly.

A light supply of cattle, only 2,000 head yesterday, sold at strong to higher prices. Quality was plain and comparatively few sales were made above $8.00, but considering quality prices were at the week's peak. Most offerings turned at $7.00@7.85, with common grades ranging down to $6.25.

Steady to Firm.

It was generally a steady to firm market on other classes of bovine stock, fat cows selling largely at $4.75 @5.75 and fat yearling heifers at $7.00 @8.00. Veal calves held steady at $8.50@9.50 mostly, and bologna bulls were unchanged at $4.15@4.35.

The market on cattle has advanced for two weeks and prices are from $1.25 to $1.50 above the low spot late in May. This sharp advance is due largely to smaller receipts. For the last three weeks the country has cut receipts on the average of 5,000 head per week below average receipts for the preceding three weeks. The dressed beef trade has had a breathing spell in the meantime, and the general undertone of the market is much better than it was.

Lambs Are Scarce.

Sheep receipts Friday were estimated at 8,000 head, but 6,200 of the run consisted of directs to packers from outside points. The remainder of the crop offered only one deck of fat native lambs for sale besides a few lots of yearling sheep.

It took all morning to sell the single load of lambs, but they finally brought good, steady prices. There were 149 head which averaged 71 lbs at $9.00. Top for Idaho lambs on Thursday was $9.50, but natives failed to bring even $9.00 Thursday.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, June 12.—(AP)—Cotton goods trading was quiet in the unfinished cloth division today, with inquiries reported somewhat better in wash fabrics lines. Price weakness continued in finished and unfinished markets. Curtailment of production will be quite general throughout the balance of the summer. Wool goods were selling well and production will be maintained and possibly increased a little to September. Rayon sales to weavers were showing a little increase. Silk was firmer in raw silk markets due to reports of a restricted output of cocoons for summer reeling. Burlaps were easier.

ADVANCES STOP FIVE DAY DECLINE IN WHEAT MART

Greater Attention Is Paid Old Crop Grain.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A strong technical position, incident to a 5 day straight decline in price, was largely responsible for an upturn of around 1c in the local grain market yesterday as there was no change in the general character of the news. Further scattered rains were shown in the Canadian northwest, but the trade seemingly had made up its mind that a large area in Saskatchewan had received no moisture of consequence from the recent storm, and there was much less pressure on the market.

The trade paid some attention to the crop position, which appears to be complete in old crop grain, prices in the sample market here being 2 to 4c lower, with No. 2 red sold at 84c, showing an advance of 3c within a week and 1½c above the figures prevailing two weeks ago when the May delivery expired. June wheat at Chicago closed 2½c higher at 72¼c, while Minneapolis June was 1¾c higher at 76½c, the former being 14¼c above the July.

Weaker Wheat Strong.

At no time where wheat futures in the local market below the finish of the previous day, firmness in Winnipeg and Liverpool offsetting the rain reports, and the finish was within a fraction of the top, with net gains of 4 9/16c with July, 87¾@88c; September, 77½c, and December, 61¼@61¼c.

Messages from Winnipeg indicated that the recent rains in Saskatchewan were too light to be of material benefit over a wide area, although a few points received 3 inches or more, according to private reports. The Winnipeg market was strong to the finish of the day on buying induced by the forecast for fair and warmer, and the close was 1@1¼c higher, with July finishing at 61¾c, a shade higher than with the Winnipeg.

Foreigners After Winter Wheat.

Foreigners showed more interest in American old crop winters and the better demand had some effect on Liverpool. Sales in all positions were fairly estimated at 500,000 to 600,000 bushels, including 150,000 bu No. 1 Manitoba to United Kingdom mills.

Reports of too much rain being received for winter wheat are being received from a considerable area in the southwest and extending eastward to the Ohio valley states. R. O. Cromwell, the Lamson Bros. & Co. crop reporter, in commenting on this said that unless they ceased considerable damage might result. George M. De Coast, who is out for Stein, Alstrin & Co., wired that in his estimation the Southern Saskatchewan would have a good crop this season as the plant was starting to head out 6 to 10 inches high and stand was thin. Donovan's report to Logan & Bryan was also construed as bullish. However, the primitive interest in the market is of a light that little attention is paid to extraneous news. Enid, Okla., reported first car of new wheat of fine quality, grading No. 3 hard, test. 60 lbs, with 14.5 per cent moisture and sold to a mill at 83c per bu.

Corn dropped to 51¾c at the new low on the crop, but the decline in the aggregate was small and most of the last prices advanced on a fast covering in sympathy with wheat and the finish was ¼@¾c higher, July closed at 58¼@56¾c; September, 53¾c, and December, 48¼@

PROFIT TAKING IN LARD

Lard was advanced 90c in the last two days and profit taking was in order, so 25c to 35c was knocked off in hog products to stimulate new buying. Liverpool has been out down 6d at the extreme, futures here at the extreme, futures here at the extreme. Yesterday's decline was moderately, with July 7½c lower, September 7c lower, October 6c lower. Liverpool was 3d lower to 3d higher, the latter in September. Export clearances were 1,000,000 lbs. Packers reported a good demand for cash lard and meats. Hog receipts were 40,000 head, 5,000 more than a week ago and also as compared with a year ago. Prices follow: Cash Sales, Prices follow:

CORN IN ILLINOIS

Corn is getting an uneven start in Illinois, according to a survey made by the Illinois and federal departments of agriculture. There are increasing reports of chinch bugs in central and lower central counties. The state is now fairly well watered, most of the recent rainfall having penetrated subsoil to a considerable depth, but subsoil moisture is still below normal, due to prolonged winter and early spring drought.
